YALE CREWS SWEEP HARVARD TO DEFEAT; VARSITY SETS RECORD

Leads Crimson Upstream by a Length and Three-Quarters in 20 Minutes 26 Seconds.

STURDY FIGHT STIRS 50,000

Harvard Eight Beaten for Fifth Year, but It Also Betters Mark by 19 3-5 Seconds.

ELI JUNIORS WIN EASILY

Finish Four Lengths in Front and Freshmen Have Margin of Three and One-Half.

By JAMES B. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—Through the quiet water of the Thames this afternoon a Yale boat sped like a silver arrow, and Harvard took the backwash. For the fifth straight year the Crimson varsity looked at the familiar tail lights of an Eli shell going away in the twilight.

Yale won by one and three-quarters lengths, but in its wake was the best Harvard crew since the war—a crew that brought 50,000 spectators to tip-toe with its thrilling rallies, a crew that drove Yale on to a new upstream record of 20 minutes and 26 seconds over the four-mile course before it succumbed to the superior drive and power of the Blue boatload.

It was Yale all the way today—from the railroad bridge to Bartlett's Cove, from the west bank to the east, from the freshman race to the varsity. The Blue Navy swept the river clean, leaving not even the slightest shred of consolation for the doughty warriors from Cambridge.

Other Crews Win Easily.

In the morning races the Eli Junior Varsity won by a good four lengths. The freshman eight from New Haven captured its little sortie by the smacking margin of three and a half lengths. Earlier this afternon Yale defeated Harvard in the race between the combination crews.

Under ideal conditions of water and air, with a swift tide whipping up from the railroad bridge and a keen wind blowing into the backs of the oarsmen, it was little wonder that both crews set a new upstream record. There is no official mark for the four miles up the river, but the best time ever made was 20 minutes and 52 seconds.

Yale surpassed that mark by 26 seconds and even Harvard, nearly two lengths astern, was able to finish well within the previous record. The Crimson time was 20:32 2-5, the fastest time that the Cambridge eight has hung up since its record-smashing feat of 20:02 in 1916, and the second fastest Harvard four-mile performance in twenty-two years.

Yes, it was a great Harvard crew. It was a crew that poured into the race all its heart and soul, everything it had in the way of courage, grit, strength and stamina. It was a crew that for the first two miles set a sizzling pace and in the final stretch gave its last ounce of power in a fruitless effort to overtake a greater Eli eight.

Yale Goes to the Front.

Bow to bow they traveled at the two-mile mark, but in the latter stages of the race it was Yale that went ahead. The rise and fall of the blue-crested oars were as steady as the beating of a pulse. There was the regularity of a machine in the forward march of the Yale shell, and the smoothness of a well-oiled locomotive in the drive and rhythm of the Leader-coached combination.

Leader again stands out on the rowing horizon as a miracle man, a Lochinvar who came out of the West to do great deeds.

Only two of last year's Olympic crew which conquered the world were in the shell today. Yet he was able to reconstruct a crew which would hold its own probably with any other boatload in the country. He took raw material and turned it into finished oarsmen. He fashioned a Yale eight that met and turned back the greatest Harvard menace since the World War.

Harvard is coming up the rowing highway at a fast clip, but it is still apparent that what the Crimson needs most to beat a Leader boat is an outboard motor. Leader now has beaten Harvard upstream and downstream, and he probably could give them a pretty argument across stream also.

In panoramic effects, in beauty and color and in the effectiveness of its natural setting, the fifty-eighth annual regatta today was easily the best of the series, that dates back to the pre-war days of 1852. More than 50,000 persons, a record-breaking number, watched the varsity event from train and yacht and from the sloping hills of the Thames Valley.

Great Fleet at the Finish.

For a solid mile at the finish line was clustered the largest fleet of boats that has ever added its bedecked gayety to a Yale-Harvard regatta. Hundreds of craft pulled at their anchors down the last long mile. Thousands of banners and small flags and strings of bunting floated from the mastheads. Small launches of an early vintage rubbed elbows with the steam yachts of modern days. The humble rowboat played tag with the floating mansions that carried

Petitions Ask That Widow Fill La Follette's Term

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., June 19.—Representative John M. Nelson has initiated a movement to have Mrs. Robert M. La Follette named to fill out the unexpired term of her husband in the United States Senate. The movement has already gained considerable impetus and petitions are being circulated throughout the State.

The Wisconsin law provides that the successor shall be named at a special election or at the next general election. It was pointed out, however, that the Legislature now in session can amend the law so as to permit the appointment of Mrs. La Follette by Governor Blaine.

Assemblyman William Olsen has started a petition to the Governor for Mrs. La Follette's candidacy.

Washington Political Observers Discuss Possibilities of New Senate Alignment.

EXPECT BLOC TO CONTINUE

Senator La Follette's Body Leaves Capital for Madison, Wis.—Funeral Next Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Recognition of the standing and leadership of Senator Robert M. La Follette was apparent here today in discussion in political circles of the effect of his death on the general party situation in the United States. There appeared to be a widespread conviction that he stood practically alone in his ability to bring together the radical elements which have been at odds with both the major parties for some time. With the Wisconsin Senator gone, many persons expressed the belief that a force capable of uniting these factions was lacking.

Of more particular interest to political Washington is the effect of the death of Senator La Follette on the so-called Progressive element in the Senate and the House. He was the acknowledged chief of most of those of radical tendencies and exercised influence over some who declined to array themselves formally under the La Follette banner. While the tendency here today was to admit or contend that the policies he had espoused had suffered a great setback, nevertheless the opinion prevailed that the La Follette group or bloc in Congress would continue to function, perhaps with lessened numbers, under some other leadership when the new Congress assembles later this year.

Speculation on Radical Leadership.

Discussion of those on whom the mantle of leadership would fall emphasized that Senator Ladd of North Dakota, one of the four nominal Republican Senators (Mr. La Follette being another) to whom admission to the Republican Senatorial caucus was refused for bolting the party in the 1924 elections, is ill in Baltimore, and that Senator Brookhart, a third of the expelled quartet, is in danger of losing his seat in the Senate through the contest instituted against him by Captain Daniel Steck, his Democratic opponent in last year's election in Iowa.

Mr. Ladd or Mr. Brookhart, by virtue of inclusion in this insurgent contingent, might contend for the captaincy of the La Follette bloc, it was conceded, but a rather general opinion was that neither would have marked success in endeavoring to build up a following equaling the cohesive strength of the bloc led by Mr. La Follette.

One opinion expressed was that the radical group in the Senate was likely to combine with the so-called Progressive element of the Republican Party with which Senator Borah and Senator Norris of Nebraska are affiliated. Both these have retained their nominal Republican regularity but have frequently shown a disposition to be independent of their party and joined in revolts against its policies with the La Follette group, which consistently opposed the legislative desires of the Administration.

That Senator Norris would enter into a combination with the more pronounced La Follette followers, although not to the extent of acknowledging that they constituted a distinct third party bloc, is conceded. As for Mr. Borah, the belief is that while he would be glad, at times, to have the co-operation of the radicals, he would not consent to any hard-and-fast agreement with them, even under an offer of leadership, but will continue to play a lone hand, independent of all party alignments.

Recently there have been signs of a

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OSLO, Norway, June 19.—The safe return of Captain Amundsen and his comrades was learned here at half-past 8 yesterday evening. Special editions of the newspapers caused great excitement and rejoicing. Today the city is beflagged.

At a meeting of the Cabinet this morning the King congratulated the Ministers on the successful return of the expedition and said that the whole nation had heard with thankfulness and admiration of the great, courageous deeds of Captain Amundsen, which have again brought honor to Norway's name. The King, in his and the Queen's name, sent Amundsen a message of congratulation and of welcome home.

At a meeting of the Storthing today the President, while the members rose, made a brief speech felicitating the explorer, and the following message was sent to him:

"The Storthing bids you and your courageous comrades welcome home from your daring journey and thanks you for the courage and energy you have shown for the benefit of research for your country."

In reply to the Government's congratulations Captain Amundsen sent a reply thanking the Ministers and stating that there is no land in the Norwegian sector of the polar basin.

German warships arrived here today, but in the general delight over the news about Captain Amundsen they attracted small attention.

Ellsworth Saved Two From Drowning.

OSLO, Norway, June 19 (AP).—The Dagbladet in its noon edition today printed a non-copyright story outlining some of the experiences of the Amundsen North Pole expedition. The newspaper said the story was based on messages from the expedition's journalist.

"In narrating their story on arriving at King's Bay," says the Dagbladet, "the fliers, all of whom looked worn and thin from suffering, said their weeks upon the ice was like a fight with death. Amundsen will later narrate this.

"Now he mentions that the members of the expedition were separated for a while and that Leif Dietrichsen (Norwegian pilot of one of the planes) and Oskar Omdahl (Norwegian mechanician) fell in the water and were just saved from drowning by Lincoln Ellsworth. Meanwhile Amundsen and Hjalmar Risserlarsen (Norwegian plane pilot) were on the other side of the water. They heard them scream, but were unable to help, as thin ice prevented them reaching them."

Regarding the picking up of the members of the expedition by the fishing boat Sjoeliv, which brought them to King's Bay, the Dagbladet's story says:

"The fishing boat Sjoeliv is a small cutter of twelve tons with a crew of nine men. Her captain is Nils Wollan. The vessel had had a poor catch and was hunting for a wounded walrus, when off Huggle Bay, on the north side of Spitzbergen, the crew heard motors purring and discovered an airplane ten kilometers away.

"They at first thought it was an airplane from the patrol expedition, but when it neared they immediately recognized Amundsen, in spite of his long beard.

"The explorers all quickly got aboard the Sjoeliv and crowded into the small berths. There was not much food for so many—only seal, beef, cider and eggs. The hawser towing the airplane broke once, but a new one held.

"As Amundsen was told that the patrol expedition was ready to leave King's Bay, he decided to make for King's Bay as fast as possible and leave the plane. Wollan says this was the greatest catch he had made in his fifteen years' experience in these regions."

The Return to King's Bay.

The Dagbladet also prints the following account of the arrival of the expedi-

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—What is a flea—an animal or an insect? The House of Commons solemnly debated this question this afternoon, and decided that not even to please Brig. Gen. Cockerell could it class them as vertebrates.

The matter came up under the Performing Animals bill to regulate the treatment of stage animals. The House of Lords, while extending mercy to the larger dumb creatures, was deaf to possible sufferings of the flea.

General Cockerell was indignant. He said the Home Office instigated the Lords' action, and proceeded, he supposed, from the well-known maxim, De minimis non curat lex, which being interpreted meant that the flea doesn't worry the Home Secretary.

"The flea has no friends," said General Cockerell. "Why is no member of the Liberal Party present? Didn't the House know that the flea could jump thirty times its own height and display the greatest alacrity in rising from a given place? Surely that ought to commend itself to the Liberals.

"Then there was the Labor Party. The flea can pull eighty times its own weight. It is the most persistent and wonderful worker in the world, and is entirely independent of capitalists. Yet no arm is held out from the Labor Party.

"I am sorry to say it was ex-Speaker Lord Ullswater who led the vendetta in the Lords against the flea. I trust nothing was in the Speaker's chair which accounts for Lord Ullswater's ferocity. If it had been the woolsack there might have been something in it."

The House roared with laughter at General Cockerell's sallies, and laughed all the more when he ended by announcing that after all he would not try to amend the bill in defense of the flea, as he did not desire to make a serious constitutional quarrel between the two houses depend on the flea.

Prices of U. S. Securities The Highest Ever Reached

Two new high records for all time and one new high for the year were established yesterday in the prices of United States Government securities.

Liberty Bond first 4¼s sold at 102.26, the highest price they have ever reached, and Treasury 4s also reached their highest at 103.20. Liberty second 4¼s set a new high for the year at 101.19.

Accumulations of funds and easy money rates, even for comparatively long maturities, have resulted in large investments in Government securities. Much of the present buying is believed to represent the concentration of funds which will be paid in interest and dividends on July 1. The banks are finding it difficult to place the temporary excess in the money market, where the demand for loans is relatively small and the rates low. As a result it is understood that many banks are finding it to advantage to place their excess funds temporarily in Government securities. In addition there has been heavy buying for permanent investment by interests that consider the yields on Government securities attractive, even at the present high prices, in view of the double advantages of safety and tax-exemption.

BEGIN WIDE INQUIRY INTO RADIUM DEATHS

Eight Investigations to Determine if New Occupational Disease Has Developed.

NOTED SCIENTISTS ENLISTED

Dr. R. A. Millikan, Nobel Prize-Winner, to Examine Tissues From Body of Latest Victim.

Dr. Harrison S. Martland, Essex County physician and chief pathologist of the Newark City Hospital, announced yesterday that he would send tissues from the body of Mrs. Sarah T. Maillefer of East Orange, N. J., to Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan of California for laboratory tests to determine the exact cause of death.

Mrs. Maillefer, whose funeral will be held today, was the seventh employe of the East Orange plant of the United States Radium Corporation whose death has been attributed to a new occupational disease believed to be "radium necrosis." Six victims were women workers employed in painting watch dials with a radium solution and accustomed to wetting their paint brushes with their lips in a way that is believed to have introduced radium into their systems and caused their deaths.

Dr. Millikan is recognized as one of the leading scientists of the world. He received the Nobel Prize in physics in 1923 for isolating and measuring the electron, the smallest electrical unit. He is director of the Norman Bridge Laboratory of Physics and Chairman of the administrative council of the California Institute of Technology, both in Pasadena. He has carried on many laboratory experiments with radium.

The Essex County physician also said that he would ask a professor of physics at Columbia University to assist in the examination.

Eight investigations are under way or will be held to establish the precise cause of the death of the factory workers and to seek a means of preventing further deaths from the same cause in the future. The United States Department of Labor, the New Jersey State Department of Labor, the Association for Labor Legislation, the Consumers' League of New Jersey, the Health Department of the Oranges, the Prudential Insurance Company, the Radium Corporation and the county physician will make these inquiries.

Scientists in the employ of the Radium Corporation are now making an investigation in preparation for the trial of the $75,000 damage suit brought against the corporation by Miss Marjorie Carlough, Mrs. Maillefer's sister, an employe of the concern for six years and now a patient in a local hospital. This case will probably be tried in September and is expected to develop a battle of experts over the effect, known and probable, of radium.

May Have Far-reaching Results.

"This is too important a matter to be rushed," Dr. Martland said. "It is not only important to those engaged in radium work and those who have capital invested, but it is important to the medical profession and especially those engaged in X-ray work. We are just beginning to get wise that death from some known disease may be brought about by an occupational poisoning."

The county authorities stuck the trail of this alleged new poison seven months ago and since that time Dr. Martland has been pursuing his investigation. It was because of previous work that he was able to detect in the death of Mrs. Maillefer from "pernicious anaemia" all the symptoms that had been present in the other deaths and was led to decide upon a thorough laboratory test instead of certifying natural causes for death. He pointed out yesterday that if his theory was that an active and new poison is at work was correct it is probable that hundreds of deaths among workers in these materials in many parts of the country, certified as due to natural causes, were the result of poisoning.

Seven months ago two dentists, Drs. Barry and Davidson, called attention to three girls, employes of the radium corporation, whom they were treating for pyorrhea. When a tooth was pulled it was found that the gum would not heal and necrosis of the edge of the jawbone developed. Dr. Martland saw the girls and came to the conclusion that back of

CONNOLLY LINES UP FOR HYLAN SUBWAY; ROUTE IS VALIDATED

Estimate Board Approves Queens Section of Mayor's Proposed $542,000,000 System.

STEINWAY LOOP INCLUDED

"That Spoils the Hylan-Connolly Fight," Says Borough President After the Vote.

BUS FRANCHISE GRANTED

Crowd Carrying Banners Cheers the Action—Craig the Only Opponent.

Borough President Maurice E. Connolly, of Queens, swung into line for Mayor Hylan's proposed $542,000,000 independent municipal subway yesterday and the Board of Estimate at the end of a long session validated the Queens routes proposed by the Board of Transportation with one slight change and with one proviso by Mr. Connolly.

The change was the inclusion in the Board of Transportation's plans of the so-called Steinway loop. This was the result of a conference between Mr. Connolly, John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, and residents of the Steinway section. The loop will leave the Jackson Avenue line at Steinway Avenue and will swing through Steinway Avenue and Broadway to rejoin the Jackson Avenue line near Elmhurst. It will be about half a mile in length and will cost about $3,000,000 additional, $2,150,000 for actual construction and $850,000 for purchase of property.

The proviso was seemingly Mr. Connolly's own idea and permitted him to vote for the validation of the routes and at the same time declare against one feature of the Transportation Board's plan that has aroused great opposition in Queens, the proposal to make the subway in Queens Boulevard an open cut. Mr. Connolly announced that he would vote for approval of the route but added that, when it became time to appropriate money for construction, he would insist that the line in Queens Boulevard be built as a covered subway. It will cost about $20,000,000 additional to construct a covered subway.

The action by the board completed the validation of all the routes proposed by the Board of Transportation for Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens. As Richmond has no place directly in the city's proposed subway system, that left only the Brooklyn routes, which have been opposed by President Joseph A. Guider of that borough, unvalidated.

As Mr. Delaney expressed it, "Brooklyn is out on a limb." However, the matter of the Brooklyn routes will be considered at a special meeting of the Board of Estimate on July 1.

"Spoils" Hylan-Connolly Fight.

"That spoils the Hylan-Connolly fight the newspapers were talking about," said Mr. Connolly after the vote validating the Queens routes had been taken.

"We will spoil a few other fights before we are finished," commented Mayor Hylan, smiling.

"Is this a correct statement?" the Mayor then asked Mr. Delaney. "Every route proposed by the Board of Transportation for the Boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx and Queens has been approved."

"That is a correct statement, Mr. Mayor," Mr. Delaney assented with a smile.

Mr. Delaney explained that much of the opposition to certain features of the Queens routes proposed by his board had arisen through misunderstanding. He said that the proposal to build an open cut subway in Queens Boulevard had been made with a view of economy and that the board always had favored covering it when the city had the money available.

The board's action in validating the Queens routes seemed acceptable to the spectators, many of whom remained until nearly 6 o'clock to be there when it happened. Many in the large crowd which had been at City Hall earlier in the day had left by that time, but enough were present to applaud the board's action.

One of the most demonstrative contingents was that from Brownsville, which enthusiastically cheered the Mayor and his colleagues for granting a six months' franchise to the Eastern Parkway,

SINCLAIR WINS IN TEAPOT DOME LEASE; COURT FINDS NO FRAUD OR COLLUSION; GOVERNMENT WILL APPEAL JUDGMENT

TWO DECISIONS CONTRARY

APPEAL TO HIGHER COURT

DOHENY COUNSEL ELATED

F. J. Hogan, Now Preparing an Appeal, Says the Two Cases Are Identical.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 19.—The decision of Judge Kennedy in the Federal District Court of Wyoming validating the lease of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to the Sinclair interests was hailed here by lawyers for the Doheny interests, lessees of the Elk Hills naval oil reserves, as not only a great victory for the Sinclair interests but in many respects a vindication of the Elk Hills lease to the Pan-American Petroleum Company, of which Edward L. Doheny is the head.

The decision at Cheyenne brings about a situation with few, if any, parallels in the history of the Federal courts. In the Doheny case, Judge Paul J. McCormick of the Federal Court of the Southern District of California in nearly every important point in issue took a position exactly opposite to that taken by Judge Kennedy. The two opinions being reconcilable, the cases now go to the Appellate Courts to decide which of these two Federal Judges, of equal rank, was right in the interpretation of the law.

Judge Kennedy in the Sinclair case holds that the secrecy about the naval oil leases was requested by the Navy Department, was based on the necessity of keeping confidential the Pearl Harbor fuel station project, and was for military purposes.

Judge McCormick held that the secrecy was not for military purposes, that the Pearl Harbor project had nothing to do with it, and that it was in order to keep Congress and the public from knowing what was going on.

Differ on Denby's Action.

Judge Kennedy holds that Secretary Denby, through Acting Rear Admiral J. K. Robison, directed the entire naval lease policy. Judge McCormick held that Secretary Denby was a merely passive instrument, and that he did not even know or comprehend the contracts and the leases he signed. On the subject of what Mr. Denby did, the testimony in both the Sinclair and the Doheny cases was identical. In each case all of that testimony was given by Admiral Robison.

Judge Kennedy holds that there was no necessity for Secretaries Denby and Fall going back to Congress for authority to make the naval oil leases; that the laws passed by Congress in 1920 gave complete authority. Judge McCormick criticised the Interior and Navy Departments for their failure to go back to Congress.

Judge Kennedy commends the acts of Admiral Robison; Dr. H. Foster Bain, Director of the United States Bureau of Mines, who retires to enter private work on the first of next month; Mr. A. W. Ambrose, former chief petroleum technologist of the Bureau of Mines; E. C. Finney, Assistant Secretary of the Interior Department, who has been in that department thirty years; Assistant Secretary Theodore Roosevelt and Secretary Denby.

Judge McCormick, while holding that Admiral Robison was not actuated by ulterior or improper motives, nevertheless criticized his judgment, and his opinion in effect held that Bain and the others were the pliant tools with which

Beebe and Party Are Chilled at the Equator; Wear Sweaters as They Haul in Strange Fish

By WILLIAM BEEBE.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Independent Wireless to Managua, Nicaragua, thence Tropical Radio to New Orleans.

S. S. ARCTURUS, June 14 (Delayed by Static).—Straddling the Equator, as we have been for several days, our position being zero latitude and 91 east longitude, the members of this deep sea expedition of the New York Zoological Society are happy to recommend the so-called torrid belt as a Summer resort. The temperature is so chilly that sweaters are needed.

The last two days have been spent in Tagus Cove, Albemarle Island, diving to study shore fish, then catching them for our collection.

Mount Williams and Mount Whiton, the two volcanoes discovered by us in eruption on April 10, are still active.

The Arcturus has just left the channel between Albemarle and Narborough, where we found a great current running on both sides of the former island, causing a high eddy into which much sea life is being carried.

The water is swarming with voracious fish, snatching at any bait. A few hours' fishing was enough to fill the ship's icebox to capacity with groupers and mackerel.

Penguins and flightless cormorants swim around our small boats, and sea lions and sharks compete with us for each hooked fish.

Dwight Franklin, Don Dickerman and Dr. D. W. Cady harpooned a giant ray, eighteen feet across, and it was only after a two hours' struggle that we managed to hoist the fish aboard. Rays are plentiful here.

The Arcturus resembles a whaler during the "cutting in" process just now, as portions of the huge ray are scattered everywhere. The specimen was far too large to preserve entire, although we have preserved it for our records in photographs, paintings and models.

This is a wonderful place for our diving. Seaweed gardens wave in the surge and golden groupers glint through the long fronds.

A giant whale shark, a rare species, coming alongside the Arcturus, was observed by Professor W. K. Gregory and six members of the staff. They estimate that the whale shark was at least thirty feet long.

Seventeen new species of fish and octopi have entered our laboratories in the last two days.

Pomerene Promises Appeal; Roberts to Meet Him Monday

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, O., June 19.—The decision upholding the lease of the Teapot Dome oil fields will be appealed imediately, former Senator Atlee Pomerene, one of the special prosecutors, declared here tonight.

"That is the only comment I care to make," he added.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia, assocated with former Senator Pomerene, said today he was confident an appeal would be taken from the decision of the district court in Wyoming, in which the lease was upheld.

"Senator Pomerene expects to be in Washington on Monday. I will probably see him there at that time," he said.

CAPITAL EXPECTS SUPREME COURT TEST

BORAH BACKS GOVERNMENT

Says He Holds With the California Judgment—Sinclair Counsel Pleased.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Although Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special counsel for the Government in the naval oil lease cases, were not in Washington today and nobody in authority felt justified, in their absence, in predicting what results would follow the decision of Judge Kennedy at Cheyenne, there seemed to be a general conviction among others interested that the oil lease cases would go to the Supreme Court for final determination.

The fact that the Federal Court in Los Angeles rendered a decision in the Elk Hills oil lease case against the Doheny interests, generally at variance with the decision in the Teapot Dome case, gave assurance, it was contended, that the whole issue involved in the leasing of Government oil fields to private concerns could not be adjusted except by the highest judicial tribunal.

Efforts to obtain some comment from President Coolidge or the White House on the Teapot Dome decision were unavailing. All that was said at the White House was that the President preferred to have any statement come from the Government's special counsel. To this was added, in response to an inquiry, that, as far as the President could see, the decision at Cheyenne in exonerating Captain J. K. Robison, engineer-in-chief of the navy, of the blame in connection with the Teapot Dome lease did not give the President any authority to carry out his effort to promote Captain Robison to the grade of Rear Admiral.

Depends on Selection Board.

Captain Robison, who now holds the temporary rank of Rear Admiral by virtue of his office as engineer-in-chief, was nominated for Rear Admiral in the permanent establishment during the last Congress, but the Senate failed to act on the nomination on account of his part in the oil lease matter. A few days ago the Naval Selection Board made selections of Captains for promotion to Rear Admiral, but Captain Robison's name was not in the list. It was explained at the White House that in the absence of a recommendation from the Selection Board with reference to Captain Robison the President could do nothing. And the Selection Board, it was explained, was not likely to meet again for some time.

At the Navy Department, while no responsible officer would permit himself to be quoted concerning the Teapot Dome decision, it was said there were a number of points of law as well as of fact that would enable the Government to take the Teapot Dome case to the Supreme Court on appeal.

In the absence of Messrs. Pomerene and Roberts, the course that will be followed by the Government in its effort to prosecute ex-Secretary Fall, Harry F. Sinclair and others on the charge of conspiracy in connection with the Teapot Dome lease, and have that lease declared invalid on the same ground, cannot be ascertained in Washington. It was pointed out, however, that the Doheny oil interests have already noted an appeal from the decision of the Los Angeles Federal Court that the Elk Hills naval oil leases were obtained through fraud and were invalid, and the Government, it is assumed, will follow the same course with reference to the adverse decision which it encountered in the Teapot Dome case.

Borah Backs California Decision.

Senator Borah, who has taken a deep interest in the naval oil lease cases, said, after he learned of the decision at Cheyenne, that he was struck by the difference between the view of the Fed-

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 19.—Harry F. Sinclair oil interests won against every contention of the Government, in a judgment delivered today by Judge T. Blake Kennedy, on the question of the validity of the Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserve lease.

From this judgment the Government will appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Eighth District, and if necessary to the Supreme Court. Announcement that the appeal would be taken was made by Federal District Attorney Albert D. Walton, after a telegraphic conference with Atlee Pomerene and Owen D. Roberts, special counsel for the Government in the case.

Judge Kennedy's decision, entered eighty-four days after he took the case under advisement, finds against the Government on every point raised by the Federal counsel, and dismisses the Government's bill in equity. The decision upholds the authority of the Interior and Navy Departments to make the lease, dismisses as unproved the contention that the lease was negotiated through collusion and fraud between Harry F. Sinclair and the then Secretary of the Interior, Albert B. Fall, and upholds the legality of the supplemental agreement whereunder Government royalty oil from the lease was exchanged for naval fuel oil storage facilities at Portsmouth, N. H., and elsewhere.

Upholds Harding's Action.

The judgment upholds the action of President Harding in issuing an order empowering the Interior Department to act in connection with arranging naval oil reserve leases. It also vindicates Acting Rear Admiral J. Keeler Robison, to whom the Senate has denied promotion from his permanent grade of naval captain to the permanent rank of rear admiral.

The decision goes exhaustively into the pleadings, the facts and the legal questions involved and runs to about 18,000 words.

In concluding the memorandum of his decision, Judge Kennedy says:

"In reaching a conclusion in this case we fully realize the degree of unpopularity with which it will be received. This is true, in the nature of things, because the great general public is reached only with the sentimental features surrounding the transactions involved, and being largely in the dark as to all the other multitudes of circumstances with which the case is surrounded, and knowing perhaps less of the great legal principles which the experience of the ages has taught mankind must control in dealing with the rights of persons and property."

Summing up his conclusion that the contract for lease of the Teapot reserve should stand, Judge Kennedy says:

"The fact that this appears to be a good contract for the Government, as testified to by those witnesses who are qualified to speak of its character, coupled with the fact that the courts should be concerned in sustaining formal grants upon which the rights and welfare of many may depend, impels the conclusion that such contracts should not be set aside for light and frivolous reasons, unless fraud in connection with their execution is clearly shown."

Sees Congress's Intention Fulfilled.

The memorandum of decision concludes with the assertion that Congress has authority to delegate to the heads of executive departments of the Government functions such as were exercised by the Navy and Interior Departments in the leasing of the Teapot reserve and the disposition of oil from the reserve.

"We have no quarrel with the theory that the Congress should have and has the constitutional power to regulate the manner in which property of the United States shall be handled by the executive branch," said Judge Kennedy, "but we do maintain that in the exercise of that power it may by appropriate legislative authority delegate officers of that department (the executive department) to handle Government property in an unrestricted way and in accordance with a vested discretion.

"Therefore, it is not only possible, but very probable in this case, that the action taken by the Secretary of the Navy, if the contracts are fairly and honestly carried out, will actually conserve oil which would otherwise have been lost had not such action been taken, for, as to how far-reaching drainage may be, and how far oil pools may extend underground, is at present little known even by geologists themselves."

The question whether the danger of drainage of the Teapot Reserve through wells on adjacent property justified the leasing of the reserve, and the removal of its oil content by the lessee, was a prominent issue in the case.

Rejects Allegations of Fraud.

In discussing legal questions raised by the pleadings and evidence in the case, Judge Kennedy said:

"The Court has been impressed by two unusual situations not ordinarily found in a case of this character. First, although a conspiracy is one of the bases for annulment of the least, one alone of the many Government officials having taken an active part in its consummation is charged with corrupt and ulterior motives. We take it from the evidence and the expressed views of the plaintiff's counsel that although Denby, Roosevelt, Robison, Finney, Bain, Ambrose and Eddy had more or less of an intimate knowledge of the entire transaction, and some of them at least an active and persuasive influence in bringing it about, they must be considered as absolved from any incriminating fault as to fraudulent motive.

"Secondly, there is the significant lack of material damage to the Government which usually attends allegations of fraud, for in the case at bar no attempt has been made to show that the lease in controversy in itself was a bad lease for the Government, except perhaps theoretically by counsel, but on the other hand the testimony of the plaintiff's own witnesses who are competent to speak upon the subject tends to show that it is a lease much more favorable to the Government than they as oil operators would be willing to assume."

Concerning the contention of Government counsel that Fall brought about the issuance of the order by President Harding, under which negotiations incidental to the leasing of the naval reserves were conducted in the Interior Department, "for the purpose of enabling him (Fall) to carry out the plans under the alleged conspiracy," Judge Kennedy said:

"The evidence clearly shows that the negotiations preceding the execution of the lease (on the Teapot reserve) were actively, earnestly and completely participated in, if not dominated by, the Secretary of the Navy and his designated representative of that department, Admiral Robison.

"Denby gave specific instructions in his own handwriting and over his own initials as to what the proposed lease would contain, and Robison outlined and insisted upon the principal provisions of the lease which were challenged—and the fact remains that with respect to the lease in controversy, not a single significant act was performed without the advice and consent of Robison, the designated personal representative of the Secretary of the Navy, who testified that he consulted continuously with his chief in regard to every proposed move and plan—the lease was executed by the Secretary of the Navy after full and mature consideration and review of its contents, which must lead to the conclusion that the lease was his legitimate child, brought to life in the exercise of his official discretion.

"Admitting, for the sake of argument, that Fall suggested full development of the reserve by lease and the exchange of oil for fuel oil in storage, and Denby adopted the suggestion and executed the lease after mature consideration, as the evidence shows he did, to hold that it was not Denby's official act is, it seems to us, little short of branding him as an imbecile."

Finds No Secrecy in the Deal.

Concerning the Government's contention in support of its fraud allegations that the negotiations preliminary to the execution of the lease were conducted with secrecy, Judge Kennedy called attention to evidence that many persons in the Government service knew of the negotiations.

"As for example," he said, "excluding Fall, Denby and Robison, who were personally directing the plans and negotiations, we find the entire board known as the Council of the Secretary of the Navy, consisting of approximately fourteen men, discussing the plan which was eventually adopted.

"The most suspicious secretive act surrounding the transaction, at least so regarded by counsel for the plaintiff, appears to be the act of Secretary Fall in locking the lease in his desk upon leaving Washington on April 13, 1922, with instructions that the information should not be given out in regard to it just at that time, although the key to the desk was left with Saftary. Plaintiff's witness was advised of this and testifies that Secretary Fall gave as his reason at the time that he did not desire to have it given out until the California leases were signed and they then could be announced together as one achievement.

"In any event, the lease then having been signed, no particular advantage could be gained in communicating any conspiracy or fraudulent act by then maintaining secrecy, as the desired end had already been accomplished, whether legal or illegal, and no move was made by the Government to void the lease until some two years later. In this view, Fall's reason at least appears to be logical.

"As to the matter of secrecy with those making inquiry (before the lease was signed), the evidence when analyzed virtually amounts to a common business method of Fall, talking with only those whom he and Robison thought would be financially able to carry out a plan such as the Navy Department and his own department had in mind, which included the opening up of the entire Dome and the building of a pipe line. The information concerning the contemplated leasing of Teapot Dome had reached as far west as Denver a considerable time before the lease was granted."

Says Legal Advice Was Taken.

Turning to the contention of Government counsel that Fall did not consult the legal attachés of the Interior Department concerning the legality of the Teapot lease procedure, Judge Kennedy said:

"As to the charge that Secretary Fall refused to seek the advice of the solicitor in his own department, or the Attorney General of the United States, only one suggestion need be made. While the Secretary of the Interior is criticized in the bill for engineering the entire plan for leasing the Wyoming reserve, and with negotiating the lease and consummating it independent of the Navy Department, and with only a 'colorable attempt' on the part of the Secretary of the Navy to exercise his discretion, the evidence shows that when legal advice was thought necessary in regard to the legality of the proposed lease then under advisement, such advice was sought and received from the head of the legal staff in the Navy Department. Under the circumstances the criticism could scarcely reach further than an alleged error of judgment in the choice of lawyers.

"As to the charge that others (than Sinclair) were denied an opportunity to bid, and discouraged from bidding for the lease, the evidence, fairly analyzed, tends to disclose that negotiations were conducted with others of a certain class looking to the matter of a lease. As, for example, negotiations were actively pursued with the Texas Company, one of the largest companies engaged in oil production. The testimony is that inquiries were also made of some of the other larger companies, without bringing any results.

"It is admitted that no negotiations were opened with the Standard interests, because of the announced policy that those interests dominated the oil industry in the vicinity of the lands here in controversy, and that a lease to them would stifle competition in the sale of the Government's Salt Creek royalties.

"It is fairly inferable that many of the other organizations and individuals making inquiry in regard to a lease were in the class which Fall designated as 'irresponsible'; that is, in so far as being financially able to handle a project of the magnitude here contemplated.

"As to the Sinclair interests being 'Maggie in another dress,' referred to in the evidence and briefs of counsel for the plaintiff, it is fairly safe to assume that all oil operating interests are 'Maggies' at times, when their business and economic interests seem to require it. Furthermore, if it be admitted, as the Court understands it to be in this case, that the lease itself might have been lawfully granted by the Secretary of the Navy without competitive bidding—and it is nowhere required in the act of June 4th, nor is it within the scope of any other law—it is difficult to figure out why there should be a criticism of not seeking competition, unless it is coupled with a showing that the lease actually granted was a poor one so far as the plaintiff is concerned, or would have been improved by the use of advertisement for competitive bids."

No Proof of Liberty Bond Bribe.

Concerning the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., transaction in crude oil, where under the Continental was to purchase 33,333,333 barrels of crude oil from the H. M. Humphreys interests and resell it immediately to the Prairie Oil and Gas Company and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company, at a profit of 25 cents a barrel, certain profits from which were distributed in the form of Liberty Bonds and certain of which bonds were traced by the Government to the possession of relatives of Fall, Judge Kennedy said:

"Counsel for the plaintiff would have the Court draw the inference that because one of the Sinclair companies other than the Mammoth Oil Company was the purchaser of certain oils theretofore contracted for by Blackmer (then President of the Midwest Refining Company) from Humphreys, in which purchase other oil companies were likewise interested, that Sinclair is presumably guilty of fraud because some of the bonds which had been purchased by the company which Blackmer had nominated as his agency for consummating his contract were found in the possession of Fall's relatives. No connecting link other than the fact that one of the Sinclair companies was, with another company, the purchaser of this oil, together with additional oils from Humphreys under an independent contract and the presence of Sinclair in consummating the contracts, is offered upon which to predicate such inference and assumption, which counsel ask the Court to grace with the solemnity of a judicial finding of fact.

"In the first place, we have been unable to find anything in the evidence, and counsel offer nothing in the briefs, upon which to predicate a finding that Fall and Sinclair were in personal contact before Dec. 31, 1921, at Fall's ranch in New Mexico, although it is possible that the name of Sinclair, among others, might have been mentioned in the conferences between the officials of the Navy and Interior Departments before that time as one of the men who would be financially able to take over and carry out a lease such as was contemplated.

"The Continental Trading Company deal with Humphreys occurred more than a month prior, which strongly tends to negative the supposition of a conspiracy between the two, as well as lacking a substantial element in the establishment of fraud.

Says Blackmer Was the Dealer.

"Again, while the apparent basis of the refusal of Osler (President of the Continental Company) to answer in the Canadian depositions was that he would not reveal the name of his client who employed him to organize the Continental Trading Company and which counsel for the plaintiff sought to have him directed by the court to answer, the evidence in this case discloses quite plainly that his client was Blackmer and not Sinclair. The testimony of Humphreys and Thomas clearly discloses that Osler and the Continental Trading Company were the creatures of Blackmer, which leaves us, in the transaction, with no connection between Sinclair and Fall except by mere suspicion or guess, and even this at a time considerably in advance of any established contact between them.

"Again, in order to reach the conclusion recommended, it must be assumed that the double purchase and sale oil transaction was a 'faked-up' transaction, instead of one in the regular course of business, and that the officials of the participating companies, from Humphreys to the Sinclair Crude Oil and Prairie Oil and Gas, were knowingly participating in the 'fake,' which is equivalent to a charge of assisting in the bribing of a Federal officer, and that in the consummation of which they are not shown to have had any interest. Upon the evidence here there is an easier way out, which is to assume that the transaction was bona fide.

"It is at least quite plausible to assume that the Continental Trading Company transaction was a legitimate one, and was carried in the regular course of business. Blackmer, who was not associated in any way with the Sinclair campanics, as far as the evidence shows, negotiated a purchase of oils from Humphreys and a sale of the same oils to third parties, who were large oil purchasing companies on the market. On the face of the transaction, at least, he acted as a broker.

"As to why he designated a company instead of himself to become the intervening party is not disclosed, nor do we know that it is material, inasmuch as it is not shown that Sinclair was interested in the company or that any other connection between Fall and Sinclair was disclosed in regard to it. Blackmer may have had people other than either one of these interested with him in his deal, and for that reason may have found it necessary and convenient to have organized a company. Being an officer of the Mid-West Refining Company, he may not have desired to testify in regard to the details of the transaction for the reason that it might be thought by his company that he should be held accountable for his profits derived in his brokerage transactions, or he may have been desirous of avoiding income taxes, or his refusal may have been based upon the ground that as there was no connection between his transaction and the Mammoth lease, that it was not the concern of other people in their investigation of an entirely different and disconnected transaction."

Several Refused to Testify.

Blackmer was subpoenaed by the Government in the Teapot trial, but was in Europe, and when a Government representative was sent to Paris to take his deposition he refused to testify concerning the Continental Trading Company affair, as did also J. E. O'Neil, former President of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, who also was in Paris.

The Government also failed to obtain testimony from Colonel Stuart, Chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, who was President when the Blackmer oil sale and the resale were consummated, and who could not be located by Government process servers, who were represented as having sought him before the trial and to be seeking him during the trial.

Continuing concerning the Continental transaction testimony, Judge Kennedy said:

"In the realm of speculation, we may allow our imaginations to roam at will. Stuart and O'Neil did not testify, although it appears that Stuart might have been available."

After discussing at some length rules of evidence and court opinions concerning acceptance by a court of evidence of the character of that involving the Continental Company transactions through which the Government sought to establish a bribery transaction between Sinclair and Fall, Judge Kennedy continued:

"The trouble with the application of the principle contended for by counsel for the plaintiff in this case is that no facts, the proof of which we are asked to deduce by inference, are laid at the door of Sinclair. The entire transaction, in so far as it was participated in by Sinclair, was fully revealed by other witnesses, and presumably, if we are to presume anything on account of the failure of Sinclair to testify, if he elected to so testify his testimony would have been to the effect that he knew nothing further in regard to the Continental Trading Company transaction than was disclosed by the other witness in the case. A different situation might have been presented had Blackmer been in the place of Sinclair, if we are to consider as admissible the evidence in regard to bonds purchased by the Continental Trading Company and subsequently finding their way into the possession of Fall's relative. For aught we know, there may have been independent business relationship, legitimate or otherwise, between Blackner and Fall, as neither is made a party to this suit.

Admits Suspicion Is Aroused.

"As repeatedly stated by the courts, fraud cannot be presumed, but must be proved.

"It may be admitted that the transaction arouses suspicion, but further than this the Court does not feel justified in going toward a finding in favor of plaintiff, in view of the principles of law announced. This Court feels that it must be left to some higher court to find from the evidence what seem to be fatal missing links or to extend the principles of law so as to cover a situation as it here apparently exists."

After discussing a transfer of $25,000 of Liberty bonds from Sinclair to Fall in June, 1923, which evidence adduced during the trial indicated was in connection with service by Fall as an attorney for Sinclair in a Russian transaction long subsequent to the Teapot Dome lease and to Fall's retirement from the Secretaryship of the Interior, Judge Kennedy said that in view of this evidence this transfer of bonds "falls short of constituting a fraudulent transaction in connection with the issues raised here."

"It must follow," said the Court in summing up his conclusions concerning the Government's allegations of fraud in the negotiation of the Teapot Dome lease, "that the allegations of fraud contained in the bill have not been sustained."

Judge Kennedy then sustained the motion of defense counsel, made during the trial of the suit, that all evidence concerning the Continental transactions be stricken from the record of the case.

Taking up the attacks made by the Government upon the legality of the Teapot lease as a valid contract under the act of June 4, 1920, Judge Kennedy said:

"The divergent contentions between counsel for the plaintiff and counsel for the defendant, when analyzed, are substantially as follows:

"Plaintiff contends that the act of June 4, 1920, is in the nature of a general enabling act, permitting the Secretary of the Navy to do certain things in connection with the naval reserves under the then existing provisions of the general laws; while the defendant contends that the act of June 4 is a full and complete legislative enactment in itself, directed to a specific subject, and in itself furnishing a full and complete guidance, direction and authority to the official to whom it presumes to speak.

No Dispute on Congress's Power.

"It is not in dispute here that Congress had the authority to make laws respecting the manner in which reserves should be used or disposed of.

"It would seem pertinent, therefore, first, to determine whether or not this act has in itself the fullness attributed to it by counsel for the defendant before considering the several objectionable features of the lease in respect to which counsel for the plaintiff contend that the law has been transcended.

"Reverting to a consideration of the act, it is found that the Secretary of the Navy is affirmatively directed to take possession of the naval reserves. He is next directed to conserve, develop, use and operate the same. In performing this duty of conserving, developing, using and operating the reserves he is permitted to do so directly or by contract, lease or other method. As to the product which may be realized from the reserves, he is permitted to use, store, exchange or sell it for the benefit of the United States. For the purpose of carrying out the duty imposed upon him an appropriation of $500,000 is made available out of certain funds in the Treasury. A proviso is attached that such appropriated sums shall be reimbursed.

"In between the direction to the Secretary of the Navy as to what he is to do with the reserves, and the directions as to the manner in which he is to do it, are found the words 'in his discretion.' Some difference of opinion has arisen as to which set of so-called directions this phrase applies; that is, whether it applies to what he is directed to do or to the manner in which he is to do that which he is directed to do, in connection with the reserves.

"It is difficult to reconcile its application to the things directed to be done, because they are in the conjunctive, the word 'and' appearing immediately before the last of them. This would seem to imply that if it were possible he should do all the things named for him to do without the exercise of any discretion on his part, to wit: 'Conserve, develop, use and operate.'

"If the word 'conserve' be used in its larger meaning and be held to include the saving from loss as distinguished from the more limited meaning of holding the content in the ground, then the Secretary could, under a fair construction, conserve, develop, use and operate all at the same time, or at least the doing by him of the four things would merge one into the other.

Applies Discretion to Manner.

"If the term 'in his discretion' be held to apply to the manner of doing the things he is directed to do, it would more naturally apply because the manner is indicated in the disjunctive, consisting of four distinct things, to wit: Directly, that is by doing the things under his general supervision, or by contract or by lease, or otherwise. It will, therefore, be seen that the term 'in his discretion would logically apply to the direction of Congress as to the manner in which he is directed to carry out the things which he is directed to do.

"The difficulty with the whole latter construction is that there is no comma after the word 'same,' and that if it were intended to apply to the manner of carrying out his direction, the phrase would more properly find place in the context immediately following the word 'otherwise.'

"However, assuming that the term 'conserve' is used in the larger sense which has been indicated, and which meaning we think must be given it in connection with the surrounding circumstances applying to the general purposes which must have inspired the act, this application of the discretion to the four things which the Secretary is directed to do, does no violence.

"This must be the meaning of the term 'conserve,' when we consider that the other three terms, 'develop, use and operate,' are so interrelated that it would be difficult to tell when in doing any one of them he would not at the same time be doing the other. For example, how could he develop the property without using it? How could he operate it without using it? How could he use it without either developing or operating it? If he should operate it, would he not in a sense be developing it, and vice versa? And if he did all the three for the purpose of saving the product, would he not be conserving it?

"As to the manner in which he is directed to dispose of the product, we find this also to be in the disjunctive, and to include four things, to wit: 'Use,' 'store,' 'exchange,' 'sell.' The word 'or' before the latter word here implies discretion, in that it gave him the right to do any of the four things mentioned, or all of them, if his discretion dictated, provided, of course, that the thing he did was in the nature of carrying out the general purposes of the act.

"To use the oil and gas product naturally means, in this connection, its application to the naval purposes of the United States; to store the product means placing it in some position for a future use; to exchange the product means transferring it to another and receiving therefor something to be used in carrying out the general purposes of the act; and to sell the product means to dispose of it and receive for it a consideration of money.

Calls Navy Authority Sweeping.

"It is difficult to conceive a more sweeping authority given to the Secretary of the Navy than is contained in these four words, unless to them be added the authority to give away or destroy.

"This construction unavoidably leads to the conclusion that the act empowered the Secretary of the Navy to do specific things in and about a certain subject. But counsel for the plaintiff argue that this makes a conflict between the law and some of the general laws prescribing the manner in which certain things must be done by the Secretary of the Navy in the way of advertising for bids for fuel for the navy, the construction of storage tanks at places not designated by Congress, the construction of storage tanks under competitive bidding, and the like. It therefore becomes necessary to ascertain what relationship legislation applying to a particular subject bears upon the general laws relating to the same things."

Judge Kennedy then cited decisions bearing upon the relationship of general laws and special laws, and continued:

"Upon a construction of what the act itself clearly means, and in view of the rule laid down by courts, it must accordingly be held that the act in question must stand and be construed as a special act, and the things to be done thereunder are taken out of the general laws relating generally thereto, but that in no sense is it to be construed as repealing those general laws, this law only applying to the subject which it specifically treats, to wit, naval reserves.

"One of the contentions of counsel for the plaintiff, however, is that the word 'exchange' should not in its ordinary and natural construction, in the place in which it is found, be held to mean that the Secretary could exchange the royalty oils derived from the land for fuel oil in storage, but that its meaning should be limited to simply the exchange of royalty oils for other oils.

"We think that an answer to this is that when the act authorizes the Secretary to store oils it means that he is enabled to devise ways and means for the purposes of such storage; and, further, that it is a fair construction to say that he may exchange the oils for anything which in their nature would be carrying out the general purposes of the act.

"The argument is specious which would attempt to say that if he were empowered to exchange royalty oil for storage or fuel oil in storage for the purpose of the navy, that he could exchange for a battleship, or anything else, as it is clear that this would not be in consonance with the general purposes of the act, to wit, to prevent a loss of the oil and make it available for naval purposes.

"Again, as to the places of storage in carrying out its direction, then that portion of the act will be a nullity, because Congress had designated no places to store oil.

"As to the alleged sale of the royalty oils which counsel for plaintiff contend the contract calls for, and therefore that the proceeds must have been in cash and turned into the Treasury, we view the use of the term 'sale' as used in the contract of only comparative significance, but rely more upon a fair construction of what the transaction really was as gathered from the context.

"While the lease says that the royalty oils were to be sold to the lessee, it specifies that certificates representing the purchase price should be delivered by the lessee to the lessor, which certificates might in turn be exchanged for fuel oil in storage, to be constructed under a supplemental contract by the lessee, the exchange for fuel oil at places to be designated, the exchange for gasoline, kerosene, lubricating oils and other petroleum products required for the navy or for cash, these being expressed in the way of options by the lessor.

"Under this arrangement the certificates may have the character of a representative of value ad interim, and the nature of the transaction which it represents is not really determined until such time as the lessor exercises the option.

Defines Exchange and Sale.

"If the certificates be used for the liquidation of indebtedness in regard to fuel oil in storage, the transaction is an exchange; likewise with regard to their use for fuel oil, furnished for naval purposes at designated points, as well as for securing kerosene, lubricating oils and the like; but if the certificates are redeemed for cash it then may be fairly assumed that the transaction takes on the nature and character of a sale, and in this view it may be conceded that the proceeds in cash realized from such a redemption must be covered into the Treasury of the United States for the reason that the act probably does not go so far as to authorize the expenditure of the cash realized from the sales of the royalty oil.

"As to the appropriation made in the act for the purposes of carrying it into effect, it seems to this Court that in the light of the analysis of the act itself, considering that it empowers the Secretary of the Navy to directly develop and operate the lease as distinguished from doing those things by contract or lease, that it was the clear intention of Congress to make available a reasonable amount to start that development and operation should he elect to himself assume this burden of its personal direction."

"Counsel for the plaintiff contend that it was clearly the policy and intent of Congress to have this oil retained in the ground," Judge Kennedy said in a brief comment on the "Government policy" emphasized by the plaintiff's counsel in argument and brief.

"We cannot follow the argument to this conclusion," the Judge continued, "for the reason that it seems to us there has been no constant policy."

While the executive order under which management of the naval reserves was transferred from the Navy to the Interior Department is alleged in the Government's bill of complaint, Judge Kennedy said he held that there had been a virtual abandonment of this ground by counsel for the Government.

FALL EXPRESSES CONFIDENCE.

Says He Relies on the Courts "Despite Another Decision."

THREE RIVERS, N. M., June 19 (AP).—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, has no statement to make on today's Teapot Dome decision, "except to reiterate my unshaken confidence in the courts, despite another recent decision," he told the Associated Press tonight.

"Knowing the entire good faith of the Secretary of the Navy and his assistants and myself and my assistants, as well as Mr. Sinclair, upon one hand, and Colonel Doheny upon the other, with this confidence in the ultimate integrity of the courts, I have never entertained the remotest doubt as to the final outcome of the civil trials concerning the oil lease, nor of any criminal charges, despite the ravings of some Senators and despite methods of Senatorial committees," declared the former Secretary.

"Eventually those who care for the same will be fully informed as to my side of the oil matters," Mr. Fall continued, "but I must decline to go into this phase of the matter at present, as I have never fought a law case for a client nor for myself through the columns of the press."

eral Judge at Los Angeles and the Federal Judge at Cheyenne as to the authority of the President of the United States to transfer Government oil reserves to private companies under lease.

President Harding issued an Executive order for this transfer, and it was the contention of the Government in the Los Angeles and Cheyenne trials that he had exceeded his legal right in doing this. Commenting on this phase of the oil cases, Senator Borah said:

"From the point of the President's authority to make the contract, I believe that the California Judge's interpretation of the law was correct."

Further than this Mr. Borah declined to discuss the decision of Judge Kennedy at Cheyenne today.

As the situation concerning the oil lease cases appears to stand, it has become more complicated than ever, in view of the fact that two Federal Judges have handed down directly contrary opinions with regard to important questions of law and fact of the same general nature, and, with reference to the authority of the President in the oil lease matter, of identical character.

One Court has held that there was conspiracy to obtain the oil leases from the Government; another Court has held that there was no conspiracy. One Court has held that it was illegal to permit the leasing of the naval oil reserves to private concerns; another Court finds that the leasing was entirely legal. It will be the business of the Supreme Court to adjust these varying views and determine the issue finally.

To what extent the Cheyenne decision will have a bearing on the criminal indictments against ex-Secretary Fall, Harry F. Sinclair, E. L. Doheny and others returned by a Federal Grand Jury in Washington is problematical. The Government is preparing to go on with the trial of these defendants. The charge of conspiracy, which figured in the hearings at Los Angeles and Cheyenne, is a central issue in the alleged criminal aspects of the oil leases.

George P. Hoover of this city, one of the Sinclair counsel who took part in the trial at Cheyenne, made this statement tonight:

"We are very much delighted with the decision. The decision of Judge Kennedy is a complete vindication of our client, as well as of the officials of the Government who participated in the consummation of the lease to the Mammoth Oil Company. The determination that there was no fraud is thoroughly borne out by the evidence. The conclusion of the Judge is that the legality of the leases is firmly founded in the law. As I understand the decision, it sustains every point made by the defense. The Government may appeal, but there can be no doubt as to the result in the Appellate Court."

CONTRARY OPINIONS IN TWO OIL CASES

Secretary Fall carried out his plan to lease naval oil lands to private interests.

Judge Kennedy holds that the law, which Senator Walsh said did not authorize these leases, expressly authorized them. This is one of the law points on which Judge McCormick and Judge Kennedy agreed. Judge McCormick held that in spite of the broad authority given by the law, the contracts were void because under an order issued by President Harding on May 31, 1921, the Secretary of the Interior exercised certain functions over naval oil lands leasing. Judge Kennedy holds that this was legal, and that President Harding's order was entirely valid, to bring the Interior Department and its petroleum and land divisions to the assistance of the Navy Department.

Doheny's Counsel Gratified.

Frank J. Hogan of Washington, D. C., chief counsel for Edward L. Doheny, who is in Los Angeles preparing the appeal from Judge McCormick's decision to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco, said that "either Judge Kennedy of Judge McCormick is entirely wrong."

"Judge Kennedy," said Mr. Hogan, "shows that judicial independence which we all expected in these cases when we got into the Federal courts. It will be noted that Judge Kennedy says in his decision that he knows it will be an unpopular one, but that did not deter him from rendering it. My confidence, and the confidence of Mr. Doheny, in the ultimate right determination of these cases in the United States Court was not shaken by the amazing opinion of Judge McCormick, and is strengthened by the decision rendered by Judge Kennedy today.

"We are naturally gratified by the decision of Judge Kennedy, handed down today in the Sinclair oil case in the United States Court at Cheyenne, Wyo. On every legal point common to both the Pan-American case and the Sinclair case Judge Kennedy upholds our contention. Judge Kennedy holds, and rightly holds, thta the secrecy maintained by the Government was for military purposes, having to do with the security of our nation. This is in accordance with all of the evidence, and is absolutely true.

"Judge Kennedy holds that Admiral Robison, Dr. H. Foster Bain, Director of the United States Bureau of Mines; A. W. Ambrose, Chief of the Petroleum Division of the Interior Department; E. C. Finney, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, and Secretary Denby of the Navy, all acted in good faith and for the best interests of the Government.

"It will not be forgotten that these are the men who negotiated the Pan American contracts and leases. Their motives in the Sinclair case were precisely the same as the motives in the Pan-American case.

Says Two Cases Are Identical.

"There is no distinguishing between the two cases. On the real facts, either Judge McCormick or Judge Kennedy is wrong. The Wyoming Judge refused to follow the Los Angeles Judge. Every member of the Doheny legal staff believes beyond question that the Court of Appeals will follow Judge Kennedy and that the decision which we have always counted on when these cases got into court will be handed down in San Francisco next Fall.

"The fact that Judge Kennedy refused to give consideration to the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., feature of the Teapot Dome scandal, occasioned much comment. The Government was able at Cheyenne to prove that more than $230,000 of Liberty Bonds, which figured in the resale profits of the Continental Trading Company, came into the possession of ex-Secretary Fall or his son-in-law, Milton Everhart of Pueblo, Colo. It was also shown at Cheyenne that Mr. Sinclair was present and an active participant in the Vanderbilt Hotel conference in New York in November, 1921, at which the Continental deal was engineered. Along with James E. O'Neil of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company and Colonel Robert W. Stuart of the Standard Oil of Indiana, Mr. Sinclair guaranteed the Consolidated deal.

"The Sinclair people at Cheyenne ignored the Continental feature of the case. George Hoover, of counsel for Sinclair, did make some veiled references to it in his summing up, but so far as the record of the case was concerned, the Sinclair lawyers permitted the Government evidence in the matter of the Continental transaction to stand unchallenged.

"The Doheny case now goes to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco. The Sinclair case will be by the Government lawyers, Messrs. Roberts and Pomerene, appealed to the United States Circuit Court at either St. Louis or St. Paul."

SINCLAIR STOCK RISES AFTER COURT DECISION

Net Gain of 1¾ Points Results From an Exciting Day on the Exchange Market.

The stock of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation advanced sharply on the New York Stock Exchange in the last hour of business yesterday afternoon, following receipt of advices from the West to the effect that the Court had upheld the lease of the Teapot Dome field to the Mammoth Oil Company, which was organized by Harry F. Sinclair for the purpose of developing this lease.

When the first flash of news reached the Stock Exchange hundreds of brokers flocked to the post where the Sinclair stock is traded and bought heavily in all parts of the crowd. This buying forced the stock up sharply. It sold at a high price of 241 and closed at 24⅛, at which level it gained 1¾ points net for the day. A total of 97,200 shares of Sinclair stock changed hands on the Exchange yesterday and nearly 90,000 shares of the stock were traded in after news was received covering the court decision.

It has been many months since such excitement as prevailed yesterday afternoon has been experienced on the floor of the Exchange. Brokeres climbed over one another in order to get into the centre of the crowd to execute either their own orders or orders for their customers.

Due to this scramble and confusion the stock was quoted at varying prices in different parts of the crowd at the same time. According to statements made in stock market circles after the close of business yesterday, it is understood that a large short interest was trapped in the stock when the court decision was handed down. These shorts, on learning the news, immediately placed buying orders to cover their commitments, and blocks of stock ranging in volume from 1,000 to around 5,000 shares appeared on the tape in large number throughout the last hour of business.

The short interest caught in the stock, it is believed, was created at the time it was announced that the Government won its suit against Edward L. Doheny in the Elk Hills oil lease in California, a short time ago. This decision was accepted in Wall Street as a precedent, and many prominent speculators believed that it indicated Sinclair and the Mammoth Oil Company would lose their case against the Government in the Teapot Dome lease. In view of this belief large blocks of the stock were sold for short account.

Sinclair Consolidated Oil first 6s also moved up sharply in the bond market. These bonds opened at 114, and rose to 118¾ before the close. At their closing price of 118 a net gain of 4¾ points was recorded for the day. A total of $787,000 of these bonds changed hands yesterday, of which $600,000 were dealt in in the last hour.

At the offices of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation it was stated yesterday that no statement would be issued in connection with the court decision either by Mr. Sinclair or by the company.

PEKING OPENLY AIDS ANTI-FOREIGN STRIKE

Orders Funds Paid to Strikers as Envoys Suggest Conference on Entire Situation.

CHUNG-KING IS TURBULENT

Foreigners There Take to Gunboats —Shipping Strike Reaches Hongkong.

SHANGHAI, June 19.—The Chinese Government at last has openly ranged itself on the side of the anti-foreign movement and is actively promoting it. By instructions received from the Ministry of Communications all employes, foreign as well as Chinese, with three services under its control, posts, telegraphs, and railways, are to give one day's pay a month to the shipping strikers.

The Chinese Government already has contributed considerably to the strike funds, without which help it is believed the strike could not have continued so long, but such gifts were disguised in ingenious ways.

Austen Chamberlain's promise of protection for British subjects in China is greatly welcomed by the Britons here.

Much British property is being damaged everywhere. Agitators are doing their best to injure British interests even while notification that reparation must be made have been addressed to the Chinese Foreign Office.

The Chinese Chamber of Commerce and representatives of the students and the street unions today resolved to reopen the shops and banks on Sunday, but to continue to work for the thirteen demands and to concentrate upon the encouragement of the use of native products. The resolution makes clear the indication that a boycott will be substituted for the strike and it may prove a more formidable weapon.

PEKING, June 19 (AP).—The Powers today suggested to the Chinese Government negotiations to settle the Shanghai questions and for a discussion of conditions generally in China.

The Italian Minister, speaking also for the other legations here, made this suggestion personally at the Foreign Office today.

His expressed desire was that the negotiations deal with all phases contributing to the unrest at Shanghai, and consequently influencing conditions throughout China.

It was understood that the Diplomatic Corps will propose that a delegation representing the United States, France and Italy discuss questions of the administration of their concessions in Shanghai with a view of meeting the Chinese desires.

Ferdinand L. Mayer, American Chargé d'Affaires, today explained the interruption yesterday of the conference at Shanghai. He said:

"The delegation of interested diplomatic representatives was sent to Shanghai solely on a mission of investigation. Later it had its powers enlarged and was brought into negotiations with Chinese delegates. The latter, having presented demands which exceeded the powers of the diplomatic delegation, is returning to Peking to make a report.

"The diplomatic representatives have already made known to the Chinese Foreign office their desire to begin negotiations without delay. In their opinion immediate settlement of the Shanghai incidents on a basis of justice and equity must be the subject of the first agreement. Furthermore, if the Chinese Government expresses such a desire, the diplomats are disposed to request authorization from their respective Governments to discuss in the most friendly spirit propositions presented by the Chinese delegates at Shanghai concerning both the organization of the Shanghai International Settlement and the administration of justice there."

Vote to End Shanghai Strike.

SHANGHAI, June 19 (AP).—General Chang Hsueh-liang, son of Chang Tso-lin, the Governor of Manchuria, who already has some troops in Shanghai, has ordered another brigade of infantry, commanded by General Kiang Tung-sien, from Shantung to Shanghai to "assist in the preservation of peace."

Foreign firms are ordering their employes in the interior to come here.

The Chinese General Chamber of Commerce voted today to terminate the strike against foreign activities on Monday. There was some question today as to how this action would affect the shipping strike, which is largely controlled by Communistic labor elements opposed to commercial and financial interests represented by the Chamber.

Although official orders have not been issued, it is understood that a major portion of foreign defense units will be withdrawn from Shanghai, including members of the American Volunteer Corps. Essential services, however, such as the power stations and waterworks, will be protected until safety is assured.

CHUNG KING RIOTING GROWS.

Foreigners Take Refuge on Gunboats to Escape Trouble.

SHANGHAI, June 19 (AP).—According to reports from Chung-king, strikers there are beyond control and the many foreigners have taken refuge aboard the foreign gunboats.

Two Japanese gunboats have left Ichang for Chung-king.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Secretary Kellogg received a cablegram today from Vice Consul Robert Lacy Smith, who reported from Chung-king that the student and labor agitation was growing and that three foreigners were severely beaten by mobs. They were British, Swedish and Polish nationals. The chief danger is declared by the Vice Consul to be that General Yuan Tsu-Ming's troops may assist the agitators.

The Consuls are exerting every effort to avoid any circumstance that might give rise to an attack upon any foreigner.

GENERAL STRIKE IN CANTON.

Boycott of British, Japanese and American Goods Is Declared.

CANTON, June 19 (AP).—A general strike and boycott of British, Japanese and American goods were decided upon at a meeting of students, workmen and other Chinese citizens at Kwangtung University yesterday. The date on which the strike shall begin was not made public, but it is expected to be tomorrow or Monday.

It is feared that anti-foreign outbreaks will follow, and the authorities of Shameen, the British settlement where the foreigners live and have their consulates, have taken the necessary steps to cope with possible emergencies.

Sun Fo, former Mayor and son of the late Sun Yat-sen, has returned to the city with Hsu Chung-chi, the Cantonese General who is an ardent supporter of Hu Han-min, acting Generalissimo.

The French community, guarded by armed men from the French gunboats here, gathered today in the Catholic Church and held memorial services for the victims of the Annamite bombing in the Victoria Hotel at Shameen a year ago. The bomb was intended for Governor General Merlin of French Indo-China, but was thrown at the wrong man.

HONGKONG, June 9 (AP).—The shipping strike spread to Hongkong today. Chinese students here also struck and decided to send a committee to Canton in connection with the proposed general strike movement. Steamship sailings to Canton and Macao have been canceled.

The Chinese crew of the British coastwise steamship Sui-tai quit work today. The strike is spreading to other British coasting ships.

British volunteers were warned of the possibility of their early mobilization in view of the emergency.

HONGKONG, June 19.—The influence of extremists is beginning to prevail in Canton as elsewhere, despite the strong dissent of the moderates. The strike is about to extend there.

The stevedores, it is reported, will go out on Sunday. Canton is also preparing to accommodate the Hongkong strikers, who, as usual, will probably leave this colony.

The senior students in another school were absent today. Some seamen have left their ships. The Government is fully prepared for eventualities, but there have been no disorders as yet.

HARVARD EXERCISES CLOSE.

Phi Beta Kappa Day Ends Commencement—Dr. Finley Speaks.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 19.—Phi Beta Kappa Day ended Harvard's commencement week today, divided into a business meeting, literary exercises and a dinner.

Professor E. K. Rand was re-elected President of the Harvard chapter and Professor W. G. Howard re-elected Secretary. Professor R. B. Merriman was chosen Vice President and Seth T. Gano Treasurer. Bishop Logan H. Roots, Professor Alfred M. Tozzer and Alfred N. Whitehead of Harvard and Arthur D. Ficke of Davenport, Iowa, were elected to honorary membership.

Dr. John H. Finley, whose son was present in cap and gown among members of the chapter, delivered the oration at the literary exercises held in Sanders Theatre.

His subject was "synthetic culture" and he discussed the question as to whether the synthetic creative process, which is beginning to do so much for material civilization has not a contribution to make to its cultural advancement. His appeal was for a humanism that is willing to listen to the last word of science that does not fear contamination by the useful, that glorifies labor yet is not ergocentric, that offers the wisdoms of leisure, that has the imagination to see the "soul under the fact," that is ready to go into the Agora and teach its men of business to be also merchants of light, that will pursue the interesting with disinterestedness, that will liberalize the practical by unselfish use and interpret even the commonplace things of life in their spiritual significance.

Mr. Ficke then read his poem, "Nocturne In a Library." In it he upheld the theory of evolution.

SEE PROGRESSIVES WITHOUT A LEADER

close association of President Coolidge and Senator Borah, and it is apparent that the latter will be more disposed than in the past to support the Republican Administration on some questions of importance.

Radicals May Hold Together.

There are ten Republican Senators who might find a more or less common ground for action in opposition to their party and would at times hold the balance of power in the upper house. They consist of the La Follette group of radicals, now reduced to three, and seven others who from time to time have shown themselves strenuously opposed to legislation advocated by the Administration. These ten are Messrs Borah, Brookhart, Johnson of California, Couzens of Michigan, Norris and Howell of Nebraska, Ladd and Frazier of North Dakota and Norbeck and McMaster of South Dakota.

Under the nominal party alignment that prevails in the Senate, this group, joined with the solid Democratic minority and Senator Shipstead, the lone representative of the Farmer-Labor party, would present an opposition that would muster within three votes of the regular Republican majority. It has acted in combination with the Democrats for several years and the feeling exists that the desire to hold conspicuous power will appeal to most of its members as an incentive to continue the operations of an insurgent bloc.

Future Alignment in Doubt.

But it is too early to say, with any assurance of certainty, what alignment in the Senate will follow the assembling of that body with Senator La Follette gone. Much may depend on the appraisement by the Senators of President Coolidge's strength with the electorate at the time Congress meets. In the meanwhile, the President has not been idle and some of those inclined to be independent of party discipline and sense of loyalty may find it to their interest to be more friendly toward the White House.

An effort to reorganize the third party movement, headed by Senator La Follette as a candidate for President in last year's campaign, is reported to be on foot, with William D. Johnston, President of the International Order of Machinists, as leader. After his defeat last year Mr. La Follette accepted the situation with philosophy and showed no resentment over the fact that the railway brotherhoods and other bodies which had supported his candidacy withdrew from their third party alignment.

The opinion here is strong that with Mr. La Follette dead there is no prospect of the success of a third party. Prior to its organization last year the general opinion was that the movement would have no chance of making a creditable showing at the polls unless Mr. La Follette accepted its Presidential nomination. He, and he alone, politicians held, could give cohesion and power.

Senator's Body Leaves Washington.

The body of Senator La Follette was taken from Washington this afternoon on a special train, which started at 3 o'clock for his home in Madison, Wis., where funeral services will be held in the State Capitol on Monday, after the body has laid in state there. According to Mrs. La Follette's expressed wish, none of the party, which consisted of the immediate family and a few close friends, wore mourning. Senator La Follette objected to deep mourning.

The coffin bore one floral decoration, a wreath of seventy lilies, one for each year of the Senator's life. This was sent by the American Federation of Labor. Many boxes of flowers were put in the baggage car.

Those who accompanied the body were Mrs. La Follette, the two sons, Philip and Robert; the daughters, Mrs. George Middleton and Mrs. Ralph Sucher; Mrs. Philip La Follette, Mr. Middleton, Mr. Sucher, Senator Wheeler, Senator Lenroot and Representative Lampert of Wisconsin; Gilbert K. Roe, long Mr. La Follette's law partner; Basil M. Manly and Miss Grace Lynch, for years his personal secretary.

The following have been named officially to represent Congress at the funeral:

Senators Wheeler, Lenroot, Borah, Jones of New Mexico, Cummins, Reed of Missouri; Norris, Robinson, Kendrick, Moses, Norbeck, Brookhart, Couzens, Ladd, Frazier, Copeland and Shipstead, and Representatives Cooper, Voigt, Nelson, Schafer, Berger, Beck, Browne, Schneider, Frear, Peavey and Lampert, all of Wisconsin, and Reid of Illinois.

Body to Lie In State.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., June 19.—Two funeral cars, one containing the body of Senator La Follette are expected to arrive here about 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Whether the body will be taken to the La Follette homestead at Maple Bluff, about two miles from the Capitol, or direct to the Capitol will depend on the wishes of the family.

For several hours on Sunday afternoon the body will lie in state in the centre of the rotunda of the Capitol, with a special committee created by joint resolution of the two houses of the Legislature, consisting of six Senators and seventeen Assemblymen, acting as a guard of honor.

Before midnight the coffin will be placed in the Governor's reception room, there to remain until a short time before the funeral services which will be held in the rotunda beginning at 1 o'clock Monday. The officiating clergyman will be the Rev. A. E. Hayden, professor in the School of Divinity of the University of Chicago and formerly pastor of the Madison Unitarian Church. The services will be simple.

Burial will be at Forest Hill Cemetery in the plot of the La Follette and the Siebecker families, which the Senator chose as his last resting place, and where his father and his mother, two of his brothers, a sister-in-law, a nephew and Robert G. Siebecker, late Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court, and his son are buried.

Other joint resolutions adopted by the Legislature include an elaborate eulogy of Senator La Follette, expressing the grief of Wisconsin; realization of the profound influence he exercised on State and nation; outlining the constructive measures he fathered in Wisconsin and at Washington, referring especially to his service to the State university and extolling his lifelong championship of free speech and the liberty of the press.

Other joint resolutions created interim committees to devise a suitable memorial for the Senator and for former Governor Emanuel L. Philipp, who died suddenly a few days ago.

BRYAN MOURNS LA FOLLETTE.

Gen. Pershing Sends Condolences to Widow—Berlin Comments.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 19 (AP).—Senator La Follette was termed "an outstanding champion of the rights of the plain people against the encroachments of corporate power," by William Jennings Bryan, in a statement he issued today.

"His passing will be mourned by scores of official friends and by many others—friends of reform," Mr. Bryan said. "His fight extended over a generation and was made where his enemies were the strongest entrenched.

"His sympathies were with the masses and he had the ability to plead their cause and the courage to make his stand against all criticism."

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 19 (AP).—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, often identified with the La Follette group in the Senate, paid high tribute to the late Senator Robert M. La Follette today.

"Like the good work of Lincoln was carried on after his death, so will La Follette's cause continue," he said. "The force of Senator La Follette was so great that the common people will benefit from his efforts in years to come."

WASHINGTON, June 19, (AP).—General Pershing today extended to Mrs. Robert M. La Follette his "most sincere and deeply heartfelt sympathy" over the death of her husband.

"Please accept my most sincere and deeply heartfelt sympathy," the General wrote, "in the loss that has come to you and your family and the nation in the passing of your distinguished husband after a lifetime spent in the service of his country. The nation will mourn with you."

CLEVELAND, June 19 (AP).—A memorial resolution, paying tribute to the memory of Senator Robert M. La Follette, was adopted today at a meeting here of the Advisory Board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

BERLIN, June 19 (AP).—All political shades of the German press speak sympathetically of Senator Robert M. La Follette. It is remembered here that he visited Germany in the midst of the Ruhr trouble and personally traveled up and down the Ruhr Valley in an automobile to study conditions at first hand.

The Socialist Vorwaerts eulogizes the late Senator, saying:

"His name will undoubtedly continue to live in the history of the United States, and especially in the memory of the American labor movement, to which he gave mighty impulse by the fact that for the first time the various organizations could unite on his name for political action of the first magnitude."

The following telegram of condolence was sent yesterday afternoon to Mrs. Robert M. La Follette by the American National Party for a Republic in Hungary:

"Mankind is mourning with you in the departure of the noble fighter. Accept the heartfelt sympathies of the American National Party for a Republic in Hungary."

In a resolution passed last night by the Universal Truth Forum and sent to Mrs. La Follette, the organization expressed "its profound sorrow at the passing of Senator La Follette, being cognizant that the country has lost a faithful servant, the people a valiant champion of their rights and the world an uncompromising exponent of justice and enemy of oppression."

REFUSES TO FRAME EULOGY.

Yonkers Republican Club Committee Opposed to La Follette.

After a committee appointed by President Cunningham of the Yonkers Republican Club to draw up a eulogy of Senator La Follette declined the task because they were out of sympathy with the Senator's ideas, a new committee named by the President announced yesterday their willingness to serve.

The new committee consists of Mrs. Lena Fowler, Mrs. Rachel Power and William Gaul. The committee who declined was composed of Robert M. Clark, George Hoag and Peter Soetemon. This committee declined after hearing President Cunningham extol Senator La Follette and praise his public service.

The new committee will report at the club meeting next Thursday.

BRITISH VIEW OF LA FOLLETTE

Difference Between English and American Mind Seen in His Career.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—The Daily News, in an editorial article on the death of Senator La Follette, says:

"Such a career as that of Senator La Follette would not have been possible anywhere but in the United States and every account of it must serve as a reminder of the fundamental differences between the English and American mind. He certainly had a mind of his own and expressed it volubly, hours on end. But in this country he would hardly have been called an extremist, except perhaps during the war, when his hatred of militarism took the somewhat paradoxical form of strong pro-German sympathies.

"He will be remembered as one of that strange but fine species of American self-made men who worked, talked, praised and abused with the hearty violence which alone could carry a man from a small farm to the top of his local tree."

LACK OF NEW LEADER SEEN IN WISCONSIN

La Follette's Death Held to Give Stalwarts Advantage in State Rivalry.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., June 19.—The death of Senator La Follette has sounded the death knell of at least the extremely radical tenets of the Progressive Republican faction in this State and possibly heralds the entire collapse of that faction, in the opinion of close political observers.

Attorney General Ekern will, in the opinion of some observers, oppose Senator Lenroot in the 1926 campaign if Governor Blaine is elected to fill the unexpired term of Senator La Follette. But neither Governor Blaine nor Mr. Ekern can win the following of the late Senator.

The death of former Governor E. L. Philipp early this week left the Stalwart faction of the Republican Party in the State with a rudderless boat, but Senator Lenroot is believed to be capable of assuming the captaincy of the craft.

Not in thes pecial election but in the race for the Senatorship in 1926 will the fate of Progressive movement in Wisconsin be determined.

The advantage lies with the Stalwart group, who have already started, with the aid of a stimulus from the national headquarters, to rejuvenate the party in the State, while the Progressive faction must find a new leader.

Scanning the ranks of the leaders of the Progressive organization, observers fail to see a figure capable of continuing the fight started by Senator La Follette.

SLAYER OF LEEMING GETS 20-YEAR TERM

Muller Is Elated at Escape From Possible Conviction of First Degree Murder.

JUDGE HITS PRISON SYSTEM

Though He Imposed 20 Years as a Minimum, He Says the Ex-Convict Will Be Free in 15 Years.

A sentence of from twenty years to life imprisonment was imposed yesterday in General Sessions on Charles Muller, ex-convict, when he pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree for shooting and killing Thomas Lonsdale Leeming, clubman and manufacturer, in the office building at 130 William Street on the afternoon of June 5. Muller had been indicted for murder in the first degree, but when he was arraigned before Judge Rosalsky Assistant District Attorney Benedict Dineen acquiesced to the acceptance of the lighter plea with the statement that it was doubtful that the State could prove premeditation, necessary under the law to obtain a first degree conviction.

The prosecutor said that District Attorney Joab H. Banton had endorsed his recommendation and then explained that, while the slain man and Muller had been on friendly terms for years, Mr. Leeming, a few minutes before Muller had shot him, had pushed his slayer out of the elevator in which the importer was about to ride to his office upstairs.

Judge Rosalsky Concurs.

Judge Rosalsky concurred in the prosecutor's view that it was best to accept the second degree plea, and when he asked Colonel William Hayward and James Marshall, who had been assigned by the Court as counsel for the slayer, whether their client was ready to be sentenced Muller anticipated the lawyers with an affirmative answer.

"I have nothing to say," Muller continued in answer to the Court's next question, but admitted that he previously had been convicted in the same court on an assault charge and sentenced to from two and a half to five years in Sing Sing.

"This is just another case where a criminal serves less than the minimum term to which he is sentenced," commented Judge Rosalsky. "This man will serve only fifteen years, although he is sentenced to twenty years as a minimum. Criminals are being dumped from prisons into the streets of New York before their terms expire. I can prove what I say by the records in my possession."

The murderer plainly was elated over his escape from the possibility of conviction on a first degree murder charge. As two Deputy Sheriffs led him to the Tombs, preparatory to his removal to Sing Sing, he shook hands with Colonel Hayward and Mr. Marshall and thanked each profusely for his efforts.

Muller Said Act Was Impulsive.

The victim of his pistol had been his benefactor but had become wearied of Muller's persistent demands for financial aid and the ex-convict's unwillingness to support himself by work. Muller lay in wait for the importer on the day of the killing. Witnesses said he had made no threat, however, up to the time Mr. Leeming refused to permit him to follow him into the elevator. Muller whipped a pistol out of his coat pocket and fired. He stood dazed near his victim for a few minutes before he fled to the street, where he was captured and disarmed by a driver for the American Express Company. He told the police conflicting stories as to the motive for the killing, and finally admitted that the act was an impulsive one.

CONVICTED IN BOND THEFT.

Holder of Stolen Securities Was Caught in Trap Set by Ex-Convict.

Frank Zerillo, 39 years old, of 1,318 Avenue J, Brooklyn, a steel manufacturer, was found guilty yesterday by a jury in Judge Koenig's part of General Sessions of criminally receiving $30,000 in Republic of Cuba bonds, which were part of $105,000 worth stolen by a messenger on Feb. 4, 1924, from Herzfeld & Stern, brokers of 40 Exchange Place. He will be sentenced on June 29.

Zerillo previously had served a term of from two to four years in Sing Sing for receiving stolen property. His indictment on the more recent charge was the result of a trap set for him by Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, with the aid of Jack Wolfner, another ex-convict, who had told the prosecutor that he knew Zerillo had the $105,000 stolen bonds in his possession.

Wolfner had been found guilty of receiving stolen property, but he was released from the Tombs and made arrangements with Zerillo to bring some of the bonds to his store in East Fourteenth Street. Detectives arrested Zerillo when he displayed the $30,000 securities.

ACTRESS ATTENDS HANGING.

Dressed as a Man, Chicago Woman Sees Negro Executed.

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP).—A woman for the first time in Cook County today witnessed a hanging. She was an actress, attired in man's garb, who saw Willie Sams, negro, convicted of two murders, executed.

The young woman was Miss Kathryn du Noule, who wore a long overcoat and a gray hat. When stopped by the jail physician, she admitted her sex, produced a card of authorization to witness the hanging and said she had found it. The Sheriff finally permitted her to remain.

Sams shot and killed Meyer Oppenheim, a merchant, in a hold-up, and then shot and fatally wounded Policeman Cornelius Broderick.

Wins Tax Appeal Over Good-Will.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP).—The Board of Tax Appeals today held that the Johnstown Democrat Company, Inc., publishers of The Johnstown Democrat of Johnstown, Pa., was entitled to include $37,500 as the value of good-will in computation of its invested capital for tax purposes in the years 1919 and 1920, instead of $98,668.64, as carried on its books. Internal Revenue officials explained that the case involved only a question of fact and had no general application.

PHYSICIAN ADVOCATES LESS CHILD SPANKING

Only Cruelty, Meanness and Lying Justify It, Dr. Marcus Tells New Jersey Medical Society.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 19.—Spanking of children is justified only in cases of serious type of willfulness such as manifestation of cruelty, meanness and lying, Dr. Joseph H. Marcus told the Medical Society of New Jersey at Haddon Hall today. Dr. Marcus advocated a "general and healthy inattention to naughtiness on the part of parents" in most childish peccadilloes. His claim was that being "more stubborn than the stubborn child" often won disciplinary victory over obdurate youngsters.

EXTEND DUKE POWER PLANT

Duke and Davies Will Build Aluminum Works in Quebec.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Quebec, June 19.—Announcement is made from Quebec by the Provincial Premier, L. A. Taschereau, that the Government has accepted the plans of J. B. Duke and associates for development of an additional 600,000 horsepower in the Lake St. John District. This will be at the mouth of the Saguenay River, at a point called Chute-a-Caron, a few hundred yards from the first development of the Duke interests of the Grande Decharge.

Mr. Duke is associated with E. H. Davies, who has control of one of the largest aluminum companies in the world.

The expenditure for the development will be $75,000,000 to $90,000,000, and in conjunction with this work Mr. Davies will start the construction of an aluminum factory.

Reports telling of an agreement between the Quebec Government and the James B. Duke interests were read with interest in banking and public utility circles here. The aluminum interests referred to as having been acquired by Mr. Duke and an associate are believed to include holdings in the Aluminum Company of America or the Northern Aluminum Company, its Canadian subsidiary.

The "E. H. Davies" mentioned in Canadian dispatches is supposed to refer to Arthur V. Davis, President of the Aluminum Company of America, or E. K. Davis, Vice President.

The Duke project is said to include construction of a model town and payroll of 6,000, with some twenty vessels needed on the Saguenay River to meet the company's transportation requirements.

MISSING BOYS HEARD FROM.

Lads Seen in Pittsburgh Tally With Young Cosse and Harwood.

A dispatch from Pittsburgh last night said that two boys answering in every particular the description of Webster Cosse, 14, son of Civil Service Commissioner Charles Cosse of Mt. Vernon and Warner Harwood, 15, son of Frank Harwood of Bronxville had been seen in Pittsburgh yesterday shortly before word arrived from New York that the boys had gone to Pittsburgh.

The boys disappeared from their homes in Westchester County a week ago yesterday. The Harwood boy left a note for his parents saying that if they wished to communicate with him to put a "personal" in a New York paper.

Pittsburgh detectives were informed last night that a card bearing a Pittsburgh postmark had been received by friends of the boys in New York. Descriptions of the missing boys have been broadcast by radio stations in Pittsburgh.

PLAN BIG 4TH OF JULY FETE.

Central and Eastern Queens to Have Record Celebration.

Residents of central and eastern Queens are preparing for the most elaborate Fourth of July celebration ever held in the county. Tentative plans have been made and action will be taken on them at a meeting of the committee in charge on June 28.

The St. Albans Civic Association, Hollis Safe and Sane Fourth of July Committee, Queens Safe and Sane Fourth of July Committee, Springfield Association, Rosedale Board of Trade, Central Jamaica Field Club, Richmond Hill Civic Association, Union Course Civic Association, Fifth A. D. Democratic Club, Hillside Civic Betterment Association and the Arrapaho Democratic Club, are working together on the project.

JERSEY WRECK DEAD 46.

Man Scalded by Steam Succumbs in Dover Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., June 19.—The death list in the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad wreck near Hackettstown, N. J., last Tuesday morning was increased to forty-six today when John Krincekitz, 69 years old, of 736 Edison Street, Chicago, succumbed to his injuries in the Dover General Hospital, Dover, N. J. His body was terribly scalded by escaping steam.

Miss Catherine Wilgermein of 2,956 North Racine Avenue, Chicago, in the same hospital, showed some improvement today. The condition of those seriously burned in the Easton Hospital and in the Warren Hospital at Phillipsburg, N. J., remained unchanged, it was said.

SELECT NUGENT SUCCESSOR

Party Split Believed Ended by Nomination of Samuel I. Kessler.

With the selection last night of Samuel I. Kessler to succeed James R. Nugent, for twenty years a dominant factor in Democratic politics in Essex County, N. J., as County Chairman, political leaders predicted an end to the factional strife which has divided the Democratic Party there for the last seven years.

The selection of Kessler was made during a meeting of the various leaders in the Progress Club in Newark and had the endorsement of City Commissioners William J. Brennan and Charles P. Gillen, as well as the endorsement of Nugent.

HIS OWN DETECTIVE.

Man Robbed Two Weeks Ago Points Out Suspect at Coney Island.

Joseph Behrens of 309 West Forty-fourth Street, who was robbed of $28 in money and jewelry two weeks ago in an automobile by a man he met in a dance hall at Coney Island, visited dancing places there nightly seeking the man, and last night called a policeman to arrest John Pennachio, 19 years old, of 1,263 Forty-ninth Street, Brooklyn. He said Pennachio robbed him.

As Patrolman Ciciema took Pennachio to the station a man who said he was a friend of the prisoner sought to make the policeman release him. He was charged with interfering with an officer and possessing a revolver. He said he was Joseph Munaco, 23 years old, of 2,701 Harway Avenue, Brooklyn.

Orphan Asylum to Honor Patrons.

More than 100 tablets bearing the names of the donors of endowed beds in the Israel Orphan Asylum, 274 Second Street, will be unveiled on Sunday afternoon. City Court Justice Gustave Hartman will preside. Cantor Israel Breeh will conduct services and the orphans will give an entertainment.

LADIES' HAIR BOBBER REALLY IS A BARBER

Jersey Court Cites Old Testament and Dictionary in Granting an Injunction.

QUESTION OF BEAUTY OPEN

Word Barbering Applies Whether Long-Haired Male or Bearded Female Is Trimmed, Judge Says.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 19.—Ladies' hair bobbing is barbering, a more important branch of the art of the tonsor of modern times than cupping was of the barber of medieval days, it was held here today in the Chancery Court in a decision filed by Vice Chancellor Maja Berry. The Court granted a temporary injunction restraining Jean Gentile, keeper of a beauty shop at 390 Springfield Avenue, Summit, from doing business within one mile of the shop of Paula Tally of 13 Maple Street, Summit.

Vice Chancellor Berry in his decision cited the Old Testament, the Standard Dictionary, the practices of the ancient cuppers and the work of sign painters who have made the land bloom with beauty "shoppes." Tally sued to force Gentile to keep his agreement not to engage in the barber business for five years within one mile of Tally's shop, once owned by Gentile. The latter had insisted that a beauty shop in which ladies' hair is bobbed, such as he now conducts, is not a barber shop. Vice Chancellor Berry in his decision says:

"At the oral argument on the return of the order to show cause counsel for defendant cited the Latin root of the word 'barber' in support of his argument that the barber business does not include the bobbing of ladies' and children's hair. I then stated, and now repeat, that in my judgment recourse to the dead languages was not necessary to determine if, in this backward day and generation, the bobbing of ladies' hair is or is not a branch of the barber business.

Says Bobbing Is Barbering.

"In my opinion the bobbing of ladies' hair is a distinct and important part of the business of a modern barber shop, as much as, or more than, was cupping a branch of that business in ancient times. It is not uncommon today to see members of the female sex occupying chairs in barber shops, having their hair bobbed in an effort to keep pace with the ever-changing styles. This is a common, an ordinary occurrence.

"My examination of the authorities discloses that the word 'barber' is derived from the Latin root 'barba,' meaning beard, and the Standard Dictionary defines the word barber as 'one who makes a business of shaving and trimming the beard and cutting and dressing the hair.'

"Barbering is defined as 'the act of one whose occupation is to shape the beard and cut and dress the hair of others.' Apparently, the word 'others' applies alike to the long-haired male and the bearded female.

"But it is claimed the bobbing of hair in a beauty shop is essentially different from such practice when performed in a barber shop, and that when so performed in a beauty shop it is merely part and parcel of the modern beautifying process as applied to the weaker and lovelier sex; but whether or not this is so and whether or not the bobbing of hair is really a beautifying process, or contributes, in any degree, to female beauty, is still, in my judgment, an open question.

Beauty Question Still Open.

"There are still some old-fashioned people who insist that the hair is woman's crowning glory and that as Samson was divested of his strength when shorn of his locks by Delilah so is woman robbed of much of her beauty when shorn of her crowning glory, irrespective of whether this operation is performed in an ordinary barber shop or in a modern beauty parlor, even though for the word 'parlor' is substituted the modern appellation 'shoppe.'

"But it is not necessary to the disposition of this case that I decide whether or not a hair bobber is necessarily a barber, and I refrain from such decision. What I am called upon to decide is whether ladies' hair bobbing is a branch of the barber business. This I unequivocally hold it to be.

"Jean Gentile may have sold his birthright for a mess of pottage, but it is not recorded in Holy Writ that the other Esau was permitted to welch on his agreement; and why should Jean?

"I shall, therefore, advise a decree restraining the defendant, Jean Gentile, also known as Virginio J. Gentile, from directly or indirectly, either as employer or employe, engaging in or conducting any branch of the barber business at 390 Springfield Avenue, Summit, or anywhere else within the restricted territory, pending the final hearing in his case."

SHOEMAKER DEATH INQUIRY.

Brother Denies Advertising Man Found in Tub Died of Gas.

Investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of David F. Shoemaker at his home, 986 Nineteenth Street, Flatbush, Brooklyn, yesterday morning, will be continued today. His body was found partly submerged in the bathtub early yesterday morning by his thirteen-year-old son, Robert.

Policemen, called from the Parkville Station by the family, reported that a gas jet was turned on in the bathroom and they attributed Shoemaker's death to gas poisoning. This was denied by Shoemaker's brother, who said he believed apoplexy was responsible.

Dr. Romeo W. Auerbach, Assistant Medical Examiner, said last night that outwardly at least there was no evidence of gas poisoning. He will perform an autopsy this morning at King's County Morgue. Mr. Shoemaker was 45 years old. He was President of the American Letter Company, 114 East Thirteenth Street, an advertising concern. He is survived by his wife and three sons, Francis Jr., Charles F. and Robert.

MURDERER SEEKS A PARDON

Once in Death House, His Evidence Sends Pal to Chair.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., June 19.—Failure of the Westchester County authorities to return William McNamara, 29, a prisoner, to Sing Sing prison, disclosed today that he had applied for a pardon and that the county authorities are aiding him because he gave evidence against Emil Klatt.

Klatt has just been sentenced to death for the killing of Gregory George at Dobbs Ferry nine years ago. McNamara was once in the death house for his connection with the crime, but his sentence was changed to life imprisonment. It is reported District Attorney Arthur Rowland of Westchester County has endorsed McNamara's application for a conditional pardon.

TO REPUDIATE CONFESSION.

Mrs. Cunningham Pleads Not Guilty of Slaying Three Children.

CROWN POINT, Ind., June 19 (AP).—Mrs. Anna Cunningham, 49 years old, a widow, of Gary, who was indicted on charges that she murdered by poison three of her children, pleaded not guilty when arraigned today. The trial was set for the week of July 6.

The defense revealed that it will repudiate the confession Mrs. Cunningham made in her cell here after her arrest in Chicago.

35-Story Skyscraper, Costing $8,000,000, To Replace Warehouse Near Grand Central

A monumental office building that will add a new peak to the skyline of the midtown section of Manhattan is planned for the block front in the west side of Lexington Avenue, between Forty-first and Forty-second Street.

The structure will probably rise thirty-five stories above the street level, and it is estimated that it will cost between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000. The site of the proposed building is now occupied by the Manhattan Storage Warehouse, a red brick building that strongly resembles a fort or an armory and looks strangely out of place in the heart of the busy Grand Central zone.

This property, which is owned by the Iselin estate, has been leased to J. C. and M. G. Mayer, associated with Shroder & Koppel, for a term of 105 years at an annual rent of $325,000.

The site, which is considered the finest plot in the Grand Central zone available for improvement, has been held at $6,000,000. It has a frontage of 125 feet on Forty-second Street opposite the Hotel Commodore, 200 feet on the west side of Lexington Avenue and 175 feet in the north side of Forty-first Street.

According to a report current in real estate circles, the Iselin estate only recently refused an offer of $5,500,000 for the property. The storage warehouse property is separated from the new Bowery Savings Bank skyscraper on Forty-second Street, by an old four-story building controlled by the bank. This parcel was purchased by the bank to protect its light and air on the east side of the building and will afford the new building permanent west light and air.

The lessees will not get possession of the warehouse property for two years. In the meantime the warehouse company will seek new quarters.

The brokers in the transaction were J. L. and R. W. Davis and Lawrence C. Shire.

HENRY FORD DEVELOPS KENTUCKY COUNTY

His Operations in Mountain Coal Area Bring New Roads and Great Prosperity.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., June 19.—Developments in the Harlan County coal fields by the Henry Ford operations have brought great prosperity to a large mountain area. Ford representatives have taken part in various movements for improving the region, and results have been unusually good, according to reports from there today.

Particularly is this the case around Wallins and the creek area named for the town. Ten years ago there was scarcely a hamlet, and no good roads. A creek bed was the only street and it was difficult even for horseback riders.

Henry Ford and his industries entered some years ago and the town and section boomed. Ford has built at heavy expense a fine asphalt road from Wallins Creek to his other properties, about five miles, opening a large territory to business and travel.

There are modern stores, bank buildings, schools and dwellings, all credited to the spirit engendered there by Ford. Harlan County people are building a great highway out to Pineville in this county.

The developments have arisen in that hitherto almost impenetrable mountain section as if by magic. Plans of the Ford concerns are not given out in advance, and the extent of the improvement has been scarcely understood after the details were well under way.

Much of the supplies used by the Ford employes are said to be produced in the vicinity of his extensive workings in the mountain counties. He has some of the most valuable timber and coal properties in the State.

INCOME TAX $1,720,000,000

Latest Estimate Puts 1924 Total at That Sum.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Income tax receipts for the current fiscal year will total about $1,720,000,000 when the books are closed on June 30, according to present estimates. That sum is $60,000,000 in excess of the estimates made at the beginning of the fiscal year. Tax receipts since Jan. 1, when the lower rates went into effect, have been larger than expected because of favorable business conditions.

During eleven months the Treasury collected about $1,383,000,000 in income taxes. The second quarterly payment was due on June 15, and returns up to this time show that the estimate of $330,000,000 for June will probably be exceeded by $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 and bring the collections for the year to about $1,720,000,000.

Published reports that the receipts will reach $1,775,000,000 were said today to be incorrect.

RYE PARKS LOSE POINT.

Judge Denies Injunction to Stop Police From Arresting Employes.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 19.—Although the Rye village authorities won a point in their fight to enforce the Sabbath laws at Rye Beach when Supreme Court Justice Albert H. F. Seeger handed down a decision today denying the application of the Rye Beach Pleasure Park, Inc., for a permanent injunction restraining the police from interfering with their operations, the question puzzling the village authorities, and more so the Rye police, is, "What about Paradise Park?"

The amusement park operators are contemplating an appeal from Justice Seeger's decision to the Appellate Division. Arthur I. Strang, attorney for the parks, said today that he was sure that the parks would remain open this coming Sunday, as he was in doubt whether a formal order would be filed until early in the week.

HART APPEALS WIFE'S SUIT.

California High Court to Decide if She May Act Again on Screen.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 19 (AP).—The California Supreme Court has before it an appeal to decide if Winifred Westover Hart, wife of William S. Hart, can return to her profession of motion picture actress without divorcing the screen star or losing the income from a trust fund of $103,000 he created for her in 1922.

In a suit brought last year by Mrs. Hart to have the terms of the trust agreement interpreted, the Superior Court decided that it did not preclude her acceptance of employment in motion pictures, but that it did prohibit her from using the name of Mrs. William S. Hart or any name by which Hart is known during the life of the agreement or upon its termination. The agreement provided that the trust should terminate in favor of Mrs. Hart upon her obtaining a final decree of divorce.

Appeal from the Superior Court decision was taken by Hart.

WINS PARIS SCHOLARSHIP.

First Award for Jewelry Design Goes to New York Man.

Announcement was made yesterday that Harold H. Graeter of 42 Washington Square South, had won the Cartier Scholarship for $1,000 at L'Cole des Arts Decoratifs in Paris, plus fare to and from that city, for the best jewelry design submitted in competition here. The scholarship is optional at either the above named school, or the Chambre Syndicale de la Joaillerie in Paris.

Mildred Erwin of Los Angeles received first honorable mention and $100, and Stanton R. Fife of Providence, R. I., received second honorable mention and $50. The prize winning designs and others submitted will be on exhibition to the public at the Art Centre, 65-67 East Fifty-sixth Street, until June 30, after which they will be sent to museums and art institutes throughout the country.

ENRIGHT BLAMES PRESS FOR CRIME

Tells Kings Jurors Newspapers Glorify the Criminal and Ridicule Police.

WANTS GUN SALE STOPPED

Advocates Doubling Penalties for Criminals and Says New York Is Mecca for Ne'er-Do-Wells.

Police Commissioner Enright, speaking last night at the final meeting of the season of the Kings County Grand Jurors' Association at the Kings County Court House, again criticized the Parole Board, advocated doubling penalties for criminals and stopping the sale of firearms. He blamed the newspapers for crime in New York.

He again declared New York has less crime now than it had ten years ago, despite the increase in population, but admitted that the figures for crime were large because the city "is the mecca for every ne'er-do-well and misfit who has left his home, his city and his country for their good."

"If they don't come here," he continued, "it is not because they lack a daily invitation issued to them by the press of this city, front-page invitations, telling them to come quickly, for here the 'plucking' is good, here the police are inefficient, here the City Administration and all law-enforcement organizations are weak and corrupted by politics, and of course only one thing in the city is great, magnificent and pure, and that is the press of the City of New York. Any crook who believes this should not stay away.

"The story of crimes is published in the press in box-car letters with extensive illustrations, the work of the criminals is exaggerated and glorified, while the work of the police is minimized and ridiculed. Now I maintain that if extensive advertising will promote trade and commerce, then such extensive advertising and exploitation of crime will promote crime, and there I will stand."

The Long Island Federation of Women's Clubs, it was announced yesterday, adopted at its recent meeting at Jamaica a resolution asking newspapers to subordinate news of crime because publication of crime news "tends to create a morbid taste for gruesome events and incites to crime."

AMERICANS CALLED SAVIORS OF EUROPE

Belgians Greet Our Delegates to Congress of International Chamber of Commerce.

BRUSSELS, June 19 (AP).—A cargo of "billionaires come to save Europe from bankruptcy" was the description given by members of the Belgian Reception Committee to the American delegation arriving today from Antwerp for the congress of the International Chamber of Commerce which will be in session here from next Sunday to Saturday. The American party discussed the subjects to come before the Brussels meeting during the voyage to Europe.

Popular imagination has been aroused here by the announced object of the congress to seek complete restoration of normal conditions in Europe. The importance and influence of the members of the American delegation have stimulated interest and aroused hopes that were heightened by the sentimental significance of the arrival of the Americans on the George Washington.

Affirms Willie Hoppe's Divorce.

The Appellate Division yesterday affirmed the divorce decree obtained by Willie Hoppe, billiard expert, from Alice Beatrice Hoppe. The Hoppes were married in Baltimore in 1912 and have two children, a girl 13 and a boy 4.

MORONES DEPLORES KELLOGG CRITICISM

Mexican Minister and Labor Leader Declares for Full Protection of Foreign Interests.

FAVORS A PATIENT POLICY

General Gomez, Departing for Europe, Denies That He Is Thinking of a Revolt.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 19.—Luis Morones, Vice President of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, Secretary of Industry and Commerce in the Mexican Government and the recognized labor leader of Mexico, declared today for fullest protection to American capital invested in Mexico, but promised strong opposition to interference by any country in the internal affairs of Mexico. Speaking at a luncheon given by the American Chamber of Commerce in Mexico City, Señor Morones said:

"Mexico has a duty to protect all foreign interests, as have other Governments, but she has rights as well, and, if necessary, in defense of those rights Mexico is prepared to fight to the last ditch and dig her own grave defending those rights."

Señor Morones deplores the Kellogg statement, as he said he regretted any incident that could destroy confidence in the Government or discourage investment of capital. The function of the so-called labor Government, he said, was to bring about better relations between capital and labor, but in a way that no one could complain of.

The greatest problem the Government had to face, he continued, was lack of confidence, which he attributed to failure of the people interested to gain first-hand knowledge of conditions in Mexico and the purposes of the Government. The word revolution often frightened people because they misunderstood its meaning; all it meant was to do what they could for emancipation of the masses within the law.

No group, however close to the Government, he declared, could sway President Calles.

Señor Morones added an invitation to foreign investors, but they must come with clean hands and not to exploit the poorer classes. He invited the Government and individuals with complaints to lay their cards on the table.

The speaker intimated that the American people were not solidly behind the Kellogg statement and that Mexico was disposed to exercise great patience.

Fifty leading Generals of the Mexican Army, headed by Governor Aberlardo Rodriguez of Lower California, gave a banquet tonight to General Arnulfo Gomez, who is leaving for Europe on Monday. The banquet was attended by General Joaquin Amaro, Minister of War; Alberto Pani, Minister of the Treasury; General Enrique Orsonio, Chief of the Military Medical Corp; Erby Swift, representative of the Sinclair Oil Company, and Paulino Fontes, ex-Director of the National Railways.

Señor Martinez Escobar, in a speech referring to the Kellogg statement, said it unfortunately showed a lack of knowledge of the Mexican people and their needs. Mexico, he said, has a right to change its laws; it had the obligation to protect all foreigners within its doors, but would not permit domination by any country; Mexico would listen to reason, but would not permit interference with its internal affairs.

Regarding Mr. Kellogg's reference to a possible revolution, the speaker said he would welcome news of a movement that would show real revolutionists who worked for the country, not for themselves. He believed the group of revolutionists who now formed the Government were sincere, but certain elements were only thinking of themselves, and not the country.

General Gomez in his speech said he had heard rumors that he was leaving Mexico in disgust and was thinking of a revolution. That was a mistake. He advised all his friends and followers to stick with the Government and remain loyal as the only way to build up the country. Rumors that his followers and his soldiers were disgruntled with the present Minister of War were untrue, as he had no soldiers; they were of the nation.

During the taking of a picture, when the photographer requested the Generals to stay quiet and not move, Minister Pani in an aside remarked:

"When Mexican Generals are quiet the country prospers."

EUROPE TO SEE FORD FLAG.

Oneida, Off Today, First Ship to Bear Insignia Overseas.

The freighter Oneida is scheduled to sail today for Bordeaux, Antwerp and Copenhagen, flying the Ford Motor Company's house flag and loaded with the company's products.

The Oneida has made trips to South America with cargoes of Ford cars and spare parts, but this will be the first time that an American steamship has sailed for Europe flying the Ford house flag.

On her return from Antwerp the Oneida will bring a general cargo of Belgian steel and glassware for America.

CONNOLLY LINES UP FOR HYLAN SUBWAY

Brownsville and East New York Transit Relief Association to operate a bus line.

Several hundred men, women and children, who came over from Brooklyn in half a dozen huge buses, crowded into the Board of Estimate Room. Many of them bore banners reading, "Will you, Mayor Hylan and the Board of Estimate, help us get our buses back?" Former Alderman Alexander S. Drescher, counsel of the association, acted as spokesman for the delegation.

"Is it going to be a five-cent fare?" asked Mayor Hylan, when the association's application for a franchise was reached on the calendar.

"It is," replied Mr. Drescher, "with half fare for school children."

"Then I'm for it," said the Mayor. "Who's going to operate the buses"?

"Our association is going to run them," Mr. Drescher answered. "We have some of them outside to show you."

The resolution, which granted a six-months' franchise for operation of a bus line from Utica Avenue along Eastern Parkway to Stone Avenue, to Sutter Avenue, to Pitkin Avenue, to Elton Street, to Sutter Avenue, was then passed, only Controller Craig voting in the negative.

"We've got the buses," Mr. Drescher shouted. Then followed so much cheering, waving of banners and confusion generally that the board's meeting was halted temporarily.

"Don't forget," said the Mayor, with a glance at Mr. Craig, "that your cheers are only for those who voted for the franchise."

One other transit matter came up on the board's program. This was the recommendation of the Board of Transportation for the award of a contract for the section of the Washington Heights subway in Central Park West from Eighty-ninth to 100th Street to the T. A. Gillespie Company for $3,997,748.

This brought criticism from Mr. Guider and he and Mr. Craig at first refused to vote to award the contract.

"Why doesn't the Board of Transportation give us a chance to look these things over and consider them instead of throwing them in at the last minute?" Mr. Guider asked.

"Since it's the last regular meeting this Summer, I'll vote for it," said Mr. Craig, after scanning the contract.

"Let Mr. Guider see it and maybe we'll get his vote," suggested Julius Miller, Borough President of Manhattan.

"Maybe you will and maybe you won't," replied Mr. Guider.

But after looking over the contract Mr. Guider withdrew his objection and the contract was awarded.

The Board of Transportation opened bids for the construction of another section of the Washington Heights subway earlier in the day. This section, in Central Park West and Eighth Avenue from 101st Street to 111th Street, is the eighth section for which bids have been received, contracts for seven sections having been awarded by the Board of Estimate. The informal total of the bids received follow:

Rosenthal Engineering and Contracting Company, $5,124,000; Coleman Brothers, $5,290,000; F. L. Cranford, $5,454,000; Necaro Company, $5,459,566; T. A. Gillespie Company, $5,649,000.

DECRIES HYLAN'S LANGUAGE

Harkness Says Mayor Descended to Gutter Level in Recent Attack.

Transit Commissioner Le Roy T. Harkness declared yesterday that in an attack on members of the commission concerning the recent Interborough elevated wreck Mayor Hylan had descended to the "language of the gutter," and had fully justified recent criticism of him by Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue.

"As usual, it was a deplorable accident on one of the local transit lines which evoked from Mayor Hylan the latest of his undignified and vulgar attacks upon members of the Transit Commission, in which he descended to new levels in billingsgate," Mr. Harkness said. "Evidently his statement went beyond the liberal limits allowed by newspapers in printing such remarks.

"Nevertheless, the paragraphs which were printed are enough to disgust all decent citizens, and to call for a rebuke of the vulgar language, to be expected in barroom fights, used by the man who occupies the exalted position of Chief Executive of the city.

"Demagogues are expected to step beyond the accepted limits of political controversy and we are all used to their ranting and violence of expression. Hylan has out-demagogued them all to appeal to that part of the public—fortunately a small percentage—which likes nothing better than to hear denunciations of men of character and reputation in the community, and personal abuse couched in the language of the barroom. But isn't it about time for the good name of the city that decent citizens be spared further humiliation?"

SEE DELAY IN SUBWAY PLAN.

Third Track Use Would Block Service, I. R. T. Experts Tell Board.

Methods of carrying out the Transit Commission's plan to extend the express service on the Broadway, Pelham Bay Park and Jerome Avenue branches of the Interborough subway were considered yesterday at a hearing before Major Philip Mathews, chief executive officer of the Transit Commission. Several Interborough witnesses took issue with the commission's experts, who testified that improved service in each case would result from the use of the third track for express service.

P. C. Cusack, assistant trainmaster of the Interborough, declared that it would be practically impossible to maintain two separate express schedules and that the only result would be delay. He explained that if the commission's proposal to use the third track south of 137th Street on the Broadway branch were adopted, the service below 101st Street, where the third track joins the main track, would have to be slowed down to handle the increased volume of traffic. He added that the old Public Service Commission adopted this view in discontinuing the third-track express service.

George Keegan, assistant to Frank Hedley, President of the company, said the third-track express traffic would add to the danger of operation. Carleton S. Cooke of counsel for the commission contended that this could be prevented by an adequate signal system.

The hearing will be continued on June 27.

PRIEST SAYS HIS MEN DUMPED POISON IN LAKE

In His Absence, He Says, They Put in Sulphite of Copper to Kill Weeds, Slaying Fish.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 19.—The Rev. John A. Nageleisen, pastor of St. Michaels's Church at 135 East Second Street, New York, and supervisor of a camp on Congers Lake, Rockland County, came to Albany today and told Llewellyn C. Legge, Chief Game Protector of the Conservation Commission, that several hundred pounds of sulphite of copper, which he bought, had been dumped into the waters of Congers Lake, killing thousands of fish.

Father Neagleson told Mr. Legge that he had bought the sulphite of copper to kill weeds about the lake shore bottom. He was not at home when the material arrived and he said that men in his employ dumped it all into the water at one time, thus killing the fish. He assumed full responsibility for the act, and said the killing of the fish was not intentional.

Father Neagleson went with Mr. Legge to the State Department of Health and conferred with C. A. Holmquist, who, it was decided, will make his own investigation. The Conservation Commission is also conducting its investigation and the facts will be turned over to Attorney General Ottinger.

Mr. Legge said that he would await the report of Game Protector E. J. Knapp, due in a week.

The dumping of the sulphite of copper into the lake has caused many protests to the Conservation Commission.

BOYS' FIGHT STARTS RIOT.

Firemen Quell Newark Race Battle With Hose—15 Arrested.

A fight which started between two small boys when one of them tried to creep under a tent into a circus at South and Pacific Streets, Newark, on Thursday night, developed into a race riot in which a score of white men and as many negroes participated. No one was seriously injured, although several of the participants received minor bruises.

When firemen at Vesey and McWhorter Streets brought high pressure hoses into play, after one negro had emptied a revolver at several white pursuers, the riot was finally quelled. Two revolvers, several knives, razor, a dagger and a cartload of bricks were gathered by police after the fight. Thirteen negroes and two white men were arrested. William Martin and Gus Baynes, both negroes, were held on charges of carrying concealed weapons. The other prisoners were fined $10 each and released. The police say they found a pistol in Martin's possession and a razor on Baynes's person.

The fight started when William Robertozzi, 13 years old, a white boy, tried to creep under the circus tent. A small negro, known as "Dynamite," and employed by the circus as a freak, tried to eject him. White men took William's part, whereupon negroes came to the aid of "Dynamite." In a few minutes the air was filled with missiles. The negroes were finally driven from the circus by a throng of whites.

UNEARTH OLD ROMAN COINS.

Americans at Karanis, Egypt, Have Dug Up 3,100 This Season.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 2 (AP).—Two hoards of coins were brought to light by the University of Michigan expedition, excavating on the site of ancient Karanis, in the Fayoum. Both hoards belong to the period of the Roman Empire.

One was found in an earthen jar, which contained 1,185 well-preserved small coins of the sort known as minimi. They date from about the end of the fourth century, and a large number bear the names of Theodosius and Arcadius.

The second hoard was found in the sand under a hole in the floor. It comprises 816 coins, in exceptionally fine condition. These are dated in the second and third centuries, from Marcus Aurelius to Maximinus.

The total number of coins found by the expedition this season is reported by James L. Starkey, who has charge of the digging, as 3,100. A large proportion of the coins will be added to the numismatic collection of the University of Michigan.

OLYMPIC DELAYED BY TIDE.

Sails at 5 Instead of 1 o'Clock—J. McK. Bowman a Passenger.

The White Star liner Olympic, which was scheduled to sail for Cherbourg and Southampton at 1 o'clock this morning, did not get away until 5 o'clock because of the tide.

Among the passengers was John McKay Bowman, the Chairman of the Biltmore Hotels Organization, who is going over on a business trip. He will investigate the conditions in Europe, and also in Egypt and the Far East. Another passenger was Miss Margaret Kelley, who is going to introduce American pantomime to London; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Adler and Will Page, representative of Charles Dillingham.

KELLY TESTIFIES AT GRAFT HEARING

Admits Department Carelessness in Making Collections for Market Permits.

EXPLAINS VILANSKY'S CASE

Closed Peddler's Stand on Death Report Although Licensee Had Been Buried Six Months.

John M. Kelly, who succeeded Mrs. Louise Reed Welzmiller as director in charge of the open air pushcart markets, was the first witness called by Assistant District Attorney Jacob Gould Schurman Jr., when Magistrate George W. Simpson resumed yesterday his investigation of graft and oppression in the Department of Public Markets.

Mr. Kelly, under close questioning, admitted that Supervisors Klein and McMasters had failed to take proper action in connection with collections made from David Vilansky, peddler, covering a period of five and a half months, on a market permit which had been issued in the name of Joseph Kosky, formerly Vilansky's partner.

Asked to explain why he had authorized that Vilansky be put out of his place in the market last Tuesday after Vilansky had testified to demands made upon him by Klein to have the permit in Kosky's name reissued in his own, Kelly replied that Vilansky's stand had been closed because on Tuesday Chief Supervisor Gustav Soderburg had notified the Department of Markets that Kosky had died. Mr. Schurman brought out the fact that Kosky had been buried almost six months.

Kelly declared that he and his subordinates were against graft in his department and admitted that if other peddlers should find that immediately after their giving testimony they were turned out of the markets, it is likely that an unwillingness to testify would develop.

Mr. Schurman brought out that permit cards ordered in December, 1923, had not been delivered until February, 1924, and had not been put into effective use until within the last two weeks.

J. Fuerstein, called to verify testimony given by Samuel Greenburg at a previous hearing, said that he was at the stand owned by Samuel Greenburg on a Saturday afternoon about two years ago and remembered that after Greenburg had a brief talk with a man known as "Nat," Greenburg was taken to the Clinton Street police station on complaint of "Nat." The witness also stated that Greenburg was later fined $50 in Essex Market Court.

Kelly, recalled to the stand, said he saw nothing significant in the loss of Vilansky's permit on the afternoon of the day on which he had testified against Supervisor Klein.

Magistrate Simpson asked Kelly if he was aware that Vilansky had a wife and six children dependent on him and that through loss of his peddling permit all eight had been deprived of their only means of support.

Kelly replied he had read of this in an afternoon paper.

Magistrate Simpson, before adjournment, announced that all persons against whom charges of graft, extortion or threatening witnesses had been made would be granted a hearing on Monday morning, June 22 at 10:30. The Magistrate said that voluntary action in this respect would make issuance of a subpoena unnecessary.

IGNORES LIBEL CHARGE.

Grand Jury Fails to Act on Accusation Against Editor and Son.

The Grand Jury refused to take cognizance yesterday of a criminal libel charge on which Charles L. Fowler, 40 years old, an editor, and his son, Louis H., 19, a student, of 23 West Eighty-third Street, were held about a year ago in $1,000 bail each in the Magistrate's court.

They were accused of having printed a scurrilous attack on the religious training of Governor Alfred E. Smith in the issue of the American Standard, distributed in the vicinity of Madison Square Garden at the Democratic National Convention. The action of the Grand Jury automatically abrogates the bail.

MEMORIAL TO 5 BROTHERS.

Revolutionary Soldiers Honored at Staten Island Church.

A memorial to five brothers who fought in the Revolutionary War, Paul, Jacob, Cornelius, Joseph and John Mersereau, was unveiled yesterday by the Daughters of the American Revolution in the Dutch Reformed Church, at Port Richmond, S. I.

Mrs. W. B. Chapman was in charge of the exercises. The memorial is a bronze tablet in the wall of the church. All five brothers survived the war, and all are buried in the graveyard of the church.

WANTS POLAR LANDS CLAIMED FOR MAINE

Gov. Brewster Authorizes MacMillan to Put the State Flag on Any Territory He Finds.

HOPES FOR FEDERAL ACTION

Explorer, in Speech at Wiscasset Farewell, Tells of Arctic Flowers and Butterflies.

Special to The New York Times.

WISCASSET, Me., June 19.—Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, at a farewell dinner tonight to Commander Donald B. MacMillan, authorized the Arctic explorer to plant the flag of the State of Maine on any unknown territory he might discover and claim it on behalf of the State. "It will then remain," he said, "for the Federal Government to determine whether it will recognize and protect our rights."

Governor Brewster's statement was regarded by the distinguished gathering, including officers of the navy as well as officials of the State of Maine and representatives of scientific societies, as a reply to Canadian contentions that any land MacMillan might discover would belong to Canada except under conditions which MacMillan's expedition is not likely to be able to observe.

Governor Brewster did not refer by name to Canada, but referred to it in this way: "If question shall arise with foreign countries their amicable adjustment in accordance with our Constitution is assured by the peaceful experiences of a century with our neighbors on the north."

Governor Authorizes Claim.

The portion of the Governor's address dealing with claims to polar lands follows:

"In perhaps no other field is Maine more clearly entitled to its State motto of 'Dirigo' ["I set straight"] than in the field of Arctic exploration, where our Admiral Peary led the world. The mantle of Peary now rests upon another man from Maine, who was a follower of Peary in the first stages of that epoch-making expedition that reached to the top of the world.

"Peary and MacMillan in their Arctic explorations have caught glimpses to the westward of what they believed to be a mountainous continent lying in a million square miles of the earth's surface that still remains to be explored. History does not record, nor does any country claim, knowledge of the secrets hid in that great space.

"Macmillan has found oil oozing from the hills in the Far North. This may account for the sudden interest in the discoveries of the expedition that on the morrow sets its sail.

"Macmillan is authorized, in so far as the power of the sovereign State of Maine extends, to claim in our behalf such land as he shall discover in this region that is still unknown.

"There is in this authorization no suggestion of letters of marque or reprisal or encroachment upon the sovereignty of any other nation upon the face of the earth.

"By the well settled principles of international law discovery is the primary incident in a claim to any land. If question shall ever arise as to this title ample constitutional provision is made for its determination by the courts.

"There appears nothing in the Constitution of either our State or nation in derogation of this inherent right of soverignity to claim territory which it shall discover or explore.

"If question shall arise with foreign countries their amicable adjustment in accordance with our Constitution is assured by the peaceful experiences of a century with our neighbors on the north.

"The flag of the State of Maine may be planted upon this territory which there is much to indicate may exist in that great space. It will then remain for the Federal Government to determine whether it will recognize and protect our rights."

Governor Brewster's request that MacMillan plant a flag when he discovered any land was seconded by Captain Douglas Dismukes, commandant of the Portsmouth Navy Yard, who said:

"If you find land there, dig as deep a hole as the instruments you have with you will permit. Put one of those Maine pines we have been hearing about in it, place the United States flag to the top, and we will see to it afterward that it is kept there."

His remarks were received with applause.

MacMillan Tells of Flowers in North.

Commander MacMillan did not refer to the Canadian situation in his speech. Instead, he told the diners gathered to do him honor that far from seeking bleak and desolate lands in the north, he was going to a region of flowers and butterflies. He said he wanted to explain to his hearers the true value of Arctic exploration, because, although a great deal had been said about where he was going, very little had been said about why he went there.

The popular conception of the great stretches near the North Pole, he said, was that it was a land of nothing but ice and snow. This could be shown to be an erroneous idea, he explained, by the fact that up to a year ago 770 different varieties of flowers had been found within 400 miles of the Pole. There is not as much snowfall there annually as there is in New England, he said. For not more than five inches of snow falls there on an average each year. Great herds of musk ox feed upon the grass of the region, he said, while within 700 miles of the Pole bumble bees, butterflies and even mosquitos abound.

That the shore of this land was receding and getting nearer to sea level provided data on the oscillations of the earth's surface. A part of Greenland is now covered with ice, he declared, where once it had been a great forest covered with trees as large as the giant redwoods of California. A coal seam twenty-five feet thick, which took 2,000,000 years to form, is located 9 degrees from the Pole, he asserted.

Other speakers were Gilbert Grosvenor, President of the National Geographic Society, which is associated in the expedition; President K. C. M. Sills of Bowdoin College, of which the explorer is a graduate and whose banner the Bowdoin carries stretched between her masts as she lies at the old whale wharf, and General Adolphus Greely, the oldest living Arctic explorer in the world.

Most of the guests at the dinner will come to Wiscasset tomorrow on a specially chartered steamer to participate in the start of the expedition.

Washington Keeps Silent.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP).—The views expressed by Governor Brewster of Maine tonight with respect to the right of Americans to claim sovereignty over land which may be discovered by the MacMillan Arctic Expedition did not serve to break the official silence that has been maintained in Government circles here as regards the blanket claim made by Canada to territory north of her established boundaries.

The attitude of the Washington Government to claiming sovereignty over land which might be discovered by its nationals, however, is fairly well settled. In general the position taken, either with respect to American claims it will support or to those made by other countries which it will recognize, is that the mere act of discovery is not sufficient. To become valid, it is held that a claim must be exploited and a bonafide attempt be made to put the territory discovered to some use.

TEHERAN, June 19.—After several months of discussion the Government and the Mejlis have approved the request of Dr. Millspaugh, the American administrator of general finances for an increase in his American staff. Dr. Millspaugh has gone on a two months' furlough, during which he will engage twelve new assistants at salaries ranging from $5,000 to $10,000 annually.

Financial, engineering and agricultural experts will be added to the staff. The Government is satisfied with the services of Dr. Millspaugh and the Mejlis is busy carrying out proposals for nex taxis, revision of old ones and increases in revenue suggested by the American Administrator.

SOCIALISTS HELD IN LINE

Reds to Be Prosecuted for Anti-War Activities—Treason Charge Likely Against Deputy Doriot.

PARIS, June 19.—Foreign Minister Briand, or whoever is directing the campaign for subjugation of the Socialist half of the Chamber majority, who during all last year dictated to Herriot and is now being forced either to accept dictation or leave the Cartel, scored another big point in this curious, long-drawn-out struggle when today he pinned most of the Socialists down to voting with the Government on the Morocco situation.

This morning, once more, the Socialists held a meeting to try to decide whether they would try to bargain with the Government or just get out of the majority. As formerly, they failed to reach a decision, and decided to hold a referendum of their members and the directors of the party.

At that moment M. Briand stepped in. Premier Painlevé had been announced to make a declaration, but the need for a declaration vanished during a day hectic with political moves. Painlevé did not even appear in the Chamber. Briand took his place when President Herriot of the Chamber announced one more demand by the Communist Doriot for an interpellation on the measures the Government is taking or intended to take to obtain peace with Abd-el-Krim.

M. Briand rose to ask the Chamber once more for a postponement of discussion. If Abd-el-Krim wanted peace, he said, all he had to do was to ask for it. As Painlevé did yesterday, Briand flung bombs at the Communists for dealings with the Riffian leader and seeking to produce a revolt among the soldiers. With his habitual skill he avoided the pitfalls of the situation and presented the case for the Government in such a manner that the Socialists had either to vote with the majority or rank themselves as sympathetic with Communist views.

Three less disciplined members of the party did raise the Communist vote from 29 to 32, but only 30 this time abment. The vote in favor of the Government was 525 to 32.

Obviously it is the intention that if a split comes it is to be on the finance proposals and even on them there is a chance the Socialists will accept their beating by Briand and Caillaux and remain with the majority for some time longer. They will have to accept what is decided and take what sop is thrown to them in the way of social legislation.

Technically they may remain within the majority, but their position has been reduced by this three weeks of battle from that of an essential element in a two-headed organization to simple voters who follow the Government.

French Offensive to Follow Vote.

PARIS, June 19 (AP).—Premier Painlevé, with the members of the Chamber of Deputies, excepting the Communists, solidly behind his Government, intends to prosecute the Moroccan war with greater vigor. An offensive on a large scale against the Moors may be expected within a few days.

M. Painlevé received a blanket endorsement from Parliament today on his Moroccan policy, and the French troops in Morocco are likely to abandon their defensive attitude, which they have been maintaining for the past five weeks, and strike a blow to restore France's prestige.

The vote of confidence was taken as giving the Premier a free hand in the negotiations with Spain for joint action and in conducting the war against the rebel tribesmen. Also it was considered as lifting the restriction limiting the French Government to "defensive warfare," which has characterized the operations in Morocco recently.

M. Painlevé late tonight issued a note saying that he would make a declaration at the opening of Tuesday's sitting of the Chamber of the Government's Moroccan policy and that he then would reply to all interpellations on the subject.

Previously the Premier announced that the scourging of Communist relations with Abd-el-Krim herely had been postponed, probably until uesday, to enable the Left bloc to try to repair their battered fences. He said he was ready today to make his revelations with regard to the activities of the Communists in the Moroccan warfare, but that the majority leaders favored giving the Socialists time to conduct a referendum to determine whether they would continue to support the Government, and if not how the Left bloc could continue.

M. Painlevé, in any case, has a certain majority on Moroccan affairs.

Measures to be taken against the Communists in France and her colonies formed a subject for earnest consideration of the Cabinet at a meeting today.

Proceedings will probably be taken, it is stated, against Deputy Doriot and other Communist members of the Chamber.

M. Painlevé is resolved to take stern action against Communist propaganda and will ask that Parliamentary immunity be lifted from the Communist Deputy, M. Doriot. It was indicated that M. Doriot is likely to be charged with "treason."

WARSHIPS BLOCKADE TWO MOROCCO COASTS

French and Spaniards Agree on Final Details and Begin Operations.

PARIS, June 19 (AP).—A blockade of the Moroccan coast by French and Spanish warships to prevent arms and munitions reaching Abd-el-Krim, the warring leader of Moroccan tribesmen, became effective at 5 o'clock this morning. The French and Spanish Governments reached an agreement last night regarding details.

There will be no supreme command but the French and Spanish naval units participating in the blockade will take instructions from their respective Admirals. French ships may enter Spanish zone ports and vice versa.

The blockade extends from Mogador on the Atlantic Coast to Alhucemas Bay on the Mediterranean, embracing the entire northern coast of Morocco.

Haste in sending reinforcements to Morocco was urged upon the French Government by the parliamentary commission sent to the Moroccan front in its first report made today to the military commission of the Chamber of Deputies. The report gave general approval to the hospital and sanitary arrangements already made, but also asked for parachutes and fire extinguishers for airplanes.

MADRID, June 19 (AP).—An agreement relative to concrete proposals for a maritime blockade to prevent military supplies from reaching the rebellious tribesmen in Morocco was reached by the Franco-Spanish Commission at its second plenary session today. An official statement issued after the meeting, which lasted for three hours, says that the agreement now will be submitted to the respective Governments.

The Commissioners also examined the question of a land blockade, but this subject was referred to a subcommittee for further examination. The subcommittee had already exchanged general impressions as regards joint action by Spain and France to effect a land blockade. The findings of the sub-committee will be submitted to a plenary session on Monday.

General Gomez Jordana, President of the Franco-Spanish Conference, declared after today's session that it was impossible to say how long the conference would have to sit, because of the many complex problems with which it was confronted.

FEZ, June 19 (AP).—An official communique today said French advanced posts north of Ouezzan had been relieved after a swift advance, aerial bombardments and stiff engagements. French forces reached their objective in the Beni Mesguilla district, after inflicting severe losses upon Abd-el-Krim's Riffians.

A. E. F. WAR MATERIAL TURNS UP IN THE RIFF

Tribesmen Found Wearing American Army Shoes—French Using Supplies Bought From Us.

FEZ, June 18.—Pity the poor uniforms of American and allied soldiers in the World War. Though their occupants are demobilized they go on fighting forever. After clothing both sides in all little wars since 1918, from the Poles and Russians near the Baltic to the Greeks and Turks beyond the Black Sea, they are now reported doing active service with Abd-el-Krim on the Ouergha front. His army is equipped not only with captured Spanish material but odds and ends of war stocks from all parts of Europe—English, Italian, German and French.

Some of the Riffian regular troops were found wearing American army shoes, shirts and belts, probably part of the stock disposed of in France after the war. Other equipment originally designed for the A. E. F., especially hospital supplies, may also be seen in the French Army. Riffian regulars wearing khaki uniforms with trousers like zouaves are reported more numerous on the Ouergha front, though the majority of Abd-el-Krim forces continue to be uniformed as rebel tribesmen.

In some places women and young boys have been found with rifles in the trenches fighting the French. Most women and children and many men, however, are now engaged in harvesting, which is carried on on both sides of the front by loyal and rebel tribes as it was by the American pioneers during the Indian wars, the harvesters carrying rifles slung on their shoulders. Both in the rich zone north of the Ouergha held by the rebels and in the Riff the excellent harvest may save the Riffians from threatened scarcity of food. It would permit Abd-el-Krim when this work is done again to employ all his forces if he has the time left to do it.

Meanwhile propaganda continues the most effective arm. Part of the important tribe of Bena Mesguilda, northeast of Fez, hitherto partisans of the French, are going over to the Riffians since the chief was killed in combat. It is said their defection leaves the Beni Fichtala, their neighbors on the south side of the Ouergha, in a jumpy frame of mind.

PARIS, June 19.—More than 80 per cent. of severe wounds among the French in Morocco are being transported to the base hospital by airplane with most excellent results, says Dr. Chassaigne, Radical Socialist Deputy, who returned today from an inspection of war hospital arrangements. French casualties, Dr. Chassaigne says, never have been very heavy, owing to the fact that the rifle is the Riffian's only weapon.

There have been up to date less than 500 killed and 1,600 wounded, with 346 grave cases.

The French air ambulance has been able to transport the most severe cases to the base hospital within two or three hours, with the result that surgeons could treat wounds while fresh, an important matter in a hot climate.

Dr. Chassaigne is optimistic about the campaign and declared in Chamber lobbies today the only necessity was a larger supply of ammunition and more airplanes.

PRETORIA CELEBRATES IN HONOR OF PRINCE

Old South African City Is Transformed for Great Reception to Royal Traveler.

PRETORIA, June 19.—The spirit of keen but friendly rivalry between cities of the Union has been an attractive feature of the Prince of Wales's tour. Pretoria prepared for his coming with tireless energy. When he arrived today it was a transformed city. Church Square which in early Republican days used to be an ungainly expanse of red soil with a primitive caravansary of Dutch farmers has been turned into a garden protected by granite balustrades and pylons and today was hemmed in by triumphal arches of overgreens. The old Raadzaal Building clothed its columns with royal red.

The Mayors of Capetown, Bloemfontein and Johannesburg came to Pretoria to witness today's ceremonies, and crowds lined the route to the union Building, where the Prince was saluted with a fanfare of trumpets. A massed choir sang Elgar's setting of the national anthem, while a prayer of thanksgiving was offered for the future King's simplicity and greatness of heart.

The Prince afterwards attended an old people's luncheon at the Town Hall, where he met 300 of the oldest inhabitants of the district, none of them being under 65. Many of the bemedalled veterans who played a part in the history of the Transvaal forgot their soup and chicken to cheer the Prince. He mounted a platform and spoke a few sentences in Dutch to them. Later he played golf, watched a football match and drove round the outer forts.

WHITE IS RECOVERING FROM LEOPARD CLAWING

American Writer Will Continue His Hunting Expedition in Africa.

NAIROBI, British East Africa, June 19 (AP).—Although Stewart Edward White, the American writer, received some nasty gashes in his recent encounter with a wounded leopard while hunting big game in the Tanganyika region, the wounds are healing, and he intends to continue on his expedition.

The incident, according to details just received, occurred near Kilimafeza. Although the party hunts in native style, with bow and arrows, rifles are taken as a precaution. Mr. White was accompanied by a native gun bearer and a native boy. Apparently he had wounded the leopard with a rifle. The animal escaped into the bush, followed by the gun bearer, who was attacked and badly mauled. The boy followed with a rifle which he fired, diverting the leopard's attention from the gun bearer, but the boy himself was then mauled.

Mr. White dashed to the scene, and fired again, wounding the animal, which sprang at him, tearing his left arm and shoulders. The author was able to unsheathe his hunting knife, and with this he jabbed at the leopard's throat, killing it.

NORWAY REJOICES AT AMUNDSEN FEAT

tion in King's Bay, without claim of copyright:

"When it was rumored at King's Bay that the Heimdal (the Norwegian Government's Amundsen relief ship) was to clear for Dane Island at 10 o'clock in the evening, many people went to the pier to watch her departure. The midnight sun's rays penetrated the light clouds.

"Out in the Fjord a small vessel was noticed making for King's Bay with many persons on deck. Aboard the Heimdal and the Hobby (another relief expedition vessel, which lay alongside each other, it was supposed this was the launch chartered by the Associated Press to follow the patrol expedition northward. The onlookers waved to the occupants and yelled joshing remarks, while those on board the little craft waved in response.

"Suddenly some one on the Heimdal remarked, 'But it's Amundsen,' and at once every one knew it and he was spontaneously hailed with hurrahs. The six men on the Sjoeliv waved their hands. Soon the Sjoeliv was alongside the Hobby and the men disembarked.

"The whole pier was quickly black with people who enthusiastically cheered. Just at this time the members of the patrol expedition from the Heimdal were at a meeting with the chief of the coal company, discussing details for the patrol expedition.

"The departure of the Heimdal for Wellman's Bay was set for 2 o'clock in the morning, and as the members (of the patrol expedition) began to go back to the ship a man suddenly came running up, yelling, 'The Amundsen boys are here.'

"The members of the patrol called it a poor joke, but then they heard the cheering on the pier and discovered the newly arrived little vessel. They jumped aboard the Heimdal, which was nearest the pier, then over on the deck of the Hobby and down on the Sjoeliv, where the six polar fliers, dirty and bearded, but living and safe, were nearly mobbed by sailors and laborers who cheered and shouted.

"The patrol expedition's members embraced the returned fliers; all were laughing or crying with joy. All chatted incoherently. They were only able to say, 'It can not be true. We must be dreaming.'

"Then all went together to the home of the director of the coal company, where the national anthem was sung by the crowd."

The story says the returned members of the polar expedition got to bed late the following morning, at King's Bay.

Tribute Is Paid to Ellsworth.

During the day Captain Amundsen sent a dispatch to Premier Mowinckel informing him that although he had surveyed 160,000 square kilometers in his flight there were no indications of land.

"The cast of the lead in our most northerly latitude," the message added, "gave 3,750 meters, which leads to the safe supposition that no land exists in the Norwegian sector of the polar basin."

Captain Amundsen also thanked the Premier for his arrangements for the expedition.

The expedition's meteorologist, M. Calwagon, thinks the flight is of great importance meteorologically, inasmuch as Lincoln Ellsworth, the American co-leader with Amundsen of the expedition, took most exact observations. M. Calwagen is confident that Ellsworth has made a splendid record.

From prominent citizens, scientific societies, politicians, Arctic experts and friends and admirers a large number of messages were sent today to the fliers at Spitzbergen.

Special articles in the newspapers praise Ellsworth as the man who made the expedition possible. They say that Ellsworth will be popular everywhere; that he is of the solid American type, has a charming personality and captivates every one with whom he comes in contact. The articles add that the American is a scholarly scientist who already in his comparatively short life has achieved more than most scientists achieve.

The participation of Ellsworth in the expedition, say the newspapers, was not due to his love of adventure, but to inspiration and scientific spirit.

The American Minister, Laurits Swenson, said today that the news of Amundsen's happy return would be hailed and cheered throughout the United States. America had great sympathy for Amundsen, and admired his viking audacity and ability as an explorer.

"We, of course," the Minister declared, "are doubly interested because an American made it possible for Amundsen to get the expedition going and because he took part personally in the hardships of the expedition. We are glad the name of Ellsworth is so closely linked with the expedition.

"I am a personal friend of Amundsen, and of course I am happy with the rest of the world that he has returned safe and sound, having added new leaves to his laurel wreath and written in golden letters a new chapter in the Norwegian nation's glorious history."

Expected to Fly to Oslo.

It is expected here that Captain Amundsen will follow out his determination, expressed before his polar attempt, to fly to Norway on his return from Spitzbergen. This flight, it is believed, will be attempted as soon as his remaining plane is returned to Kings Bay and overhauled.

The Aftenposten terms Amundsen's flight the greatest, most interesting and most adventurous that could have been made for exploration of the unknown parts of the globe. According to the messages received, the paper says, he achieved scientific results beyond any attained by previous Arctic exploration. The fact that the Pole was not reached the newspaper finds of little importance, since the observations taken by the fliers exclude the possibility of finding land this side of the Pole.

The Aftenposten expresses the thanks of the nation that Amundsen did not abandon his intention to fly to the Pole, but held fast to the ideals and determinations of his youth.

"We have no greater name than Amundsen's in Arctic history," the newspaper says. "We have special praise and salutations also for the foreigners in the party, Lincoln Ellsworth, the American, and Karl Feucht, the German mechanician, both of whom risked their lives in the undertaking. We appreciate highly their contribution."

The Tidenstegn characterizes Amundsen's trip as "a dash for new knowledge," and says its greatest achievement is the fine example of endurance and will power established by the members of the expedition.

The Morgenbladet declares that Amundsen's observations confirm the theory of the Arctic explorer, Dr. Fridtj of Nansen, that the North Pole is surrounded by a deep-water basin, and confirm also the declaration of Admiral Robert E. Peary, the American discoverer of the North Pole, that the Pole is covered by ice and water.

"However, the scientific result of the expedition cannot stand comparison with the personal work of these six men who held their own against nature's hindrances by superhuman toil and succeeded in working their way back and at the same time making scientific observations," the Morgenbladet adds.

COPENHAGEN, June 19.—The Arctic explorer, Knud Rasmussen, states that from a scientific standpoint it is of no importance that Captain Amundsen did not reach the North Pole.

"Amundsen," he says, "has shown that the time has come for the using of flying machines for Arctic exploration. It is to be noted that Amundsen went by air and returned by air. It is my opinion that his flight will revolutionize the means of Arctic exploration, especially in explorations over long distances.

"One thing, however, has been shown by the experience of the expedition, namely that it is necessary to have several airplanes or seaplanes at one's disposal when one wishes to succeed in spite of possible accidents."

Hears New Attempt Will Be Made.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 19 (AP).—The Social Demokraten publishes a report from Oslo stating that Captain Roald Amundsen is dissatisfied with the results attained and is "quite determined to resume the attempt" to reach the Pole.

The explorer is quoted as declaring that the experience gained in his present attempt would enable him to attain his goal.

The other members of the expedition, the account continues, appear equally animated by a desire to beat the aerial polar expeditions planned by other countries. They expressed the view that important scientific results had been achieved thus far. Captain Amundsen himself was reticent.

Amundsen's comrades were unanimous in their appreciation of his leadership. The American member of the party, Lincoln Ellsworth, was saddened by the news awaiting him of the death of his father in Italy during his stay in the North, but said that he would continue his financial backing of Captain Amundsen.

AMUNDSEN'S FEAT STUDIED IN LONDON

British Explorers and Fliers Hope to Learn Much From His Experiences in the Arctic.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—Captain Roald Amundsen's flight to the Arctic has aroused keen interest in geographical and aeronautical circles here today. The British Air Ministry expressed high commendation of the most northerly flight ever attempted and is awaiting anxiously for full details in order to clear up certain points of the explorer's narrative. Experts here disclose that he seems to have conquered difficulties which were quite beyond the experience of other fliers.

Thus Captain Amundsen says that plane N-25 as soon as it took to the water "became locked between the masses of ice" and that a little later the N-24 was gripped also. This in the opinion of experts shows the extraordinary strength of this particular type of plane. As is well known, whalers dread nothing more than being caught in the ice, and the story of how Captain Amundsen's machines managed to resist the ice pressure and how he succeeded in freeing one from the ice will be studied here with close attention for the light it will throw on construction problems.

Experts here are also anxious to know how the explorers succeeded in starting engines once they stopped. Presumably the radiators were frozen in a cold severe enough to freeze the seaplanes in, and some method must have been adopted to get them in working order again.

But the most interesting point of all to those who have seen an ice pack is the way in which the starting place could be cleared by a handful of men. A plane, even when lightened to the lowest possible load, needs 100 yards of a run before it takes the air and Captain Amundsen must have had extraordinary luck, it is felt here, to find floes smooth enough for the machine to taxi over them. It is presumed here that Captain Amundsen landed at North Cape in North East Land through the natural desire to touch the first land he saw, whence in any case it was possible to make a trek afoot. He knew he was within touch of whalers there, but it was pointed out by those who know Spitzbergen that if he had held on less than an hour longer he would have actually found trappers who live there all the year round, and who would have undoubtedly been on the lookout for his expedition. Wijde Bay, a broad inlet, is almost certainly open water at this time of year, or at any rate has open leads. It is only thirty or forty miles from North Cape. There are trappers' huts on its shores and others just beyond.

Oslo dispatches state the Heimdal left Spitzbergen last night for Lady Franklin's Bay to bring back Amundsen's airplane. Amundsen and party are expected to reach Oslo in a fortnight's time.

Measurements of ocean depths taken by Amundsen are held by Dr. Skattun, President of the Norwegian Geographical Society, to prove there is no land on the Norwegian side of the Pole. That Amundsen found no indications of land to the north of Spitzbergen was to be expected, says the London Daily Chronicle. Had there been such land the wreck of the Jeanette, which has long been fairly well chartered, could not have taken the course it did.

The most interesting result of the expedition in the view of the explorers here is the exploding of the theory that there was a great continent north of Spitzbergen.

Commander K. Prestrud, Naval Attaché of the Norwegian Legation, a great friend of Captain Amundsen's and his companion on the South Pole expedition of 1912, said:

"Dr. Nansen's idea of the European side of the North Pole has been confirmed. Captain Amundsen went 120 miles nearer to the Pole than Dr. Nansen and was unable to find traces of land and his soundings at 88 degrees showed a depth of 3,000 meters. With that depth of ocean there is no reason to suppose that land rises suddenly toward the Pole."

Captain Gibb Ellis, pilot of last year's Oxford-Spitzbergen expedition said:

"The age of miracles is not past. The miracle is that Captain Amundsen was able to extricate one of his planes, and as for finding smooth ice for a takeoff I am lost in admiration. Such would not happen once in 100 times. I expected it would be necessary to abandon the planes and return afoot, but Captain Amundsen has shown that it is possible to fly back as well.

It is generally believed that Captain Amundsen will try again. It is held that the persistent explorer after getting so near to his goal at the North Pole by a hitherto untried method has learned from his first failure enough to make the second attempt almost sure of success. The popular guess is that young Ellsworth will be found ready to finance him. It is thought that Amundsen can now make recommendations on fuel-carrying capacity and other changes which would tend to insure a greater flight range the next time.

Commander C. S. Bernacchi, who was the physicist on the Southern Cross expedition, says that the flight was one of the finest performances of British-made engines.

The whole achievement, he said, is a compliment to the resourcefulness of Amundsen. His observations rather bear out the work already done by Dr. Nansen and Admiral Peary in regard to the existence of a large and deep Polar basin in this area. Undoubtedly the water must be deep at the Pole.

"Retrieving one of the airplanes was a very great piece of resourcefulness.

"The expedition was a significant lesson to British engineers, for it indicates the great possibilities of the caterpillar airplane for transportation for the purpose of geographical exploration. More especially in the Antarctic regions it would be useful, for in the Antarctic are large continental areas almost unexplored.

"It has always puzzled me how Amundsen would get his position while in an airplane. He refers to Goerz's solar compass, and it will be interesting to learn more about this compass, which appears to have solved the difficulty which hitherto confronted explorers."

Dispatches published here say Amundsen found the conditions much harder at the South Pole, and state that the hardships left a heavy trace on the experienced explorer, whereas the amateur Ellsworth showed the least traces of their experiences. However, generally speaking, all the men are reported in fairly good shape.

The Westminster Gazette expresses the opinion that Captain Amundsen's adventure will change the whole nature of polar exploration.

"It is a novelty in the history of Arctic adventure for an expedition to set out for the North Pole, to create such uneasiness that preparations for a relief expedition are undertaken, and come back again to civilization all within the space of twenty-eight days. That is what Captain Amundsen and his companions have done, and if their enterprise has not produced any results of great scientific value it at least suggests that the development of the airplane, or possibly the airship, may enable journeys to be made in a few days that occupied explorers of the old school for years. It has greatly increased the possibilities of scientific investigation of even such inhospitable regions as those of the Far North.

"He has learned much, no doubt, of behavior of the airplane in extreme cold and the way it should be handled over an icebed. And it may be assumed that he has paved the way for a more successful attempt the next time. Since Captain Amundsen has come so near to success it is certain that either he or some one else will repeat this experiment, as it is certain that Mount Everest will the the subject of future attack."

The Morning Post says:

"There can be no question that the Pole will soon be reached by the air, whether by Captain Amundsen himself or by some luckier rival.

"Who would have imagined when the Wright brothers were carrying out their early experiments in the face of so many discouragements that the day would come when in the ice-bound and often fog-enveloped regions, a British air engine would prove the means of salvation of polar explorers? The great danger to the expedition was that the engines would not start, or that the cooling water would freeze. Such fears proved groundless, though 20 degrees of frost was registered in the gondolas.

"Captain Amundsen and his companions have conjured up new possibilities of travel. Their adventure suggests that the time may come when men flying over the North Pole will reach Japan in a couple of days. They have opened a new chapter of the short but already crowded history of aviation in the service of man."

REICHSTAG CHEERS AMUNDSEN

Germans Hail the Safe Return of the Arctic Explorer.

BERLIN, June 19 (AP).—The return of the Amundsen expedition was hailed in Berlin today with as much jubilation as if Amundsen were a German. An announcemeent in the Reichstag by Speaker Loebe that he had wired felicitations to "the intrepid Arctic explorer in the name of the Reichstag and the German people" was cheered to the echo.

The Lokal Anzeiger published an expert estimate of the flight by Professor Otto Baschin, custodian of the Geographical Institute of the University of Berrin, who is of the opinion that "Amundsen's failure of success in reaching the Pole teaches the lesson that Spitzbergen is not adapted as the starting point for explorations of the unknown Arctic."

Professor Baschin says the area which the Canadian explorer Vilhjalmur Stefansson termed "the area of greatest accessibility" is located on the American side of the North Polar Sea. Therefore he believes Donald B. MacMillan, the American explorer, stands a better chance of success, as he is establishing his bases in the North Greenland Islands.

The Vossische Zeitung quotes the Russian polar explorer Professor Dr. Breitfuss as saying:

"The exploration flight, proving unsuccessful with the greatest Pole explorer, proves again that the vast polar stretches may be traversed only in a large airship. This is the reason why it is desirable that the International Aero Investigation Society, started in Germany, may soon succeed in arranging a plan for Arctic exploration with an airship."

Captain Walter Bruns, a German aerial authority, today expressed the belief in the National Zeitung that, considering the total former attainments, Captain Amundsen's flight is of extraordinary scientific significance, as by it all former theories regarding this part of the Arctic apparently are confirmed.

"The enormous energy, combined with vast experience, which enabled Amundsen to save himself and his companions after weeks of struggling under the severest elements," says Captain Bruns, "compel admiration. The flight proves the inadvisability of further airplane attempts for this purpose and the desirability of employing an airship, which has the advantage of being able to make a perpendicular descent to the surface of the water for measurements and observations."

AMUNDSEN CONFIRMS PEARY.

Both Found Deep Water and No Land in the Vicinity of the Pole.

Similar ocean depths in the neighborhood of the North Pole were reported by Admiral Peary and Captain Amundsen, so that the work of the Norwegian explorer is to some extent a confirmation of Peary's account.

Captain Amundsen found the ocean approximately 11,000 feet deep between the eighty-seventh and eighty-eighth parallel, or a little more than 100 miles from the Pole. Admiral Peary reported the ice too thick to make a sounding exactly at the Pole, but he cut a hole through the ice on his return trip at the eighty-seventh parallel. He let a line down 9,000 feet without finding the bottom. The Amundsen soundings and Peary soundings were made at positions about 100 miles apart.

Neither Peary nor Amundsen saw land. The American carried strong glasses and mounted eminences along his route in his continual search for land. From his airplane Amundsen searched for land and covered an area of approximately 20,000 square miles, cutting down the world's unexplored area to that extent, without getting sight of land.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, said yesterday that he hoped Captain Amundsen on his next expedition would fly from Spitzbergen to Alaska.

"I was surprised that he did not make the attempt to fly across to Alaska," he said, "since doing so would have been very much more important than landing near the Pole. In view of the great improvement of airplanes in the past four years, it would not have been so dangerous as the Alcock-Brown flight across the Atlantic. Alcock and Brown flew about the same distance in planes presumably not quite so good as those which Amundsen had. I feel sure that the first man to try it will succeed. I am very glad to notice that Amundsen expects to try again and this time I hope his goal will be Alaska."

The freezing in of the planes after their safe landing in water would not have occurred if the expedition had taken place in July, according to Mr. Stefansson.

"If you are not going to stop, this is the best time for a polar flight, because there is less fog, but if you do intend to stop, July is a better time, because there is much more open water and no danger of freezing in after landing."

Asked what he thought of the chance for the discovery of land in the unexplored area near the Pole, Mr. Stefansson said:

"I think it is about fifty-fifty. Of course it would be ridiculous to speak of it as a continent, because the entire unexplored area is only one-third as large as Australia. Some people speak of Australia as a continent, others as a large island. There is not room in the unexplored area for an island half as large as Greenland.

"Harris, the originator of the theory that a large body of land exists in the unexplored area, set forth his conclusions before the North Pole was discovered and he placed the North Pole on land. Peary made a sounding near the North Pole and found no bottom at 9,000 feet. Amundsen reports that he got about 11,000 feet of water. On my expedition on the other frontier of the unknown region we sounded and got 20,000 feet of water. On still another side of this area we sounded and got 4,400 feet. Then on the opposite Dr. Nansen sounded and got 20,000 feet.

"In other words, the unknown area has extremely deep water on all sides except one. This means that if there is land there, it is no larger than Newfoundland or Cuba."

Regarding the reports of the northward flight of birds from the northernmost points of land known, Mr. Stefansson said that he was not impressed with this as evidence that undiscovered land exists.

"You will see birds fly north," he said, "but if you follow them long enough with powerful field glasses, you will see them change their routes."

BERLIN ASKS LIGHT ON SECURITY NOTE

Questionnaire Sent to Paris Requests Details on Germany's Entry Into League.

GOOD OUTLOOK FOR TREATY

French Press Approves Briand's Proposals as Giving the Best Obtainable Guarantees.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 19.—A German questionnaire asking further details respecting the French reply to the German offer of a security compact was received in Paris today. The French explanatory reply is under preparation this evening and will be sent to Berlin tomorrow.

According to the Quai d'Orsay, the French reply caused a fairly good impression in German circles, and the second phase of negotiations is expected to begin shortly under favorable circumstances.

It is reported the points on which Germany is asking details include principally her entry into the League of Nations without reservations or conditions.

Examining the text of the French security note today, the French press almost unanimously agrees the compact offered to Germany in response to the Reich's proposals of Feb. 9 is as complete a guarantee of European peace as could possibly be realized under present conditions. Obviously the weak point from the French view is the refusal of England to bind herself to intervention on the east front as she does on the Rhine front, but even this difficulty is believed to be solved in Great Britain's agreement to fulfill all obligations that may be imposed upon her by membership in the League of Nations should the League establish a case of aggression against the territories of France's allies in Eastern Europe.

In fact, for the French the most important document published in connection with the note itself is that concerning the liberty of France to occupy the Rhine zone in event of an act of aggression by Germany against any of her Eastern allies. It is generally conceded the note itself is not any too clear on the subject. Foreign Minister Briand, in order not to offend German pride, evidently had to glide over this aspect of the situation gently and diplomatically, but the French insist the stipulation is unquestionably there by reason of Austen Chamberlain's letter of June 9, in which the British Premier agrees the Rhine compact must in no way prevent France "from exercising any action conforming with the guarantees which she shall have been accorded under arbitration treaties between Germany and her neighbors."

British Arbitration Questioned.

One viewpoint which deviates from the general tone of optimism in the French press is that of Pertinax in the Echo de Paris, who declares the success of the Briand-Chamberlain compact is theoretical rather than real. "The pact is essentially bilateral, as noted in the speech of Mr. Chamberlain on March 24 and the recent speech of Mr. Baldwin," he says. "Between France and Germany the pact establishes British arbitration. If we ever want to cross the Rhine, this arbitration, determined by British interests and conceptions at the moment, will become for us a powerful obstacle."

In the main, however, the French press agrees the compact will constitute full protection of French interests if Germany becomes a member of the League of Nations and thereby binds herself to decisions of the League. The compact conforming sufficiently to German proposals of Feb. 9, the French do not see how Germany can avoid acceptance.

"Germany should be satisfied," says the Petit Journal, "if she accepts the pact without ulterior and secret motives. We are accepting, above all, the principle of reciprocity of guarantees. The pact which we are endeavoring to conclude imposes sanctions and obligations for all contracting parties alike. It guarantees the rights and frontiers of Germany as it does those of France. We are asking of her nothing more than that she respect the peace treaties and enter the League of Nations, which she can do tomorrow if she is not implicated in engagements and schemes on her eastern frontier difficult to admit."

American Interest in Security.

In this discussion of the security compact considerable regret is being expressed that it must go into effect without the adherence of the United States. General Taufflieb, examining this aspect of the situation in the Information, lays stress on the advantages to the United States from participation should trouble arise in the Far East.

"Ever since participation of the United States in regulating the problem of reparations through application of the Dawes plan," says General Taufflieb, "the United States, in fact, has adopted a course of action which logically should result in adhesion to a pact guaranteeing the security of the principal European nations. Would not such an accord help to solve the question of disarmament which our American friends hold so much to heart? In attaching its signature to a pact of this kind the American Government would give it force and authority such as would make the pact an irresistible instrument of peace. I know the reluctance of our American friends to become involved in new European quarrels. But let them turn their eyes to the clouds menacing from the direction of the Pacific and Asia. Are not events developing between Moscow and Peking which are likely to change the scene of international preoccupations? The struggle of tomorrow in all likelihood will find Asiatic peoples encouraged by Communist propaganda and supported by Japan on one side and the United States on the other, assisted by European powers in an effort to defend the present social state. In this struggle the United States will feel the necessity of having behind it the support of Europe, united, strong and fully prepared to concentrate itself to its cause."

Briand Expects Long Negotiations.

PARIS, June 19 (AP).—Aristide Briand, Foreign Minister, told the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee today in reviewing the nine notes exchanged between France and Germany and France and Great Britain, that France was only at the beginning of long and delicate security negotiations with Germany.

Both former Presidents Millerand and Poincaré took an active part in the discussion of the security question before the committee.

GERMANS DIVIDED ON VOTE.

Nationalists Reject French Proposals, Other Parties See Forward Step

BERLIN, June 19 (AP).—The comment in the Berlin morning papers on the security notes indicates that the German Government will have the greatest difficulty in persuading its own friends, the German Nationalists, of the advisability of continuing the negotiations.

The Nationalist organs are unanimous in describing France's suggestions as impossible.

The Deutsche Zeitung demands the retirement of Foreign Minister Stresemann.

The organs of the former so-called Weimar coalition, Centrists, Democratic and Socialist groups, while insisting that many points must be cleared up and that the French suggestions are open to numerous objections, nevertheless say the note constitutes a forward step.

The Democratic Tageblatt, however, expresses pessimism.

Some of the Conservative organs, such as the Allgemeine Zeitung, and the Deutsche Zeitung, say the Dawes plan will be seriously endangered if the French proposals are accepted because the latter contain a recognition of the right of the Allies to continue a policy of sanctions.

Foreign Minister Stresemann's Die Zeit, while observing a number of obscurities and contradictions in the French note, says "The French have retired from their original trenches by several stages," and urges a continuation of the negotiations.

Summarizing, it may be said that in so far as press comment reflects the attitude of German political parties, the Nationalists seem to be preparing the way for their withdrawal from the Government if Chancellor Luther and Foreign Minister Stresemann show a disposition to go too far in trying to conciliate the Allies.

What President von Hindenburg would do in such an eventuality becomes a matter of much speculation.

Professor Walther M. A. Schücking, Democratic member of the Reichstag and a member of the German delegation to the Versailles Peace Conference, declared in an address to the Pacifists Students Association yesterday that under no circumstances must the proposed security compact contain a demand that Germany recognize for all time her present territorial boundaries on the east.

Referring to western frontiers, he said: "We have already voluntarily renounced Alsace-Lorraine, as well as Eupen and Malmedy (the latter being Rhineland Provinces ceded by Germany to Belgium in 1919). This has been a tremendous sacrifice. Alsace-Lorraine is the treasure house of German kultur. But we renounced it in the interests of European kultur and to save Europe from further conflicts."

AUSTRALIA STUDIES COMPACT.

Government Will Decide Whether to Give Its Adherence to Security Plan.

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 19 (AP).—Premier Bruce of Australia told Parliament today that Australia had not been asked to become a party to the security compact proposed by Germany and that the Government had yet to determine whether Australia would adhere to the proposed agreement.

Premier Bruce said Australia had been kept fully informed of the situation during the progress of the negotiations, and that the Australian Government was now considering documents which would be laid before Parliament for the purpose of determining whether Australia should approve the agreement.

CONVICTS WOMAN WHO SLEW ILL SISTER

Two-Year Term for Paris Dressmaker Who Said Relative Begged to Be Shot.

PARIS, June 19 (AP).—Anna Levasser, a dressmaker, was found guilty tonight of murdering her sister, Anais, and was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

The prisoner told a graphic story of how she fired a number of bullets at her sister after Anais had begged to be put to death, as she knew she could never recover from tuberculosis from which she was suffering.

"Anais's lungs were gone," she said; "she was dying and she did not wish to die in a hospital. She had already been taken there and I got her back. I decided to kill her as she asked. I had no right to do it, but I did it to shorten her sufferings. It was very hard for me to fire at her."

Anna described the misery and pain of her sister, their landlord's notice to leave, and told how the other tenants in the house where they lived had asked them to go because the sick woman's presence annoyed them.

The Judge corroborated the prisoner's testimony concerning her sister's affection. He declared that all reports about her and her family were good. Then, turning to the prisoner, he asserted:

"You were devoted to your sister; you loved her greatly, and we know that to care for her you even went without food."

Describing the death scene, Anna said: "I helped her up and seated her in a chair. She had told me, 'You will shoot and I will move my head until it is finished.' Then I got behind her. I fired the first shot, but she was not hit. I looked at the revolver to see if it worked. I fired a second time, but her head moved weakly and she whispered, 'Not yet.' I could not understand why I was not succeeding. I fired a third and fourth time, and finally Anais's head did not move. I fired still another shot ot be sure I had not failed."

There were other cartridges left, with which Anna intended to kill herself, but she testified that she could not reload the gun.

"Then," she went on, "I understood that God did not wish me to die. God wished me to live as an avenger, for my sister's assassin is not I, it is the landlord who ordered us out of our poor lodging. God wished me to avenge my sister, and I am here only for that."

Throughout her testimony Anna frequently waved her arms and often contradicted herself.

Medical experts declared the woman feeble mentally but responsible for her actions. The public prosecutor argued she made a living with difficulty and wished to get rid of the burden of supporting her sister.

MUSSOLINI WINS POWER TO DISMISS OPPONENTS

Chamber Passes Bill Permitting Ousting of Civil Servants for Political Beliefs.

ROME, June 19 (AP).—The measure giving the Government authority, until the end of 1926, to discharge civil servants holding political opinions contrary to those of the régime in power, was passed by the Chamber of Deputies tonight. There was bitter denunciation of it by some of the Deputies.

Amid frequent interruptions by the Fascisti, Deputy Viola declared the measure aimed at the discharge not only of anti-Fascist officials, but even neutrals. The civil servants numbered half a million, he added, and the Government wished them to vote as it wanted them to, thus exercising violence against liberty, in order to insure the election of a Fascist majority.

Deputy Soleri stated that the bill marked exactly the conflict between Liberal and Fascist conceptions. "Indeed," he said, "the bill comes from the extreme lines of Fascism."

Premier Mussolini interrupted with the words, "It comes from me."

To this Deputy Soleri retorted: "I have never said you are not among the extreme lines of Fascism."

The Fascist Deputy Moreno supported the measure as aiming to strengthen the authority of the State without being anti-Liberal. He was followed by another Fascist, Magrini, who declared that the bill, next to that against secret societies, was the most important step made in the Fascist State. I was an act of courage and sincerity.

Deputy Rocco defended the measure as not aiming at the persecution but at the defense of bureaucracy. Its object was to establish a spiritual tie between the officials and the State, without which the loyalty of officials was impossible.

Demands Austria Deport Reds.

VIENNA, June 19 (AP).—In a note received yesterday from the Yugoslav Government, the Austrian Government was asked to clean out a hotbed of Bolshevism which the Yugoslav authorities insisted exists here. The note stated that the Third nIternational maintains headquarters in Vienna, from which the recent Bulgarian and Albanian disorders were incited, and that the Communist organ, Federation Balkanique, is published under the direction of the Communist organization here. The note requested the Austrian Government to deport Bolshevist agents within its territory.

ANOTHER CONDITION IN ITALY'S DEBT PLEA

Rome Will Ask to Receive Same Concessions as Other Nations Get Later.

EXCHANGE CRISIS EASES

But Government Is Ready to Use Morgan Loan Money to Support Lira.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, June 19.—The crisis in the exchange market which reached a climax after the close of the markets yesterday when quotations reached unprecedented levels showed signs of ending today, giving rise to conviction that the worst was over and a return to normal conditions might be looked for.

It is stated in official circles that while Italy's decision to discuss the repayment of its debts came at a timely moment at the height of the exchange crisis, this was only a coincidence.

Mr. Churchill in replying to a question about Italy's debt in Commons three or four days ago, said he would be able to reply more exhaustively in a fortnight's time. This proves the Italian Government had already approached the British Chancellor on the debt question.

It is understood that Ambassador de Martino will for the present conduct the debt funding negotiations in Washington. He will be assisted in the capacity of technical adviser by Gustavo Alberti, director of the Credito Italiana, one of Italy's chief banking institutions, who is in America on private business.

It is understood also that Italy, in addition to asking a reduction of the debt, several years' moratorium, a very low rate of interest, payments to be spread over a large number of years and special tariff facilitations, has requested that a clause be written in a funding agreement, automatically granting to Italy any special privilege granted to other debtor States in the future. This clause is suggested by the fear that Italy might be penalized for starting debt repayment negotiations before France and Belgium.

Finance Minister de Stefani, in speaking of interallied debts on June 2, said: "We cannot allow the balance of international payments to be disturbed by the settlement of interallied debts. Even creditor States generally admit the principle that any settlement must be subordinated to the debtor's capacity to pay and must not constitute a disturbing element in exchange."

Speaking in the Senate June 6 he said: "It is certain that no settlement of debts is possible, despite our good intentions, unless it is subordinated to our capacity to pay. The ability to pay arises from two sets of circumstances: First, the financial situation of the Government, and, second, the balance of international payments. Under the present conditions it is evident that the State budget and the balance of international payments could bear no further burdens.

A Rally in Exchange.

In the exchange market today both the dollar and sterling closed only slightly below yesterday's closing prices, but considerably below the lowest mark. Simultaneously with the rise in exchange the stock market showed a firmer tone, State securities and industrial stocks regaining some of the ground lost in the last few days.

The dollar, which closed at 27.05 yesterday, was boosted up to almost 29 after the close of the market, opened this morning at 27.20 and closed at 26.90. Sterling closed yesterday at 131 and was later bid up to 139. It closed today at a fraction below 131.

The consolidated loan on the day's trading rose 2½ points to 93, while all industrial shares showed a corresponding or even greater improvement.

More reassuring than anything else today was the general tone of the market, which reflected far greater confidence than had been displayed in the last few days. Fluctuations were less tumultuous and irregular than heretofore, while traders appeared calmer and more confident.

The crisis is not thought over yet and the situation is being closely watched in official quarters. Conferences between the Minister of Finance and leading bankers will be continued tomorrow when final arrangements for using a part or the whole of the credit granted by the Morgans in support of the lira.

NAPLES, June 19 (AP).—Francesco Cantelli, division head of the Italian Treasury, sailed for New York today on a special mission entrusted to him by the Finance Minister. It is generally believed the mission is connected with the debt settlement question or Italian credit in the American market, or both.

Signor Cantelli stated he would remain in the United States only a week.

Conversations in London Informal.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—There is curiosity here as to how far Italy has gone in intimating to Washington that she is ready to discuss with the United States the funding of her debt.

The semi-official statement in Rome saying that the Italian Government has formally intimated to the British Government it is ready to enter into definitive conversations for a friendly arrangement concerning debts is said here to be literally true, but there is no great hope of anything coming from them in the near future. The talks thus far have not passed the informal stage.

The Italian Government's announcement synchronizes with the sensational fall of the lira. The British Government would be delighted to think it possible in such a moment for Italy to begin to consider her foreign liabilities and hopes the public statement of her intention may assist in the recovery in exchange.

ITALIAN LIRA RALLIES; DAY'S GAIN 9.5 POINTS

Morgan & Co. Credit of $50,000,000 Is Believed to Have Been Called Into Action.

Italian lira, which sold down to a new low record on Thursday, scored a sharp rally yesterday and closed at a net gain of 9½ points. A steady demand was in evidence all day from Italian sources, and it was generally believed in foreign exchange circles that the $50,000,000 credit obtained from J. P. Morgan & Co. had been called into action, though no official statement was obtainable on this phase.

It was reported that one American bank had taken 500,000 lira, and there was general buying on cabled orders from Rome. This was generally attributed to reports that the Italian Government had at length taken a hand in the exchange situation and that effective measures would be taken from now on to curb violent fluctuations. Preparations for the funding of the Italian debt to the United States, the higher discount rate in Rome and the virtual completion of heavy purchases of commodities which had necessitated the sale of lira were mentioned as some of the factors responsible for the steadier tone.

The lira, which closed on Thursday at 3.66¼, ranged steadily upward yesterday until a high of 3.79½ was reached, after which profit taking sales by buyers caused a moderate reaction. The close was at 3.75¾.

Sharing interest with the lira in the foreign exchange market yesterday were the Scandinavian currencies, which moved up sharply again. Danish exchange reached a new high at 19.14 and Norwegian was quoted at 16.98. It was said that these exchanges had been selling out of line with other currencies, and this attracted buying based on the favorable trade showing being made by these countries. It was reported also that an agreement between the Danish and Norwegian Governments and a banking group had resulted in systematic support of their exchanges with a view to a steady, orderly advance.

SHEPHERD DEFENSE STARTS FINAL FIGHT

Preliminary Witnesses Are Called to Help Save Man Charged With Boy's Death.

ACCUSED TO TAKE STAND

Will Probably Be Star Witness in His Own Behalf on Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The State today closed the case against William D. Shepherd, in which it has tried to prove that he killed his wife's ward, "Billy" McClintock, to get possession of his $1,000,000 estate, and the defense began its case. No harder task of defense has been placed before attorneys, and their proposed witness personnel shows that they are limited almost entirely to shaking the credibility of the State's witnesses.

They can hardly prove an alibi because of the nature of the alleged crime; they can hardly deny opportunity and motive, for "Billy" lived with the Shepherds, and Shepherd drew "Billy's" will making himself the chief beneficiary. All they can do, according to general opinion, is deny that Shepherd ever saw Charles Faiman, John T. Marchand or the others who link him with typhoid germs, and attack their characters and prove by the Health Commissioner that there was a typhoid epidemic from oysters, which "Billy" ate frequently. They will try to show that Faiman could not have obtained typhoid cultures from the Department of Health in the free and easy way in which he says he obtained them.

Shepherd himself will take the witness stand, his attorneys say, probably on Monday, as tomorrow's is to be a short session. He will repudiate charges of meetings between himself and Marchand and Faiman, and then the jury will have the task of deciding as to who has been telling the truth. In Illinois the unsupported word of an accomplice is sufficient to convict, and Faiman has been indicted on the same charge of murder as an accomplice of Shepherd.

Whatever the jury may think of Faiman himself and his general reliability as a witness, his story was not shaken on any material point when he left the stand, unless the fact that he first said that somebody stole the tubes of typhoid cultures and later that he gave them to Shepherd may be taken as a contradiction sufficient to discredit him.

There was a long argument in Judge Lynch's chambers this morning as to whether or not Faiman's past history could be used in an effort to discredit him. Judge Lynch finally ruled that it had no bearing on the case, and Faiman's cross-examination by William S. Stewart was resumed. He showed some confusion as to meetings, and State's Attorney Crowe finally objected to the testimony, saying he was a little confused himself. Faiman said he had the cultures in question a month before he gave them to Shepherd, and Stewart tried to get him to remember who in the Department of Health gave them to him. Faiman said he just walked in and asked for them, and the boy or man at the door turned them over to him. They were to be used in demonstrating to students at his "university," he said.

Faiman was entirely unruffled when Stewart prodded him mercilessly as to whether he was not bootlegging the ten to thirty gallons of alcohol which he procured in connection with his school every month, and when he was questioned as to whether he performed operations at his hospital, although he is not licensed to practice.

Two former stenographers of Shepherd and his former law partner, Robert Stolle, testified for Shepherd when his case opened, and said that they never saw Marchand in Shepherd's office, where Marchand has said he visited Shepherd in answer to a letter asking for information on courses in bacteriology. Arthur T. Conway, who admitted that he had been in Leavenworth Penitentiary for selling narcotics, was placed on the stand by Stewart to attack Faiman's veracity. State's Attorney Crowe refused, laughingly, to cross-examine him. That ended the day's session, which was cut short because Judge Lynch had to attend a meeting of the Judges of the Circuit Court. There will be a short session tomorrow morning.

Says Miss Pope Will Get Fortune.

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP).—Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal Court, who has been the chief figure in the prosecution of William D. Shepherd, accused of causing the death of William N. McClintock, declared today that regardless of the outcome of the Shepherd trial, "Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancée, will come into possession of the McClintock fortune."

Judge Olson said Miss Pope eventually would be declared McClintock's lawful heir on the ground that Shepherd obstructed and held back the wedding contract.

"That wedding contract will be held binding in my judgment," he said, "and when it is, Isabelle Pope will receive all the personal property, one-half of the real estate and a life interest in the other half of the real estate. All except about $200,000 of the estate will go to her. She will receive the full rights of a widow. It was out of the kindness of her heart that she gladly agreed to divide the estate with the other heirs."

Testifying at the trial, Miss Pope admitted that the prosecution of Shepherd was preliminary to an attempt to break McClintock's will, in which he made Shepherd chief beneficiary.

BANDIT SENT TO SING SING.

Gets 7 Years 6 Months After Robbery and Fatal Pistol Battle.

Raymond McCormack, 19 years old, of 64 Gouverneur Street, whose hold-up escapade and subsequent pistol battle with eight detectives in front of Tammany Hall on the night of May 29 resulted in the killing of a passerby, was sentenced to Sing Sing to from seven years and six months to fifteen years when he pleaded guilty to robbery and assault indictments yesterday before Judge Koenig in General Sessions.

McCormack told the Court that since he was seven years old he had been a waif of the streets, and probation officers reported that the youth admitted that he always went armed and considered it his privilege to take human life on provocation, "because the world owed him a living."

A few minutes before the shooting the youth and another man, whose identity he refused to reveal, robbed James Mainella in his drug store at 146 Third Avenue. The bandits were fleeing with $280 which they had obtained from the cash register, when a policeman and detectives engaged in a pistol battle with McCormack. Cosmo Lebendowski, 21 years old, of 197 Twenty-third Street, Brooklyn, who was passing, was shot through the heart and died.

NEW DIRECTOR FOR LONDON.

Leopold Mugnone Coming to Covent Garden for Italian Season.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 19.—It was learned tonight, in advance of the formal announcement on Saturday, that the eminent Neapolitan conductor, Leopold Mugnone, would arrive in London Sunday as chief conductor at Covent Garden for the balance of the Italian opera season.

It is reported that the management is dissatisfied with the present conductor, Sergio Failoni, who appears not to have gained the confidence of the artists, particularly the orchestra, with the result that the latter showed to poor advantage this week after playing brilliantly under Bruno Walter during the recent German season. Failoni, who is quite a young man and said to be the prize pupil of Toscanini, attempted to emulate his master here, conducting without scores.

Mugnone is an old favorite in London, having conducted here for the first time in 1905. He has appeared here several times since. He appeared in New York in 1921.

CONCORDIA INSTITUTE GRADUATES SIXTEEN

Ministry Students Get Diplomas From Lutheran School—Applicants Are Sought.

George A. Romoser, President of Concordia Lutheran Collegiate Institute of Bronxville, N. Y., presented three scholarship awards at the graduation day exercises of the institute held last night at Aeolian Hall.

Oscar Walle of Hamlin, N. Y., received $125 for excellence in biology, Karl Breahne of Cincinnati, Ohio, received $125 for excellence in Latin, third year, and the Rev. William Schoenfeld memorial prize for religion was awarded to Martin Steege of New Britain, Conn.

The institute is a preparatory school for Lutheran ministers and the sixteen young men who were graduated from the college department will enter the Concordia Seminary at St. Louis, Mo. Twenty-two, who were graduated from the high school department, also received diplomas. The Rev. Henry Birkner presided at the conferring of diplomas.

The valedictory was delivered by Frederick W. Meuschke Jr., son of the Rev. Frederick Meuschke of Port Washington, L. I., who gave the closing prayer. The program opened with a hymn sung by the assembly, which was followed by a scripture lesson and prayer by the Rev. William Koepchen. The Rev. John Holthusen delivered the address.

President Romoser, in his address, announced that the new dormitory of the institute, now nearing completion and costing $425,000, would be dedicated on Labor Day. He said the institute wanted boys who would study for the ministry, and with the completion of the new dormitory there would be room for 184 boys.

The senior graduates who received diplomas were:

August W. Brustat, Carl F. Baase, Elmer C. Burgdorf, Arthur F. Brunn, Ralph J. Burow, Albert C. Griessel, Richard J. Goehring, Gustav M. Karkau, Edwin M. Kretzmann, Fred K. Kissel, Arthur A. Kleindienst, Walter E. Kramer, Frederick W. Meuschke, Hugo H. Ness, Arthur C. Repp and Carl A. Scheuerman.

BRYAN SAYS SCHOOLS ARE STATE'S DOMAIN

After a Conference With Prosecutors of Scopes, He Denies That Free Speech Is an Issue.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 19 (AP).—The State of Tennessee expects to sustain the law prohibiting the teaching of evolution in public schools of the State and is prepared to meet any attacks that may be made against it, William Jennings Bryan told newspaper men today during the closing hours of a consultation with attorneys for the prosecution of John T. Scopes for violation of the law.

Mr. Bryan defined the case as one in which only the right of the State to control the schools it creates and supports and the right of parents to guide the religious welfare of their children while in school were involved.

"The mistaken idea that the right of free speech and religious liberty was involved has been conceived," he said. "These, however, have nothing to do with the case.

"The recent decision in the Oregon school cases would seem to affirm both the right of the State to control the schools it creates and the right of parents to guard the religious welfare of their children while in school.

"Mr. Scopes has the right to say anything he pleases at any place except in the school room. He may speak on the street corners or he may hire a hall."

Mr. Bryan said he had not appeared as an attorney in a case of importance since 1897, when he acted as a voluntary attorney assisting the Attorney General of Nebraska in the Supreme Court in a case involving the rights of that State to fix the rates of railroads operating in the State.

All attorneys except the prosecutor employed by the State in the Scopes case, it was announced, are serving without pay and bearing their own expenses.

MERCHANTS JOIN FIGHT ON BRONX INCINERATOR

Association Protests Plan to Put Building Near the Hall of Fame.

The Merchants' Association has gone on record in opposition to the construction of a garbage incinerating plant on the Harlem River at 206th Street, on the ground that the odors would envelop the buildings of New York University and pollute the atmosphere of the Hall of Fame.

In taking action for the association the Board of Directors considered and approved a report made by the association's Committee on Sanitation and Public Health, which is made up of Professor Olin H. Landreth, Chairman; Dr. Haven Emerson, Louis L. Tribus and Joseph A. Warren. The reasons in opposition to the construction of the plant on the site are given by the committee, in part, as follows:

"While the proposed site of the plant itself is in territory classified and zoned as commercial and industrial, the territory immediately opposite this site is restricted residential territory of a high class. In this territory is located the campus and buildings of New York University and the Hall of Fame for great Americans. At the university reside and assemble many thousands of professors and students.

"The type of plant chosen for this project is one which where used has usually given either continuously or at more or less frequent intervals serious annoyance and offense from odors and from incinerator ashes and dust, and there is no reason to believe that these offensive conditions would be absent in the present case."

MADRID HISSES FLETA, METROPOLITAN SINGER

Opera Star Lashes Audience to Fury by Advising It Not to Stamp Feet.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, June 19.—Miguel Fleta, the Metropolitan Opera star, singing at the Murcia Opera House here last night before an audience paying $12 a seat to hear him, provoked the hostility of the audience to such an extent that he could not go on with the performance.

A long delay before the rise of the curtain tested the patience of the audience, and many began to stamp their feet.

On the rise of the curtain, Fleta, in prima donnalike fury, lashed the audience, saying that when requesting an opera star to sing an audience should clap and not stamp. The audience thereafter hissed him on every appearance.

Following the performance, Fleta wrote a public apology to the newspapers, asking the people to pardon his overwrought nerves.

Hipolito Lazara, the Spanish tenor, also known to Metropolitan audiences, recently was hissed off the boards for a similar outburst.

To Spend Ten Sundays in Jail.

MIAMI, Fla., June 19 (AP).—Every Sunday from now until Aug. 23 will be a day of rest for A. W. McCall of this city—and the city will see to it. He was sentenced to ten days in jail for reckless driving of an automobile while under the influence of liquor, but because he had a family Judge C. T. Hoffman decided that he must serve his sentence on ten consecutive Sundays.

RAID IN BRONX GETS RUM WORTH $29,000

Federal Agents, Led to 2 Houses by Anonymous Letter, Take Three Prisoners.

POSE AS FRUIT PEDDLERS

Locate One House, Invade It on Warrant, and Driver With Load Reveals Another.

Acting on information in an anonymous letter to Divisional Chief R. Q. Merrick of the prohibition enforcement forces, three agents raided two houses at 1,691 and 1,695 Monroe Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon and seized wines and liquors, as well as 1,000 gallons of alcohol, worth at bootlegging prices about $29,000.

Three prisoners and a new automobile were also captured. The prisoners were taken to the Bath Gate Avenue Station and charged with possessing the liquor. They were Max Chashin of 1,691 Monroe Avenue, Jacob Rice of 1,695 Monroe Avenue and William Cato, a negro chauffeur, of 39 Lawrence Street.

According to the report of the Federal agents, they had been in the vicinity of the raided houses for several days with a horse and wagon, posing as peddiers of fruit. Then, they said, suspicion centred on the house at 1,691 Monroe Avenue, a one-family house with a garage in the basement.

They secured a search warrant from United States Commissioner Knox on Wednesday and waited until yesterday afternoon to serve it. In the cellar, they said, the bulk of the liquor and alcohol was found, and Chashin was arrested.

One of the agents was in front of the house when he saw Cato drive up in the car and back it into the house next door at No. 1,695. According to the agent, Cato called out:

"What will I do with this stuff, Boss?"

The agent said he replied "What have you got?"

Then he said Cato told him "I have a full load." The agent searched the car and, according to his statement, found it piled with cases of liquor.

The house at 1,695 was searched, the agents said, and more liquor was found. Cato and Rice were then arrested.

The agents reported that they also found several cases of empty bottles, labels, a bottling machine and spurious revenue stamps. Two vans were used to remove the liquor, one load being taken to the warehouse and the other delivered at prohibition headquarters.

RAID ATLANTIC CITY CAFES.

Many Places Turn to Near-Beer After Warning Is Given.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 19.—Strong liquors were hidden and beers with a kick were replaced with innocuous beverages in many prominent cafés, saloons and smart cabarets of the resort here today, when county officers began raiding a number of places spotted by detectives. By the time the raiders from the office of Prosecutor Louis R. Repetto had secured evidence in one raid, warnings were passed around and there was a general closing down. Late raiders this afternoon found nothing but innocent-appearing bartenders anxious to please in the way of allowing search for seizure, and several raids were futile.

Reports that the raids had any political significance in connection with the nomination of Arthur N. Whitney by the Republicans were denied.

The proprietors and employes of places where the raiders found liquor were held in bail for further hearings.

SIX MORE PADLOCKS GO ON.

Sentences Will Close Brooklyn Places From a Month to a Year.

Federal Judge Robert A. Inch in Brooklyn yesterday ordered six places padlocked for terms of from one month to one year because of liquor selling.

The café of Walter Jacobus and Edward Kehrs, at 419 Oakland Street, Brooklyn, and the Five Corners Hotel, at 103 Hempstead Road, Lynbrook, L. I., were closed for one year each. The garage of Peter Marbio at 438 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, was closed for one month, and a room in the rear of the place was padlocked for one year.

The café of Henry Kline, 297 Stagg Street, Brooklyn, was closed for four months. A term of six months was imposed on the café of John H. Reilly and José Rodriguez at 66 Columbia Place, Brooklyn. The grocery store of Vincenzo and Antonio Calniala at 274 Hamilton Avenue, Brooklyn, was ordered closed for three months.

WORLD W. C. T. U. MEETS IN LIQUOR STRONGHOLD

Universal Prohibition Predicted by American Amid Edinburgh Distilleries.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, June 19 (AP).—Nearly 2,000 women from fifty-one countries, señoras, señoritas, mesdames, donnas, frauleins and ladies with plain and fancy titles but many more without them, are gathered here for the twelfth triennial convention of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which opened this morning with a session of the Executive Committee.

While the general officers considered committee appointments, resolutions and nominations of new officers, most of the delegates acquainted themselves with gray old Edinburgh, rich with the traditions of novelists and poets whose stories and songs glorify the Scottish trinity, the hearth, the home and the flowing bowl.

The tall chimney stacks of Edinburgh's breweries and distilleries rise everywhere to remind the temperance workers from all parts of the world that they are in the heart of the enemy's country. Two hundred American delegates, who arrived yesterday, were the most untiring sightseers preliminary to the opening of the general session.

"May we be united in spirit against spirits," said Lady Astor, M. P., in greeting the convention. During the afternoon session Miss Anna Adams Gordon of Evanston, Ill., President of the United States W. C. T. U., delivered an address on "Our International Progress and Power." A general reception tonight ended today's program.

World prohibition will be obtained through the education of the rising generation, Miss Gordon declared in her address to the convention.

"It will require at least a generation to stabilize in any country a national prohibition law," she said. "This stability can be assured by giving to boys and girls in public and private schools systematic, scientific temperance instruction. This foundation work is just as necessary today as it was when the W. C. T. U. was first organized.

"At this convention we must formulate for the leaders of tomorrow a program that will equip youth with a knowledge of the moral, economic and patriotic reasons for total abstinence and prohibition.

"Nearly all the peoples of the globe are making progress along a dry highway. We can be optimistic about securing world prohibition, since the entire world today is as near our coveted goal as was the United States twenty-five years ago.

"There are now fifty-one countries banded together with the white ribbon. These are all represented here today. Already in ten nations of our federation there are temperance laws that in some measure safeguard the children. In every country there should be protective labor legislation for boys and girls."

Stating the position of the W. C. T. U. on the problem of the traffic in drugs, Miss Gordon said:

"We believe that the production of opium should be limited to scientific and medicinal use."

World peace, she said, would come about through giving to the young histories that shall acclaim the heroes of peace and by changing modern beliefs from "conflict to conference." The united womanhood of the world, asking for peace, would be a power such as the nations never had known, she predicted.

Two Dry Agents Sent to Jail.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19 (AP).—James L. Worcester, a former Federal prohibition agent, and George W. du Pont, former investigator for the Law Enforcement League of Philadelphia, were sentenced today to four months each in the Mercer County Jail at Trenton, N. J., by Federal Judge Thompson for extorting $200 from a saloonkeeper. It was testified they promised not to prosecute him for violating the Federal prohibition law. Du Pont pleaded guilty and Worcester was convicted after du Pont appeared against him.

Raid Brooklyn Waterfront Cafes.

Posing as a special policeman of the New York Dock Company, Brooklyn, and wearing a uniform, Prohibition Agent Samuel Kupferman made the rounds of waterfront saloons in Brooklyn yesterday and found no trouble in buying liquor for himself and two other agents in plain clothes. He arrested five men in cafés at 67, 117, 167 and 183 Furman Street. Further efforts will be made, it was announced, to "clean up" the Brooklyn waterfront.

Syracuse Dry Agent Is Dismissed.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP).—The dismissal of Frank E. Sayre, a general prohibition agent, stationed at Syracuse, N. Y., was announced today by the Internal Revenue Bureau, the grounds being "conduct unbecoming an officer of the law." The Syracuse office has been under investigation for months and "unsavory" conditions were declared by officials today to have been found by investigators. Officials said no further action was contemplated there.

UNIONS CALLED RED AGAIN IGNORE TRIAL

Officials Will Be Expelled if They Disobey Third Call, Says Garment Chief.

ANSWERS TAXATION CHARGE

Declares Mass of Workers Are With Joint Board as Shown by Acts of Conventions.

None of the officers or members of the locals of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union responded yesterday to the second call for trial on the charge of spreading Communist propaganda and "boring from within." Israel Feinburg, Chairman of the Joint Board, issued a third call for trial next Thursday and said the accused would be expelled if they failed to appear.

Morris Figman, President of the International Ladies Garment Workers, asserted yesterday that the rank and file of the workers were with the parent organization and against the suspended officials of the three locals. He said:

"If any person is interested in finding out whether the effort of the Moscow agents and their New York fellow-union-wreckers to demoralize our organization has made any impression upon the great mass of our members, we advise them to visit the big headquarters of the Cloak and Dress Joint Board at 130 East Twenty-fifth Street and see for themselves what a sorry fiasco this Communist attempt to capture the cloakmakers' unions has turned out to be. The big building is thronged with workers from morning until late in the evenings; the business of adjusting complaints, of investigating grievances or receiving dues is carried on as usual, with the same calmness, efficiency and confidence of our members in the ability of their union to protect their interests as heretofore.

"The Cloak and Dressmakers' Unions of New York have in the many years of their existence faced similar disruptive outbreaks engineered by organized scab agencies and have invariably overcome them and preserved their union. This latest attempt to capture the cloakmakers' union is made by Communist adventurers who are trying out their 'revolutionary experiments' in the garment-making trades, which they regard as fertile, easy ground for their crazy, disingenuous and at bottom dishonest schemes. They have failed in this, because the overwhelming mass of our workers know too well that in the hands of these adventurers their union would not last a week, and our members are too practical, and understand their work problems and conditions too well, to risk their organization for the fake rainbows which this handful of irresponsible fellows is parading before them.

"To prove the total hollowness of the 'issues' which they are raising in order to camouflage their real purpose—the turning over of the Joint Board into the hands of Zinovieff's agents in New York—it is sufficient to mention their cry of 'unproportional representation' on the Joint Board. They know quite well that the conventions of our International Union are composed of delegates who are elected on the basis of proportional representation according to the strength of each local union represented. They know just as well that at the last three or four of our conventions this question of how the City Joint Board should be formed has come up regularly, and that each of these conventions has voted to retain the form of joint boards where representation is by local delegations, in order to give each craft and trade an equal voice and equal strength in these joint boards. If this form of representation on the joint boards is to be changed, it would be the business of our next convention, where the basic laws governing the union are made. Between conventions, however, the Joint Board and its locals must abide by our constitution, which represents the collective will and law of the union.

"It is needless to state that neither the Communists nor their blind tools in these locals are in the least concerned about these 'issues.' What they want is to 'deliver' the Garment Workers' Union to the Moscow dictatorship. Their manoeuvres, however, are foredoomed. The common sense, loyalty and devotion of the mass of our workers to their union is the stone wall against which they, like all the other scab agents that have gone before them, are battling in vain."

HEADS ACTORS' GUILD.

Brandon Tynan Elected to Succeed Pedro de Cordoba.

Brandon Tynan was elected President of the Catholic Actors' Guild of America for the coming year, at a meeting held at the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon. He succeeds Pedro de Cordoba.

The other officers elected were George V. Hobart, First Vice President; Eddie Dowling, Second Vice President; Victor J. Dowling, Chairman of the Executive Committee, the Rev. Martin E. Fahy, Treasurer; Helene Lackaye, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Mathew McPhilips, Social Secretary; the Rev. William J. Donahue, Chaplain, and Edward J. Kelly, Executive Secretary. All of these officers, except Mr. Hobart and Eddie Dowling, were re-elected.

A special program of theatrical entertainment was offered at the meeting under the direction of Charles J. McGoldrick.

their trouble was some occupational disease. X-ray photographs were made of the worker's mouths to see if the film would show any radio-active substance in the jaw, but the film showed nothing, he said.

Several months after this Miss Hazel Kuser of 76 Second Street, Newark, died in this city, where she had come to be treated by a dentist. She had extreme necrosis of the lower jaw and anemia. Dr. Martland wanted an autopsy made but before he could get in touch with the authorities here the body had been embalmed and sent home.

The County Physician then dropped the matter for a time until Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician for the Prudential Insurance Company, began to gather statistics concerning workers who had died in Orange and in other places of "anemia."

Public attention was called to "radium necrosis" as a new occupational disease for the first time by Dr. Hoffman in a paper read by him last month at the meeting of the American Medical Association in Atlantic City. Telling of five deaths, he said:

"Observations on fifteen persons, mostly young women, employed at a radium plant in East Orange, N. J., engaged in painting watch dials with a radium solution, showed that these women developed what at first closely resembled phosphorous necrosis, but since no phosphorous is used in the solution, the only alternative was that radium in minute quantities was the cause of the trouble. The situation calls for expert inquiry to avoid further and still more serious results."

Dr. Hoffman said that he hoped abandonment of the lip-wetting habit by the workers would cause the fatalities to cease.

Dr. Martland cooperated with Dr. Hoffman in his statistical work.

"We suspected these peculiar types of poisoning might be due to some radioactive substances," Dr. Martland said. "They were very unusual. This, however, is only a theory, and for that reason we must go slowly and in a scientific way. I do not imply that the company has not done all it could for its employes; it has, and an inspection by the State Department of Labor showed that the plant was in excellent condition and the workers well treated. It is simply that we are, I believe, up against something entirely new. I am sure the factory will cooperate to check this danger if it is found to be a real menace to health."

According to a State official, the substance used to illumine watch dials and other articles is made up mostly of zinc sulphide combined with small quantities of a radio-active substance, probably radium, thorium or some derivative. In the papers filed in her suit against the company, Miss Carlough said it was customary to bring the small paint brush to a point with the tip of the tongue each time before dipping it in the paint.

It is the theory of the investigators that in this way there is a slow accumulation of poison in the organs, which at first stimulates until it reaches a point where a rapid physical breakdown results. Miss Carlough's symptoms are similar to those her sister developed and blood transfusion has brought no relief.

Dr. Edwin E. Lemen, chief chemist for the Radium corporation, died two weeks ago. The deaths in addition to that of Mrs. A. Maillefer that have come to the attention of the county authorities were:

Miss Irene Rudolph, 124 South Seventh Street, Newark. Her jaw was operated on three times for necrosis and the cause of death was anemia.

Miss Amelia Maggia, 96 High Street, Orange. Died of blood poisoning due to sloughing of the jawbone.

Miss Hazel Kuser, 76 Second Street, Newark, necrosis of the jaw and anemia, died in New York City.

Miss Helen Quinlan, North Jefferson Street, Orange, necrosis.

Dr. Martland said he had heard there was another case.

Dr. Joseph P. Knef, a dentist of 972 Broad Street, Newark, said yesterday that he had treated several of the Radium Corporation's employes for infections of the jaw, among them Mrs. Maillefer and Miss Carlough.

Miss Katherine Wiley, Executive Secretary of the Consumers' League of New Jersey, said yesterday that her organization had been investigating and collecting data for several months to determine whether the company workers were the victims of an occupational disease. She had consulted Dr. Hoffman; Dr. Alice Hamilton of Boston and Dr. John B. Andrews, Secretary of the Association for Labor Legislation for New York, she said.

Miss Grace Freyer of 497 Tremont Avenue, Orange, told the authorities yesterday that after working several years in the plant she became ill three years ago and left. She said her teeth caused her such pain that she consulted Dr. John Alberts, a dentist, of Main Street, Orange, who found them in an "unusual condition," and sent her to Dr. Dunning, Sixty-eighth Street and Madison Avenue, in Manhattan, where she had been undergoing treatment ever since, following six operations on the jawbone.

Miss Adelaide Freyer, 22-year-old sister of Grace Freyer, also had been employed in the plant about the time her sister left, but she worked there only two weeks because she had been told by other young women that the work was dangerous. "Many of the girls knew the work was dangerous, but they were earning from $35 to $50 a week and were willing to risk the danger for the money," she said.

Funeral services for Mrs. Maillefer will be held this morning. The Rev. Dr. James C. Hazen of the North Orange Baptist Church will officiate. Interment will be in Laurel Grove Cemetery, Paterson.

A spokesman for the Radium Corporation declared its officials were convinced that there is nothing at the Orange plant which could have caused the sickness and death suspected from the luminous paint.

"There are fifty other manufactories in the United States where similar operations are conducted," he said, "and never before has anything of this kind come up. If conditions in our Orange shop are such that these things result, despite the safeguards which we have always provided, we are entirely ignorant of it, and want to know it as soon as possible so that they may be rectified.

"Only in its intensive form is radium destructive. It is used to cure cancer and to remove tonsils by withering, but in infinitesimal quantities it is commonly prescribed and is frequently given internally.

"This luminous paint of ours is composed principally of zinc sulphide and radium. The idea that it contains phosphorous is preposterous. Zinc is insoluble and harmless, and the radium in the quantity the paint contains, if it exerted any effect at all, should have a beneficial and not a baneful effect upon those who handle it. In its native form we use quite a large amount of it every year, getting it from the Colorado mines, but it is infinitely diluted before it is compounded into the paint.

"We have experimented with mechanical devices for applying the paint to the surfaces on which it is used but we have no success. It has been applied by hand for ten years in the Orange plant but not up until less than a year ago was it ever said that it was injurious.

"The zinc-radium mixture, which in its final form is a fine, dampened powder, is given in small crucibles to the girls, who apply it. They mix it with a proper amount of liquid adhesive and put it on with camel hair paint brushes. The work is not arduous and the workers, to our minds, are well paid.

"Because those who apply it are seated all day and their task is physically light, we have had among the 400 employes who have done the work in the past decade a number who were unfit for more strenuous labor. Consequently, when some of those already in comparatively poor health declined normally it was said that their handling of the paint was responsible.

"Four years ago, when objection was raised to fumes which neighbors of the plant said emanated from it, the State Department of Labor suggested some improvements which we immediately adopted. The department has inspected the plant regularly and has always found that conditions there were ideal.

"At present there are only a handful of girls employed in applying the luminous paint, but we have had as high as forty or fifty doing the work at the same time.

"It appears reasonable that if the paint has some harmful influence the effects would be the same. Yet in the most recent death the effect is said to have taken the form of anemia, while in a previous case of illness it was claimed to have manifested itself in necrosis.

"Radium, because of the mystery which surrounds much of its actions, is a topic which stimulates the imagination, and to our minds it is to this and not to actual fact that many of the reports of the luminous paint's effects in our plant may be attributed."

School of the Theatre Holds Its Graduation Exercises.

Twenty-five received diplomas at the graduation exercises of the School of the Theatre at the Princess Theatre yesterday afternoon. Walter Hampden, Vice President of the school, presented the diplomas and delivered an address. Other speakers were Mrs. Clare Tree Major, President, and Brock Pemberton, a director of the school.

Later three playlets were acted by members of the graduating class. They were "Hearts," written by Alice Gerstenberg; "We Live Again," by Thornton Gilman, and "The Conflict," by Clarice McAuley. About 150 persons were present.

The graduates were:

Brand, Phoebe E.	Kniep, Reinhold.
Brown, Helen M.	Lane, Rosebud.
Bull, Marion.	Manson, Margaret.
Daggett, Robert T.	Martin, Edward L.
DePew, Marion M.	Mason, Esther.

AID FOR HOSPITALS CREDITED TO HYLAN

Report Showing $20,000,000 Appropriations to Be Added to Campaign Documents.

ESTIMATE BOARD GETS IT

Mayor Requests 2,000 Copies Be Printed—Referred to Committee of the Whole.

Mayor Hylan took the occasion of yesterday's protracted meeting of the Board of Estimate to launch what was generally regarded as his third successive campaign document—a companion volume to "Seven Years of Progress" and "The A B C of Hylanism."

In the form of "a report of a special committee of the Board of Estimate on hospitals," it was a voluminous pamphlet containing a comprehensive survey of what the Mayor and the Board of Estimate have done for the New York City municipal hospitals and other welfare institutions, and a forecast of what the Mayor intends to do for them if re-elected for four more years.

These institutions have been under fire for months. Scores of civic and political organizations have adopted resolutions protesting against the alleged neglect in their maintenance and improvement and calling upon the city authorities to redeem buildings which were pronounced "firetraps."

The committee which sponsors the document consisted of the Mayor, as Chairman; President William T. Collins of the Board of Aldermen, Budget Director Buckley, Health Commissioner Monaghan and Public Welfare Commissioner Coler.

After stating that more than $20,000,000 had been appropriated or expended for the city hospitals in the last eight years, in addition to nearly $1,000,000 for fire prevention work and removing fire hazards, the report says:

"More has been done in the past eight years to modernize our municipal hospitals and improve their service than was accomplished in many years previous. Urgent needs have been or are being provided for and the plans that are being made for further additions and improvements will relieve the situation and put our hospitals on a thoroughly modern basis.

"The most extensive improvements made in a generation in our largest hospital, Bellevue, are well under way and will be in use next year. The large new Pavilions F and G, for which the city has appropriated $3,650,000, will accommodate from 350 to 400 patients.

"Two years ago $575,000 was appropriated to erect additional wings to the nurses' residence. These buildings, which are nearing completion, will contain 158 rooms.

"Steps have been taken to provide adequate quarters for the psychopathic department of Bellevue, which cares for the mentally deranged and alcoholics. The former Municipal Lodging House, a nine-story modern fireproof building, belonging to the city, just across the street from Bellevue, has been taken over, and $250,000 set aside to equip the building so as to make it a thoroughly satisfactory, up-to-date psychopathic hospital.

"To remove fire hazards at Bellevue $300,000 was appropriated in June, 1924. A new refrigerating plant is being installed at Bellevue at a cost of $126,000, and $140,000 has been authorized for the building of a permanent garage.

"With the erection of the out-patient building and women's dormitory, for which an appropriation of $3,000,000 has been favorably reported by the Committee of the Whole, the needs of Bellevue Hospital will have been well provided for.

"The addition to the out-patient department building at Harlem Hospital, for which $150,000 was appropriated last year, will relieve the congested conditions there."

In a chapter on "Department of Public Welfare Institutions," the report says:

"During the past eight years there has been appropriated or expended for the hospitals and other institutions under the direction of the Department of Public Welfare approximately $13,500,000. This includes money appropriated in corporate stock for new buildings and additions to buildings in existing hospitals; also $3,250,000 for the new Bronx Hospital; $1,870,000 recently appropriated for new buildings at Kings County Hospital, Coney Island Hospital, Sea View Hospital and City Hospital; $500,000 for fire prevention work; $140,000 for additions to Nurses' Home, Metropolitan Hospital, and $271,000 for repair work during the year 1925."

The Board of Estimate referred the report to the Committee of the Whole, with the direction by the Mayor that 2,000 copies of it be printed, that being the number permitted without special authorization. Controller Charles L. Craig refrained from voting.

TENNESSEE PUTS BIBLE IN SCHOOL CURRICULUM

Committee of Catholic, Jewish and Protestant Faiths Will Be Asked to Draft a Course.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 19.—Teachers in Tennessee public schools who fail to read at least ten verses of the Bible at the opening of each school day jeopardize their positions. If in reading they make any comment concerning the verses they have read, they face the same danger.

Under a law passed in 1915 this obligation was placed upon teachers, with the restriction that the same chapter shall not be read twice during any session. Upon proof of charges preferred for such failure the teacher may be dismissed by the Board of Education.

Ten years after the passage of this act the anti-evolution law was enacted, making a teacher liable to a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500 for each offense to teach "any theory that denies the story of the divine creation of man as taught in the Bible, and to teach instead that man has descended from a lower order of animals."

The Board of Education of Tennessee, meeting today, adopted a resolution which approves the inclusion of the Bible in the curriculum of elective studies for which the schools may give credit. That there may be no friction among the creeds, however, the Commissioner of Education gets authority to appoint a committee of five representatives of the Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths to formulate a syllabus of Bible study and a plan for teaching it.

For three years the Bible has been a part of the curriculum of the schools at Chattanooga, six full time teachers being employed to instruct the 2,200 students who have elected to make it a part of their daily school task.

The Board of Education acted today after an address by J. P. McCallie, head of one of Tennessee's largest private schools, representing the Bible Students' Committee of Chattanooga, urging the selective study of the Bible. Mr. McCallie added his endorsement to the anti-evolution law as a means of "keeping false doctrines out of the schools of the State."

NEW PRESBYTERIAN PUBLICATION OUT

Dr. David S. Kennedy and Other Fundamentalists to Write for It.

DR. JAMES M. FARR RETURNS

He Once Amazed Clergy by Favoring the Opening of Saloons Half Day on Sunday.

The two Fundamentalist national weeklies of the Presbyterian denomination have merged and the first issue of the consolidated paper appeared yesterday. The publications are The Presbyterian, published in Philadelphia, and The Herald and Presbyter, published in Cincinnati. The Rev. Dr. David S. Kennedy was editor of the former and the Rev. Dr. Frank C. Monfort was editor of the latter. Under the merger Dr. Kennedy and the Rev. Dr. Samuel C. Craig become the editors and Dr. Monfort, who is now 80 years old, the associate editor. The old office of The Herald and Presbyter in Cincinnati will be continued as a branch office of the consolidated paper, but the publication will be printed at the office of the former Presbyterian, 1,217 Market Street, Philadelphia. The contributing editors will be the Rev. Dr. William L. McEwan and the Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander of Pittsburgh, the Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney of Philadelphia, the former moderator of the General Assembly; Professor J. Gresham Machen of Princeton Theological Seminary, the Rev. Dr. E. P. Whallon of Newark. All are rock-ribbed Fundamentalists.

The Rev. Dr. James M. Farr of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., has been elected by the session of the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, as the assistant minister. The pastor is the Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill. Dr. Farr will succeed the Rev. Dr. Theodore A. Greene, who a few weeks ago accepted a call to a Congregational pastorate in New England. Dr. Farr some years ago was pastor of the Christ Presbyterian Church, 336 West Thirty-sixth Street, Manhattan, and for some years he was Chairman of the Committee on Temperance of the Presbytery of New York. He caused considerable feeling in that body in 1899 by sending letters to all the Presbyterian ministers in the city asking them to support proposed amendments to the Raines law permitting saloons to be open Sundays from 1 o'clock in the afternoon to 11 at night. He explained he believed that Sunday closing was impossible because of public opinion at that time, and he believed ministers as well as other people ought to meet the situation frankly.

Dr. and Mrs. Merrill will sail for Europe today to be gone until early in October.

The Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of the Broadway Congregational Tabernacle, at Fifty-sixth Street, will sail today for Liverpool on the Laconia. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Jefferson. They will make a tour around the world and will be back at the church in the Fall of 1926. Two years ago when Dr. Jefferson completed twenty-five years as pastor of the tabernacle he received as a gift from the congregation a year's leave of absence with full salary and the cost of his trip. The Rev. Francis P. Cook, an assistant for the last two years, will be in charge while he is away. Prominent visiting preachers will fill the pulpit. One of these will be the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, for some years pastor of what is now the Park Avenue Baptist Church, then the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, this city. Others will be Robert E. Speer, Dean Charles R. Brown, the Rev. Dr. Joseph Fort Newton and the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Burton, General Secretary of the National Council of Congregational Churches.

The Rev. Dr. Henry A. Stimson, who for twenty-one years was pastor of the Manhattan Congregational Church, Broadway and Seventy-sixth Street, and the Rev. Dr. George U. Wenner, founder and pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, 319 East Nineteenth Street, for the last fifty-seven years, attended last week the sixtieth anniversary of their class at Yale University. They were fellow-members of the Class of 1865. Eleven of the twenty-eight surviving men of the 148 which the class numbered were at New Haven. Dr. Stimson is 82 and Dr. Wenner 81 years old. One of the five daughters of Dr. Stimson is the only woman Major in the United States Army. She is Major Julia C. Stimson, with headquarters in Washington, D. C. She is superintendent of the Army Nursing Corps and dean of the Army School of Nursing. Another daughter is Dr. Dorothy Stimson, dean of Goucher College, Baltimore. A third daughter is Dr. Barbara B. Stimson, house surgeon of the Presbyterian Hospital, this city.

The Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, at Seventy-third Street, is believed to be the most "D.D.'d" clergyman in New York City, and to have his honorary titles from the largest number of great universities. Last week Dr. Coffin was thus honored by Princeton University, and the previous week by Columbia. In 1922 Harvard University made Dr. Coffin a "Doctor of Divinity," and in 1915 Yale, his alma mater, gave him a "D.D." In 1906, when he was only 29 years old, New York University bestowed upon Dr. Coffin his first "D.D." When an old friend asked Dr. Coffin what he was going to do with all his titles, he replied he had not had time to think about it.

Mrs. Chung Wing Kwong, wife of the Associate President of Canton Christian College, Canton, China, is in this city en route to Canada. In the latter city she will assist Mr. Chung in a financial campaign for the Lingnan College of Agriculture of Canton Christian College, for which her husband has already raised some $200,000 among the Chinese in North and South America. Mrs. Chung is the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. Huie Kin at the parsonage of the Chinese Presbyterian Church, 223 East Thirty-first Street.

a cargo of wealth, blue blood and beauty.

The proletariat looked on from the banks, from miles of parked automobiles and from the rolling observation posts of the two trains that patrolled each bank. Some saw only the start and thought Harvard was easily the greatest crew in the world. Others witnessed only the finish and said Yale was the gem of the ocean. Those on the observation train agreed with both, for they saw one of the prettiest struggles that ever graced the waters of a rowing course.

It was generally agreed that the traditional average of feminine pulchritude was upheld in noble fashion. All the latest hues were to be seen on every hand. Fashion experts buzzed in and out of the crowd getting a line on the dernier cri in colors and styles.

Thames a Perfect Setting.

New London also made a great show of its annual race day. This is the time of year when New London is called in the public prints a quaint old whaling town, but it manages to bear up under the strain. They haven't sighted a whale here since the last Harvard victory, which ought to put New London out of the whaling town class.

It is still, however, the greatest place in the world to hold a regatta. There is no river or valley in the country which lends itself so easily and expertly to that annual meeting of the Blue and the Crimson. It has all the beauty of sky and water and encircling hills that go to make the Yale-Harvard regatta the most beautiful sporting event in the American calendar.

Close students of nature agreed today that the conditions were perfect. Overhead was a balmy blue sky and a bright sun that gave an added sparkle to the blue waters beneath. At first the wind was so gentle that it hardly ruffled the halyards of the millionaire yachts. But as 6 o'clock, the zero hour, approached, the wind freshened and turned upstream. The tide was running in from the Sound and gave the oarsmen a mill stream to row upon, but the water was quiet even out in mid-stream where the rival shells were already forming into line.

Everybody, even the experts, agreed on one thing—that the winner would set a new record for the upstream course. It was also the consensus of opinion that the race would not start on time. Both predictions were correct. It was fifty minutes after 6 when Referee Putnam gave the word, but the regatta committee must have its little joke.

With the 50,000 spectators thrilled and waiting, Yale showed the nose of its shell first up the river, looming into sight many minutes before Harvard. The Elis were first at the starting line and first at the finish. Harvard came up reluctantly, as if fearing the worst.

All Harvard Confident.

As a matter of fact, however, the Crimson was supreme confident of a victory. This feeling of optimism pervaded all the ranks of Cambridge, from the oarsmen to the students and old grads. This was a Harvard year, they said.

They bulged with prophecies that Coach Stevens's crew, winner over Penn, was concealing something up its sleeve besides a lot of muscle.

The pre-race animosity was keener than in many years. Yale and Harvard men, as they passed on the street this morning, exchanged hard glances. But tonight the Cantabridgians are willing to admit that Ed Leader knows more than they do about the fine art of getting a boat through the water in the quickest possible time.

Harvard's great weight in the boat, its good record this season, and the soundness of its rowing technique all pointed to the possibility of a Crimson triumph. The wearers of the crimson, it was understood, had their plan of attack all nicely charted and laid out. They had determined on a quick rush at the Blue enemy—a fast start for the first mile—in the hope that the sturdy Cambridge eight, once in front and scenting the aroma of victory, would hold that lead to the end.

That was the way it was planned and that was the way it was carried out—all except the grand climax near the finish line. Harvard was away like a flash. As Referee Putnam started the eights on the long trip to Mr. Bartlett's cove, the Crimson-tipped oars were first to catch the water and the first to flash in front.

Yale probably was taken by surprise, or else the Elis had their own battle plan. They let Harvard set the pace for nearly two miles, but they followed as steadily as Nurmi when he knows that sooner or later all he must do is to step out and catch the man ahead. Yale always rowed with comforting confidence and conviction that it could catch Harvard any time and any place it pleased.

The Crimson in Front.

But at the beginning there was the Stevens boat away out in the van. From the observation train, which offered a puzzling angle to deceive the eye, it appeared as if the Crimson was showing open water, but the truth was that it had hardly more than a half length on the Olympic champions in the first half mile.

Harvard was rowing the slightly higher stroke, 35 to the minute, Yale was satisfied with a 34 pace. In another minute the Crimson was hitting it up harder, going 36 now, with Yale dropping down to a 33. The Harvard spurt had its effect. Yale began to slide behind as Winthrop, the hostile stroke oar, began applying pressure on the men behind him.

At the mile mark it was Harvard by a length, and the Cambridge hosts in the observation train began to display symptoms of hysteria. Harvard was going away and seemingly Yale couldn't stop the steady widening of the breach between the craft. The folks on the train were still askew of the true line across the river, and as they strained their eyes they thought they saw a large expanse of water between Yale and Harvard—an expanse that stretched out and lengthened like a silver thread.

As the mile and a half post approached, the Elis began to get into the race. They decided that time for experiment had passed and the time for action had arrived. Tim Laughlin raised the beat to a 35 and as he did so Harvard's stroke dropped to a 33. The Crimson could not stand this pressure, and Yale began eating up the water ahead. At the mile and a half point Harvard was still in the lead, but only by three-quarters of a length.

Then Yale Comes Forward.

That, as it turned out later, was the high point of the Crimson's endeavor. With the race nearly half over, Yale came forward in a steady, unruffled rush. There was no sliding of the seats, no slurring of the fine, even, workmanlike stroke, but it was noticeable that at the two-mile mark Harvard was behind—only a matter of an eighth of a length, but it might as well have been a mile.

Summary of the Results Of the Four Crew Races

Varsity Race—Four Miles.

Fin. Crew.	Time.	Margin.
1—Yale	20:26	1¾ lengths

Junior Varsity Race—Two Miles.

Fin. Crew.	Time.	Margin.
1—Yale	9:50	4 lengths

Freshman Race—Two Miles.

Fin. Crew.	Time.	Margin.
1—Yale	9:51 2-5	3½ lengths

Combination Race—One Mile.

Fin. Crew.	Time.	Margin.
2—Harvard	5:03 2-5

For this forward dash of the Yale craft meant that the Harvard strategy had failed. The theory that Harvard would get ahead and stay ahead was proved only a myth and a bugaboo. This was a body blow to the Crimson hopes and morale.

But still from the observation trains you heard the frenzied shrieks of the Harvard friends and relatives. "Go on, you Crimson!" "Harvard, Harvard, get out there in front, Harvard!" The Cambridge rooters yelled themselves hoarse, waved their arms and hats and pennants in an outburst of enthusiasm and perspiration.

It was no use. Yale was out in front and it was Yale, not Harvard, that was going to stay there.

Harvard came up again when past the two-mile point, but was still trailing when another half-mile had been passed. Here the gap between the boats was three-quarters of a length, and they were rowing stroke for stroke. Harvard had come up and Yale gone down to a steady 34, and in the half-mile leading to the three-mile cross-bar they went along as one crew—Yale leading by three-quarters and sticking to that advantage with the grimness of death.

They Enter the Home Stretch.

And now the last long mile. The shells slid down between the anchored yachts. Passing through this lane was the signal to the tired oarsmen that they were in the home stretch. It was the moment when Harvard must make its last spurt, must do or die.

The Crimson offered its last great challenge, threw down the gauntlet to Yale and gave the Eli eight its greatest test of the afternoon. Would Yale meet the challenge and go on to win or would Harvard wear down the crew ahead? That was the question to be answered in this last stretch.

Winthrop, the magnificent stroke of the Harvard boat, dug his blades in deeper and the boat leaped on to the great struggle. The beat shot up to a stiff 36; the broad backs and rugged shoulders of that husky aggregation put everything they had behind the long oars.

Harvard was coming up in its final sprint. Yale matched the quickened beat of 36, but before this had happened the Crimson had chopped off a quarter length of the lead. As they churned past the flags which marked three and a half miles Yale was only a half length to the good—if anything, a few feet less than a half length.

It would make a thrilling narrative to describe how Harvard came on and on, caught old Eli and sped ahead to a great victory. But the truth of the matter is that Harvard had shot its bolt. All its strength and heart had gone into that futile spurt, leaving Yale still fresh and confident and Harvard wearied and discouraged.

The balance of it was a rout. From a half length lead Yale jumped ahead to one and three-quarters advantage in about a half mile of rowing. The Elis won going away. Harvard almost seemed to be standing still. From a 34 beat Tim Laughlin, the Yale stroke, increased his pace rapidly to 36 and higher. The Elis gobbled up the water. In the last few hundred yards the real greatness of the Yale boat came out in the form of a sustained spurt which for beauty of form and for conciseness and power has had no equals this season.

Harvard Oarsmen Exhausted.

Finally it was all over, and the two boats stopped side by side past the finish line. Harvard was frankly tired. The stroke, Winthrop, who had turned over to his alma mater every ounce of power in his body, leaned wearily back against No. 7 man. The oarsman in No. 6 bent in exhaustion; but on the whole the Crimson stalwarts managed to keep vertical.

The old tradition of passing the shirts of the vanquished over to the victors was gone through, and for the fifth consecutive year Harvard is out a lot of fancy shirtings that will look nifty when displayed in the tromphy rooms at New Haven.

We don't know whether this is a greater Yale crew than last year's, but there is no doubt about its being one of the best that Leader ever has developed. In a way it was Leader's most conspicuous victory over Harvard, for this was easily the most formidable Crimson eight he has yet faced.

In Laughlin he had a stroke who was better than expected, and the No. 6 man and now Captain-elect, H. T. Kingsbury, is one of the finest oarsmen ever turned out by any university. Harvard's outstanding gladiator was Winthrop, a wonderful stroke oar.

Yale now has completed its third straight year without a defeat, and in that time it also won from the world's best crews at Paris. No wonder that Eli men tonight are celebrating the climax of the most remarkable rowing success since the day of the immortal Charley Courtney of Cornell.

Harvard's only consolation is a brave fight—not much of a consolation, by the way—and the realization that Coach Stevens is making distinct progress. The Crimson looks backward at nothing but a five-year reign of Yale, but they can look forward—those who are optimistic enough—to a swing of the pendulum.

Yale added to its lead in the annual series. Of the fifty-eight races the Blue has won thirty-one and Harvard twenty-seven.

HARVARD FRESHMEN MAKE GAME FIGHT

But Bow to Yale's Prowess as Do the Crimson Junior Varsity and Combination Eights.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—Blue skies, blue waters and two bright blue banners floating triumphantly from the masthead of the referee's launch opened the sixty-third annual Yale-Harvard regatta on the placid River Thames here this morning. It was a blue setting, but especially so for the Cambridge cohorts, who saw a fighting freshman eight rowed to defeat by a synchronized machine from New Haven and a half hour later witnessed the dismal failure of a crippled junior varsity as the Yale second crew swept majestically down the lane that marked the course and scored a decisive victory by four lengths.

Hardly a breeze stirred the calm waters of the river that lies between the green Connecticut hills as the two crews paddled into position for the first race of the day. Overhead hung a bright sky over which lazily floated white clouds, while along the two-mile course was anchored the largest fleet of yachts that ever made its way under the bridge that leads to the city by the sea.

It was a blue day, but Yale oarsmen saw red—the red of battle as they were left at the starting line—then crimson—as slowly but steadily they pulled into the lead and watched the colored blades of the Harvard shells splashing hopelessly on behind.

The two minor crews of the Yale navy were almost perfect in their handling of oars. Like one man, each set of eight pulled the blades through the water with long powerful strokes that sent the shells speeding down the two-mile course. Harvard had the will to win, but only the will, and that wasn't enough against the Leader-made eights that worked with all the smoothness that charatcerized the waters themselves.

As in the other races, Yale rowed to victory in the combination event, which in reality was part of the informal regatta and was scheduled to be rowed yesterday. The Blue combination, made up mostly of third varsity oarsmen, covered the one-mile course in 4:53 2-5, while Harvard's shell slugged along three lengths behind, finishing in 5:03 2-5. It was one of the worst defeats of the day considering the distance.

Win by Wide Margins.

Both of the races were rowed downstream, over the upper half of the long four-mile course that the varsity eights traveled up later in the day. Yale's freshman eight covered the distance in 9:51 2-5, with Harvard crossing the finish line three and a half lengths behind in 10:01. The Blue junior varsity crew was timed in 9:50 and the Crimson second boat crew was timed in 10:02.

Harvard's junior varsity had to be reconstructed in the eleventh hour, when Columbus Iselin, who had been pulling the No. 6 oar all season, suddenly developed a case of boils on the eve of the race and was unable to take his accustomed seat in the shell. F. P. Weymer was brought up from the combination crew to fill that vacancy, but there were other troubles in the Crimson boat. Don Gates, the No. 5, also was suffering with boils, but courageously took his place in the boat.

Perhaps it would have been better to have given way to a substitute, for the waist of the Harvard shell was ragged after the first half of the course had been covered and near the finish it went to pieces, with the bow oar splashing badly and the No. 5 and No. 6 blades woefully weak.

The freshman event was the first of the day and, although Yale was considered certain to triumph, the Blue had a stern battle from the Harvard youngsters over most of the distance. For the first three-quarters of a mile the Harvard shell's nose was out in front, but after that the Blue machine came with a burst that carried the Yale boat into the lead and hung there the rest of the way.

Harvard's yearlings caught the water first and were a quarter of a length in front when the crews settled down to a steady drive of thirty-two strokes to the minute. Yale was content to stay there, letting Harvard set the pace for the first half mile, but then the Blue blades started to lengthen out and Harvard was forced to go up to thirty-four in order to maintain its position. Even that was not enough, however, and slowly the nose of the Yale craft crept on the leaders.

Blue Eight Takes Lead.

At the half-mile mark barely the length of the deck separated the bows of the boats, and between the half and three-quarter mile buoys the Blue went out in front, gaining steadily with its long, easy but powerful sweep of the oars.

The Crimson oarsmen were hitting a much higher beat than their rivals on the west bank of the river, but it did no good and the margin lengthened until open water began to appear between the stern of the Yale shell and the Crimson's bow. When the mile mark was passed Yale was a full length in the lead and going away with each sweep of the oars. At the mile and a half distance the Blue shell had increased its margin to two lengths and down the stretch it thundered along, leaving the game Harvard youngsters still striving desperately, but hopelessly, almost four lengths in the rear.

Harvard had hardly counted on victory in the yearling race, but it did have high hopes of winning the first race in three long years from Yale in the junior varsity event. But there again the Blue was supreme and unconquerable.

Again Harvard oars were the first to catch the water at the start, and again Yale settled down to a steady beat that gradually pulled the Blue shell up on even terms and then carried it out in front. The rhythmic power that Coach Leader has instilled in all his Yale eights steadily wore down the crippled crew from Cambridge and when the half-mile mark was reached the Yale oarsmen had pulled their craft into a scant lead.

From there to the finish they increased the difference between the two shells without increasing the stroke perceptibly and at the end another Yale banner was raised to the masthead of the referee's launch, betokening another victory for the Blue.

BLUE AND CRIMSON BLEND IN CROWDS

Streets of New London Are Thronged by Jostling Thousands of Regatta Fans.

VENDORS PLY THEIR TRADE

"Buy Your Winning Colors Here," Is Steady Chant—College Boys Mingle With Old Grads.

By RICHARDS VIDMER.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—Glaring ferociously, a big yellow sun crept over the green Connecticut hills, awakening New London to race day again. The city by the sea yawns and stretches. Pennants flutter on the streets as the early risers start the unceasing march up and down State street. Balloons flutter brilliant blue and crimson in the sunlight. Men and boys in shirt sleeves chant their solemn plea on the corners:

"Buy your winning colors here!"

Blue and Crimson canes, Blue and Crimson feathers, Blue and Crimson bunting, whistles and horns, bulldogs and belt buckles, parasols and programs.

"Buy your winning colors here!" seemingly forever and without end.

Sleepy-eyed college boys and old grads appear on the main street of the New England town that nestles among the hills. Pretty girls in bright frocks follow slowly, making their way toward the observation trains that will carry them up and down the river for the morning races. The city filled with race followers, swarming over the sidewalks and overflowing into the street, hurrying in all directions like ants making merry. Still the persistent cry, growing louder and more insistant with each new arrival.

"Buy your winning colors here!"

Trains from New York and Boston bring thousands more to the scene of the river classic. Excited new faces among the crowd asking questions answered in tired voices. Motor cars from New Haven with shouting and cheering parties. More girls in Summer frocks, more men in white flannels and knickerbockers, more noise. A thrill begins to creep over the city. Yale and Harvard, Blue and Crimson, cars and oarsmen, the conversation of every group is about the coming race.

Trains Grind Their Way.

Observation trains fill slowly and grind their way up the river, creaking and snorting with the unfamiliar load. The freshman and junior varsity races are rowed above the Navy Yard and the trains bring their human freight back again, dumping it in the street. Yale has won both of the minor races. What can the Harvard varsity do to atone? At least the hawkers on the corner are not dismayed. Displaying as many Crimson souvenirs as Blue, they keep up the chant:

"Buy your winning colors here!"

Noon finds the throng doubled. Lazier and less ardent visitors who have preferred sleep to the early morning events join the crowd in hotel lobbies, on the streets, everywhere. Yale's supporters grow in numbers with the news of the Blue's two victories. Blue feathers stand more erect in tip-tilted hats. Yale pennants are displayed more courageously. The Crimson of Harvard begins to droop in dejection and despair.

Luncheon and more visitors. Every hour sees a new battalion, reaching the scene at the last minute, for the varsity race. Mid-afternoon brings a short respite from the turmoil of excitement that seethes through the city. Here and there groups of youngsters, impatient to wait for the final achievement, begin to celebrate in song or drown their sorrows which are not yet assured. No one minds; every one is looking for somebody else.

The sun mounts higher in the heavens and the temperature rises with it. Hats are discarded and coats are tossed carelessly over bared arms. A few weary souls shamefully sneak off to catch a few minutes' sleep, hoping no one will realize their absence.

Then excitement, renewed and greater than ever, breaks forth again. The time for the varsity race approaches. New parties form in hotel lobbies and stalk off in the direction of the station. Late comers dash aboard as the two lines of cars, covered with bulging canvas like the inflated cheeks of whistling boys, again start to creak away from the depot. This time every seat is filled. No more laxity. Every one leans forward and talks excitedly, drowning out the now desperate chant:

"Buy your winning colors here!"

Craft Line Course.

The river comes into view. Boats line the course on either side. Gray rum chasers, impressive white yachts, dories and dinghys, canoes and cutters, sloops and sail boats, yawls, launches form a great fleet at anchor. And each is bedecked with brilliant colors that stream from yard arms and halyards and mastheads. The Blue of Yale and the Crimson of Harvard are almost faded in the bright hues of maritime signal pennants.

Whistles blow and sirens scream as the crews paddle into position for the start. Then the shout, "they're off!" and silence once more as the two slim shells slide through the silver waters and settle down to a steady battle agianst each other, time, tide and the scowling sun that saps the strength of the rugged men at the oars.

Harvard jumps into the lead. A shout of joy fills the air from the wearers of the Crimson. The racing shell from Cambridge lengthens out and gains. But Yale's Blue machine swings in and only a scant margin separates the bows of the two shells as they go churning up the river under the powerful strokes of the bronze-backed oarsmen.

Yale men lean forward in the observation train, clenching their fists in anxiety. The Cambridge cohorts chortle in glee as the Crimson shell holds its advantage.

A hummock of land interrupts the view of the watchers as the train rumbles on. The river flashes into view again.

"Harvard! Harvard! Harvard!"

The cry fills the air with ear-piercing shrieks, for over half the distance is covered and still the Crimson shell shows the way.

"Harvard! Harvard! Harvard!" the cry echoes up and down the train.

A row of houses and the view of the river again is blotted out. The spectators sit back, tense and waiting, silent. Then the silver stream flashes into the open and the eyes turn toward the crews coming up the course, great muscles driving the shells along through the water with hardly a ripple. A second to focus the eyes.

I'll Bet on Yale.

"I'll bet on Yale!" "I'll bet on Yale!" "Who wants to bet against Yale?" And a wild cheer in a different tone sweeps through the throng, for the Blue is crawling up, foot by foot and stroke by stroke, but surely and steadily. They finally raced nose and nose up the course, backers of both crews yelling wildly. The three-mile mark is passed, but the difference between the bow oars is scarcely discernible. First it looks like Yale and then it looks like Harvard.

On creeps the train behind another jut of land and for the third and last time the scene on the river is blotted from view. A seaplane buzzes overhead but no one heeds it. The race is the thing. Drawn faces, clenched hands, ruffled hair.

Another flash of the river, but a piece of land hides the shells. Twenty strokes to the finish line. Where are they? Then down the course comes a Yale crew rowing with mighty strokes that sweeps it through the water. Harvard a length behind but faltering. Still plugging along, but hopelessly beaten. A gasp goes up from the trains. How that Yale crew must have come behind that point of land! The Blue sweeps majestically across the finish line and rests on its oars, seemingly tireless. Harvard rows on and a few seconds later sees the flags that mark the end of the long grind passed.

Bob Winthrop, the Crimson stroke, collapses over the side of the shell and Kent Leavitt, in the seat behind him, sags backward, but recovers and splashes water on the man in front. Yale's oarsmen sit quietly in their shell. Tired but happy youths.

Wonderful Yale! Courageous Harvard!

Train Winds Back.

And the train winds slowly back to the city, its human cargo relaxed after the long strain. Not a wearer of the Crimson but honors the great power of the Yale crew. Not a son of Yale but admires the strong heart of the Harvard oarsmen. A great race. One of the greatest.

The crowd is again dumped from the train and again the streets that a few minutes before had seemed like the streets of an abandoned village are filled with rollicking, singing, cheering and despairing men and women.

A rush for the hotels. Clothes thrown hurriedly into dressing bags. Motors start a mad procession toward New Haven, Boston and other near-by points. The graceful white yachts sail out of the harbor and before twilight the river is swept as clean as the Yale crews have swept the regatta.

Night begins to descend on the scene of excitement. A little thin wisp of light glows in the West and then is blotted out by darkness. A lone cry comes down the comparatively deserted street.

But there was only one winning color today.

THE BETTER CREW WON, SAYS COACH STEVENS

"We Twisted Their Tail as Long as We Could"—Leader Praises Crimson Crew.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—Ed Stevens, head coach of Harvard's rowing squad, made the following statement after the varsity race today:

"We were licked by a better crew. We twisted their tail as long as we could. That's all we could do. It was a marvelous race. I have nothing but commendation for all of our crew. That Yale crew was too much for them. Congratulations for them and Coach Leader, too. We are going to keep twisting until we can put a kink in their tail that will stay."

Ed Leader, head coach of Yale's rowing squad, made the following statement:

"Harvard rowed a wonderful race and had a wonderful crew. Coach Stevens is to be congratulated even if his crew did come in second. It was by far the greatest Harvard crew I have ever seen. I felt confident that Yale would win the freshman, junior varsity and combination crew races, but the varsity eight had me guessing, for I fully realized, from what I had seen and heard, that there was a fast crew at Red Top this year."

Coach Stevens, reviewing the combination and junior varsity races, said the Crimson combination crew, though beaten, rowed a great deal better than he expected they would against Yale's more experienced oarsmen. The Cambridge junior varsity had hard luck the last week of training owing to shake-ups through boils.

"The crew was all shot," said Stevens, "but they made a good showing under the circumstances."

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19 (AP).—Captain Kelley of the Harvard eight said tonight: "Of course, I am sorry to lose, but we were beaten by a superb Yale crew. Our crew was the best I ever rowed on."

ONE OARSMAN LOSES TWICE.

Weymer Rows in Harvard Junior Varsity and Combination Shells.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Vonn., June 19.—For the second time in the history of the Yale-Harvard regattas a Crimson oarsman had to suffer a double defeat when F. P. Weymer rowed in both the junior varsity and combination races on the Thames River here today. Boils necessitated the removal of Columbus Iselin from the junior varsity shell, and when Weymer was moved up to the vacant position it left no one at No. 6 oar in the combination. So Weymer rowed two miles with the juniors in the morning and one mile with the mixed crew in the afternoon.

Just thirty years ago another Harvard oarsman, Jennings, rowed in two races against Yale in one day and on those occasions also the Crimson trailed the Blue.

BRILLIANT FLEET ATTENDS BOAT RACE

Matchless Armada of 400 Craft Provides Rare Spectacle at New London Regatta.

HARBOR BLAZES WITH COLOR

Constellation Dominates Scene—Aloha, Hussar Also Prominent, but Corsair Is Absent.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—A wonderful marine parade went up the Thames this morning when the yacht fleet got under way from the lower harbor to go up to see the boat races. It was undoubtedly the biggest fleet ever seen here for this classic of the oarsmen, and some of the yachtsmen estimated that there were at least 400 yachts of various types included in the great, beflagged squadron.

This matchless armada included such great ships as former Commodore James's bark-rigged Aloha, Edward Hutton's Hussar, a great three-masted schooner, and Edgar Palmer's Guinivere, and the famous Constellation, but the long, trim hull of the Corsair, former Commodore J. P. Morgan's black flier, was missing from the fleet. Not in many years has the Corsair been missing from the New London races, but Mrs. Morgan's illness prevented the trip this year.

Glorious weather added to the brilliance of the yacht assemblage, and added also to the general spirit of the occasion, which is always apparent at a Yale-Harvard regatta. A strong northwest breeze blew last night, but dropped out this morning, and when colors were made at 8 o'clock it was a mild and beautiful Summer day.

As the signal was made and the flags were broken out the fleet was suddenly turned into a rainbow of colors. One of the yachtsmen remarked that it was a "priceless pageant," alluding to the fact that a vast amount of money value was represented by the ships in the blue anchorage. When it is considered that it cost $1,000,000 to build the Guinivere alone, the total value is somewhat staggering to the casual observer.

Crimson and Blue Predominate.

Beside the lines of flashing signal flags whisking in the breeze, each of the yachts flew a great crimson or blue pennant according to the collegiate leanings of the owner. The Yale blue banners seemed in accordance with the day, but the crimson flags stood out vividly against the blue.

Possibly in no harbor of the world has there been such a diversified fleet seen, for besides the great yacht squadron there were destroyers and Coast Guard rum patrol boats anchored near the finish and a wonderful old square-rigger moored below the drawbridge. It was the general opinion that the destroyers and patrol boats had established themselves in an ideal position to see the finishes, but it was hardly thought advisable to ask them to move.

The great squadron that went up the river did not include the racing sloops and schooners of the Larchmont and Indian Harbor Yacht Clubs, which are here on the annual cruise of the organizations. All of the vessels with power, however, joined the prismatic parade to the area near the finish line, where they were assigned to anchorages for the day.

Among the fifty or more schooners in the fleet the great Constellation shone out as a grand picture of a vessel of the old type which has been kept in top-notch form. With her clipper bow and towering spars, Constellation was agleam from stem to stern and did not look like a boat launched in 1889.

As on all the yachts, a large party of guests watched the races from the after deck of the Constellation. On board Robador III, flagship of Commodore Robert Law Jr. of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, were Fleet Captain Robert Monks, Newell Vaughan, Dr. Bishop and Robert and Theodore Law, sons of the Commodore. On the Varuna, flagship of Commodore James B. Ford of the Larchmont Yacht Club were Fleet Captain Brake Sparkman, Andrew Baxter Jr. and Butler Whiting.

On the Bonnie Dundee were Commodore Philip Mallory of the American Yacht Club and Vice Commodore C. D. Mallory of Indian Harbor and some guests. On Harry L. Maxwell's power yacht Ballymena, besides the owner, were Jack Johnson, Albert Sidney Lockwood and Henry Hoyt. The big Miramar, owner by Rear Commodore J. H. Baudoine, had a large party, including Clarence Stevens, Philip Rossi, Frank Craig and Otto Scheer. Also on board were Fred M. Hoyt, Frank Colladay, Edmund G. Anderson and W. E. Major of the Larchmont-Indian Harbor Race Committee.

Vagrant Also in Parade.

Former Commodore Harold Vanderbilt's Vagrant was one of the larger schooners in the long, bright line, and other big ones there included Carl Tucker's Ohonkara, Captain E. Walter Clark's Irolita, Dr. Seth G. Milliken's Shawna and Cleveland H. Dodge's Corona.

Before the big race started the fast runabout Teaser, owned by Richard Hoyt, which beat the time of the Century from New York to Albany, was breezed up and down the harbor to give the yachtsmen an idea of her speed. She is a slim, mahogany hull with brass fittings and is what the yachtsmen would call a "neat job."

Among other yachts in the great fleet were the Pep, owned by Alfred W. Masury, having on board former Commodore Charles A. Marsland of the New Rochelle Yacht Club and Mrs. Marsland; Skylark, owned by Charles M. Brooks of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club; Samuel Nicholson's Four Winds, Andrew G. Pierce's Palestine, having on board A. A. Houghton; Mortimer Schiff's Dolphin, with a party of guests on board; Donnygill, Taps, Pearl Necklace and G. M. Brown's Idler.

Also in the harbor were Vice Commodore Philip Johnson's Grey Dawn, Edward Browning's Alert, C. D. Mallory's new schooner Mystic, F. W. Vanderbilt's Kalmia, James E. Fletcher's Juanita; the power yachts Ruth, Cinnabar, former Commodore Wilson Marshall's Ansatawae, J. Ross Collins's Felicia and E. N. Wheelock's Britomart, E. G. Armstrong's Absegami, E. C. Caldwell's Flodor, F. E. Raymond's Donaldo, H. W. Harper's Corinthia, A. G. Southworth's Dominio II, W. L. Oglesby's Sangamo and F. F. Pope's Marylyn II, Harold Tobey's Answer, T. C. Marcaus's Sea Lure, F. C. Edson's Mariska, Holger Struchman's Nirvana, Edmund Eckhart's Ramona and George Townsen's Sazerac.

In the large division of sailing yachts, many of which were auxiliaries, were Harry L. Maxwell's Banshee, Holland Duell's Rowdy, Spencer Borden's Sally Ann, J. B. Dunbaugh's Shawara, T. J. S. Flint's Phantom, S. C. Pirie's Oriole, E. G. Draper's Flying Cloud, M. R. Metcalfe's Sachem, W. M. Butler's Michabo, G. E. Ratsey's Zaida, M. F. Kattenhorn's Surprise, W. L. Coursen's Vision.

Also the schooners Quita and Rival II, L. H. Ross's Nomad Fontinalis, owned by L. C. Haynes, Stuyvesant Wainwright's Butterfly and H. G. S. Noble's schooner Princess.

Those yachts in the sailing division without power remained at the lower anchorage of the Hotel Griswold during the day, but all the others joined the great procession northward to see Yale and Harvard race.

Grads at Yale Club Accept Victory as Matter of Course

Local Yale graduates seemed to accept Yale's crew victory as a foregone conclusion and evinced little interest in the actual result of the race when news reached the Yale Club over the ticker last evening. A group of about fifty graduates had assembled at the club to obtain the news, but when word was passed around that Yale had won there was no cheering or excitement.

"It must have been a close race," remarked one alumnus, casually, and added, nochalantly, as he examined the tape, "I wonder whether Nickel Plate is due for a drop."

THAMES TURNS BLUE IN HONOR OF YALE

Westerly Breeze Makes River Fuse Harmoniously With Old Eli's Triumphs.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—It was a big day on State Street, with the boat race crowd rambling up and down before the big test. It was a great crowd and an American crowd in high spirits and a good time was had by all, especially the Yale men before and after the varsity race.

Crimson canes and blue canes and paper parasols were carried by men and women alike, and pretty girls were everywhere, gloriously gowned. It was a colorful gathering and a rare sight. The busy hawkers did a big business, and the program of the race, a very handsome piece of work, was retailing on the curb at 75 cents.

Little Yale bulldogs made of celluloid went big and a man with a strange implement to sell, strung with crimson or blue ribbons, did a land office business. This seemed to be a sort of talking whistle, through which the vendor kept repeating, "Mother wants you Willie."

The races were started on Daylight Saving, but the Yale men said the Harvard crews were rowing on Standard Time.

The river was turned a deep Yale blue by the westerly breeze during the varsity race and it was Yale's river today.

The varsity race was a thriller from start to finish, and there are thousands of hoarse throats in town tonight as a consequence. Yale men, women and children went more or less looney toward the finish when it seemed a certainty that Yale was the winner.

The Salvation Army staged an impromptu drive on the Central Vermont observation train before it pulled out and collected a tambourine full of change from each of the thirty-two cars.

Then there was a tattered group of negro minstrels who sang and strummed various instruments in front of the cars before the race began. This finished up the collections until the Yale men began to collect their bets after the varsity race.

Two well-known oarsmen of former days were missing from the picture. Billy Meikelham, who has been the referee of every Yale-Harvard race for over twenty years, could not officiate today because of an injured foot, and Dr. Walter Peet also was among the missing.

It is an interesting coincidence that Dr. Peet stroked the Columbia crew in 1885 and that Billy Meikelham rowed No. 6 on that same crew. The story is that Meikelham injured his foot before that very race, but insisted on helping Columbia against the doctor's orders, and now the old injury has returned.

One of the festive young men wandered down to the water while the Central Vermont train was stalled, followed by some equally festive friends. The leader was carrying a parasol and started to do a sort of tight-wire act on a log lying in the water. His friends spoiled the act by throwing rocks in the water, splashing his white ducks.

The Harvard folks had high hopes when the Crimson jumped into the lead at the start. A high-tension Harvard man had to be held on Car 13 by his belt during the early drive while Harvard was leading.

"Well, we're getting better every year," was the hard-boiled remark of a Yale rooter to a downcast Harvardite after the varsity race.

At intervals on the Central Vermont observation train on the west bank of the Thames the visibility is obscured by rocks, shipyards and various buildings. But these bad spots are more than offset by the gorgeous view obtainable at other times of the green Connecticut hills on the opposite bank.

Yale delayed the start by not appearing at the line until quite a while after the scheduled time, and the Yale rooters said they wanted to delay the slaughter as long as possible.

But it turned out to be one of the greatest races ever seen on the green-banked Thames.

PENN CREW LOOMS AS A DARK HORSE

Considered Strong Contender for Poughkeepsie Race—Gives Rice Confidence Vote.

NAVY IN TWO-MILE SPIN

Glendon Satisfied With His Crew—Washington Has Easy Day—Columbia Works Hard.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 19.—While the eyes of the rowing world were focused on the Yale-Harvard races at New London, the seven college squads that will participate in the intercollegiate regatta Monday went quietly through the final stages of their training here today.

All the coaches are tapering off their work so their oarsmen will build up. Jim Rice, outwardly unmindful of the teapot tempest at Philadelphia, put his boats on the water at noon and again in the evening. He refused to comment upon his difficulties, and worked his boats at starts and dashes, but avoided long pulls.

The Quaker oarsmen held an impromptu meeting Thursday night and gave the coach a vote of confidence, declaring they were going to row the outrigging off the boat Monday and prove their faith in him.

All the men are in good shape, and according to the dope that is passed about from boathouse to boathouse the Quaker varsity, stroked by Johnny Doyle, the lightest stroke on the river, will enter the race a dark horse, the full power of which has yet to be demonstrated. Rice's eight has rowed the fastest time trial, according to actual figures, and adding the moral inclination that the boat now has to this, the crew shapes up as a formidable contender.

Bill Haines admitted today that for the three time trials he has given the Columbia boats they were clocked in less than 20 minutes. Haines worked his boats at starts today, and in the evening sent them over two miles at a hot pace to see how they would act without his assistance.

Wisconsin was slated for a time trial at noon, but Dad Vail did not think it wise to work his men too hard in the heat and contented himself with an easy paddle. He believes the varsity boat has improved, but even so does not consider them as potential winners.

Syracuse went down the course at sunset, but they were not raced against the clock. Jim Ten Eyck stated that he sent them over more to test their staying power than their speed. The coach also definitely spiked the report that the Orange junior varsity would replace the first eight in the varsity race.

The Washington oarsmen put in an easy day, being piloted two miles in the morning and about the same distance in the evening. Rusty Callow maintains a gloomy exterior when his varsity combination is mentioned, but he is more hopeful for the junior eight.

The Navy paddled up to the starting point in the evening and raced two miles until they reached the boat house. The Midshipmen are reigning favorites. Their last time trial was satisfactory to Glendon.

Cornell also was put through a starting drill today and the shells did not leave the cove south of the boathouse. Leader does not expect to back a winner this year, but he has declared many times that he will be back next June with a typical Cornell eight.

HARVARD DOWNCAST AFTER VARSITY RACE

Men Sit Several Minutes on Float Before Picking Up Shell—Yale Camp Jubilant.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—When Harvard's varsity crew returned to the boathouse after its great struggle with Yale, the oarsmen slowly embarked from their shell and sat for a few moments on the float, apparently tired and dejected. Then they picked up their racing craft and stowed it away in the boathouse, but not a word was spoken for some little time. A jazz band was heard close by on a Coast Guard boat, but the music failed to cheer the defeated oarsmen.

"Never mind," remarked one of the oarsmen to another who sat with his head bowed, "You will have another chance at Yale next year."

Harvard's boats were stripped immediately after the respective races and will be sent back to Cambridge tomorrow morning. Yale's shells were transported to the cars at Gales Ferry station tonight and will be sent over to New Haven at an early hour tomorrow.

Both Harvard and Yale's varsity squad had a banquet at their respective quarters about 9 o'clock tonight. After the feast the squads disbanded for the season.

Automobiles that were parked on the bluff at Molthrop's Point, where the upper mile of the course ends, had a hard time getting started for home after the big race. There were several hundred automobiles along the bank and it was close to 10 o'clock before the last of the machines, which were packed in like sardines, finally were able to move homeward.

The big fleet of pleasure craft and other boats anchored at the finish had thinned out to only a dozen boats at 9 o'clock tonight and the two drawbridges were kept open so long that long lines of automobiles were in evidence on the Groton and New London approaches.

There was great jubilation in Yale's camp when the varsity oarsmen returned after their strenuous battle with Harvard. There was no end of hand-shaking and felicitations and a happy spirit all around. Coach Leader had a long conference with the Eli Rowing Committee on a small yacht moored at Yale's wharf, and while the men were chatting the sounds of cheers came at intervals from the clubhouse.

BIG BOATS OBSTRUCT VIEW.

Stevens Decries Anchoring of Craft Near the Finish Line.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—Coach Stevens commented severely on the big boats that anchored near the finish line and obstructed the view from the east shore.

"Of all the craft on the course, these large vessels belonging to the Government should have been the last to have taken up such a position. It is not fair for the passengers on the New Haven and Hartford observation train who purchased tickets to see the race and especially the finish. I hope something will be done to avoid this barrier in future regattas."

CREWS ELECT CAPTAINS.

Yale Picks Kingsbury and Harvard Oarsmen Select Winthrop.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19.—Robert Winthrop of Boston, 21 years old, tonight was elected captain of the Harvard varsity crew for next year. He rowed on the combination crew in freshman year and on the varsity this year and last year. He prepared at St. Marks.

H. T. Kingsbury, New York City, tonight was elected captain of next year's varsity crew of Yale. He is 20 years old. He was captain of his freshman crew. He prepared at Groton.

Yankees and Giants Triumph While Robins Are Defeated

COMBS'S DRIVE WINS FOR YANKS IN 11TH

Single Off Cvengros After Pennock Walks and Shanks Sacrifices Beats White Sox, 4-3.

SCHALK TIES SCORE IN 9TH

Lashes Triple, Sending In Barrett—Error by Davis Helps Victors Take Lead in Eighth.

The Yankees finally broke their latest losing streak yesterday afternoon, but it took them eleven innings to do it. After dropping the last three games of their series with the Tigers they defeated Eddie Collins's White Sox at the Stadium by a score of 4 to 3. A single by Earl Combs, coming on the heels of a base on balls to Pennock and a sacrifice hit by Shanks turned the trick in the eleventh inning with one out.

But for a terrific three-base smash to deep left centre field by Ray Schalk, the veteran Chicago catcher, the Yankees would have won the game in the regulation nine innings. Going into the ninth they were leading by 3 to 2, but with two out and Barrett on first base Schalk came through with his triple, which tied the score.

However, were it not for an error by Davis, the Chicago shortstop, the Yankees would not have scored their two runs in the eighth inning. With Cvengros, who had started on the mound for Chicago, still pitching, Ruth drew a base on balls with none out and Witt was rushed in to run for him. Meusel followed with a single, sending Witt to second. Johnson, who batted for Gehrig, forced Witt at third on a tap to the pitcher. Meusel and Johnson then took the Sox by surprise by working a double steal.

Paschal, who was sent in to bat for Bengough, then hit to Kamm and Meusel was cut down at the plate. Then, with two out, Davis fumbled Ward's grounder and Johnson crossed the plate. Wanninger followed with a two-base hit, scoring Paschal, and the Yankees were in the lead by 3 to 2. Schalk's smash tied it up in the ninth and neither team was able to score again until the Yanks came through in the eleventh.

Pennock Goes the Route.

Strange as it may seem, the Yankees used only one pitcher, Herb Pennock going the full route for Miller Huggins's team. Cvengros also pitched the full distance. The Chicago hurler was bumped for a total of ten hits, while Pennock yielded the same number. Pennock kept the blows well scattered except in the eighth, when the Sox bunched three hits. Cvengros himself collected two singles, a double and a base on balls in three trips to the plate.

Neither team scored in the first two innings, but in the third the Yankees picked up a cheap tally. Combs shot a single to centre with none out and Ruth moved him to second on a splash in front of the plate. Meusel hit a long fly to centre and Combs sprinted to third after the catch. At this point Cvengros cut loose with a short wild pitch and Combs scored. Gehrig then flied to Mostil for the third out.

The Yankees managed to hold on to their slim lead until the fifth, when the Sox tied it up. The tying up was accomplished by Willie Kamm, who bounced one into the left field stands for a home run. Cvengros also made a double in this inning.

The two teams remained deadlocked until the eighth. After Schalk grounded out to Shanks, Cvengros came through with his third successive hit, a single to centre. Mostil singled and Cvengros went to second. Davis dropped another fly in right field for two bases; this scored Cvengros and put Mostil on third. Collins rolled to the box and Mostil was run down between third and the plate. Collins took second but he advanced no further.

Schalk Comes Through.

With the help of Davis's error the Yankees came back in their half of the eighth and took the lead again. They apparently had the game safely sewed up when the Sox came to bat in the ninth. Falk opened the Chicago ninth by striking out and the Yankee's lead looked pretty good. Barrett, who batted for the veteran Hooper, drew a pass. Kamm flied to Combs and the Yankees' lead looked still better. Schalk stepped to the plate and hit a line drive between Meusel and Combs, scoring Barrett. Schalk was forced to stop at third, where he was left stranded by Mostil and Cvengros.

In the Yankees' tenth Paschal crashed a two-base hit with one out. Kamm made a wonderful stop of Ward's hard smash near third base and threw out the batter, while Paschal advanced to third. After two strikes had been called on Wanninger, Paschal attempted to steal home, but Wanninger was forced to hit the pitch and was thrown out.

Schalk made another attempt to win the game for the Sox in the eleventh, but his efforts went for naught. Falk, the first batter, drew a base on balls. He took second on Barrett's bunt. Huggins gave orders to pass Schalk. The Chicago catcher didn't like the idea, however, and reached over his head for Pennock's first pitch and dropped it into right field for a single. Falk, as well as the Yankees, was taken by surprise and Paschal's good throw to Schang cut him down by a close margin when he attempted to score.

In the Yanks' eleventh Cvengros paved the way for his own downfall by passing Pennock. The Yankee pitcher moved to second on Shanks's sacrifice bunt and completed the circuit when Combs shot a single along the left field foul line.

GOSLIN'S 3 HOMERS WIN FOR SENATORS

Final Smash Comes in Twelfth With One on Base and Beats the Indians, 7-5.

CLEVELAND, June 19 (AP).—Three home runs by Goslin gave the Washington Senators a 7-to-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians in twelve innings today, his third homer coming in the twelfth with Rice on first. Cleveland had the bases filled with one out in the ninth, but Marberry stopped Klugman and Knode. Brilliant catches by Goslin and Rice prevented the Indians from winning in the eighth and eleventh innings.

All of Cleveland's runs were scored off Gregg, former Cleveland pitcher, Burns being responsible for two runs scored in the fifth.

STOLEN BASES HELP MACKMEN TRIUMPH

Double Thefts Score Cochrane and Welch in Big Rally and Browns Lose, 13-9.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—The Athletics took the first of the four-game series with the Browns today by outslugging the visitors and winning, 13 to 9. Sam Gray was wild and had to give way in the sixth inning. The Mackmen ran wild in the seventh, when they won the game, both Welch and Cochrane scoring on successive double steals.

Today's game was Gray's first start since the injury to his thumb in St. Louis several weeks ago. Prior to that he had won eight consecutive games.

Bishop, Athletic second baseman, was carried from the field with an injured ankle when he slid into the home plate in the seventh inning. Austin and Bush of St. Louis were sent from the bench by Umpire Dineen for disputing a decision.

GIANTS GET SCARE BUT BEAT REDS, 5-4

Win in Barrage of Pop Bottles After Cincinnati Stages a Vain Rally in Ninth.

UMPIRE SAVES THE DAY

Pfirman Makes Decision That Ends Thrilling Game—Snyder Smashes Out a Homer.

By HARRY CROSS.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—A bouquet of pop bottles ended the flare-up between the Giants and Reds this afternoon, when the Harlem troupe won another ball game, 5 to 4. The Giants went into the last of the ninth leading at 5 to 1, and thereupon the Red Legs took it upon themselves to cause considerable commotion.

Kent Greenfield had been pitching pretty good baseball up to this point. Ivy Wingo opened the last chapter with a single to centre. Elmer Smith, the former Yank, up as a pinch hitter for Pete Donohue, singled to right, sending Ivy to third. As Caveney, batting for Critz, forced Smith, Wingo scored. Dressen doubled to left and planted Caveney on third.

Greenfield was subtracted from the game and John Wisner went to the rescue. His sojourn was short. Eddie Roush singled to right and Caveney and Dressen pedaled over the pan, and the score was 5 to 4 and the Giants were anything but comfortable.

Rube Dressler walked, and Wisner was immediately separated from his flinging task, Hughey McQuillan going to the mound. Honey Walker rolled an inconsequential bouncer to Jackson, who chucked to Kelly to force Bressler. Rube got in Kelly's way as Long George tried to make a double play. Umpire Cy Pfirman had his eagle eye at work and saw the interference and called Walker out for the third and final extermination of the game.

Then Trouble Starts.

Now look at the fireworks! One and all the Cincinnati players congregated in the close proximity of Mr. Pfirman. There were numerous belligerent gestures, paragraphs of unkind words and oodles of hard looks. From the grandstand came the bouquet of pop bottles, but a worse bunch of marksmen never lived. Not a bottle hit Pfirman or any one else. The bottles fell on the lawn like Autumn leaves. Pfirman stood his ground and was a good target, but he lives tonight with a mark or a stratch on him.

Outside of the honkey-tonk finish the sizable moment of the game came in the fifth inning, when Frank Snyder dipped the ball over the left-field fence and cracked a window in Cincinnati's cleanest wet-wash laundry. If there is any trouble about the matter Snyder is perfectly willing to pay the damage. The crack was worth it.

Kent Greenfield and Pete Donohue had a nice pitching duel until the Red Legs smacked Kent out of the game in the ninth. The Giants won the game because they are acting in a normal fashion, hitting the ball and running the bases as if they liked it. They are still leading the league despite the warlike murmurings of Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.

The Giants plucked a unit in the first. With one dismissed, Eddie Farrell poked a hit to right and he scored when Terry hit a double to deep right.

Reds Tie It Up.

The ambitious Red Legs tied it in the second. After Walker hoisted to Meusel, Ping Pinelli got an infield single and Niehaus sent him to third with a slap to right. Wingo walked, crowding the sacks. Donohue lofted a fly to Frank Walker in centre, but the villain muffed it, making up for his transgression, however, by forcing Wingo at second, Pinelli in the interim scoring.

With two out in the fifth, Snyder pummeled a home run over the garden wall in left. This was a momentous blow, for it was the first home run made in the series. Bill Southworth entertained in the sixth with a three-cushion wallop. Farrell encouraged him home with a single, the Penn graduate taking second on Pinelli's muff of a good toss from Honey Walker.

There were two laid to rest in this same seventh when Jackson tapped an infield single in the immediate vicinity of third base and violated all the established rules of baseball by sprinting to first in less than nothing flat. Following this incident Snyder leathered a two-baser to left and Jackson hotfooted his way home.

Can't Keep Giants Down.

It is almost impossible to keep a squirrel on the ground. Take, for instance, the first of the ninth. Irish Meusel doubled to left and Frank Walker sacrificed him to third. Jackson's poke sent Irish home. The New York lads are behaving naturally.

TIGERS TO BATTLE ELIS HERE TODAY

Rival Nines to Clash at Polo Grounds With Big Three Crown at Stake.

Yale and Princeton meet today to decide the Big Three baseball championship. The scene of the battle, the third in this year's series between these ancient rivals, will be the historic Polo Grounds and the 30,000 spectators who are expected to be present to cheer the nines will witness the final appearance of Ducky Pond, pitching ace of the Elis, who winds up his athletic career at Yale with this final pitching assignment in the all-important contest. The game will start at 3:30.

Facing Pond will be Charley Caldwell, mainstay of the Princeton pitching department and hitter extraordinary of the Tiger nine. It will be the third time this season that Caldwell and Pond have gone into battle against each other. To date each has beaten the other in the struggle for Big Three baseball honors.

Yale and Princeton both have triumphed over Harvard this year. Yale's victories were crushing affairs. First the Elis routed Harvard by making twenty-five runs and came back the next day and made eighteen more. Princeton had decisively defeated the Crimson players and after the Tiger victory Saturday the title was left hanging high and dry with today's game being necessary to decide the premier honors.

The Yale players arrived in town yesterday and took up their quarters at the Hotel Vanderbilt. Coach Joe Wood had his men in fine shape upon their arrival. The Princeton players and rooters are not due in town until this morning. They will make their headquarters at the Princeton Club. It seemed likely that either team would enter the battle a favorite.

MOKAN'S BAT REPELS CUBS.

Four Hits in Four Times Up Including Homer Win for Phillies, 5-4.

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP).—Johnny Mokan's batting enabled Philadelphia to make it two straight off Chicago by winning 5 to 4. Mokan with four hits, including a home run, in four times at bat, drove in four of the visitors' runs, while the fifth run crossed the plate when Adams, after fielding Mokan's hit in the eighth inning, threw wild to third, enabling Hawks to score.

Chicago had numerous opportunities but failed to hit in the pinches. Brooks and Adams collected homers for the locals.

Pickups and Putouts

Yesterday's game at the Stadium marked the first appearance of the Sox in this city since the popular Eddie Collins became manager of the club.

Collins received a traveling bag from a delegation from Tarrytown before the game started. Billy Lauder, who is now a coach with the Sox, got a gold watch and a loving cup from his friends at South Norwalk, Conn.

Before Witt was sent in to run for him in the eighth inning Ruth collected two singles in three official trips to the plate.

Cap Huston, former part owner of the Yankees, was among the 9,000 or so who witnessed the pastime.

Chief Bender, who was quite a pitcher in his day, officiated at the first base coaching lines for the Chicagoans.

Collins went out into right centre field in the fifth inning and made a great catch of Meusel's pop fly.

One of the best plays of the game came in the fourth inning when Bib Falk raced over toward centre field and grabbed Bengough's line drive which was labeled for three bases.

The Yanks will try to increase their winning streak to two straight today. Waite Hoyt probably will officiate on the mound.

ROBINS' SHIP SINKS UNDER PIRATE FIRE

Flatbush Craft Sails Calmly Until 7th, When Buccaneers Shell Boat, Take Booty, 9-6.

TRAYNOR LEADS ATTACK

Triples and Opens Barrage That Nets 6 Runs and Victory—Cox Hits Homer for Losers.

By M. W. CORUM.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, June 19.—Sad tidings these from the banks of the Monongahela. The Pirates scuttled the once-proud Brooklyn baseball craft today, 9 to 6. The good ship Flatbush was sailing over the bounding main in great shape until Rube Ehrhardt lost his stroke oar in the seventh. Then, the free booters boarded and sank her.

Six thousand steal city fans saw this done, and the quality of their mercy was not strained. They had no mercy. Neither did the Pittsburgh batters. Forbes Field is ringing yet with the class and fury of their bombardment, and so are Ehrhardt's ears.

"Long John" Traynor led the cruel attack on Rube. This "Long John" has no wooden leg, for while Zack Wheat was making prodigious efforts to pull his long drive off the left field fence, he stroked all the way around to third. At that, Wheat might have reached the ball if he had only thought to equip himself with a pair of climbers and an alpinestock. Three feet more and the smash would have cleared the wall.

The Robins were two runs ahead with one out at the time, and Robbie elected to give them the run if need be and play for an out at first. The strategy was great, but its execution was terrible. The infield laid back, and as canny Uncle Wilbert had figured, Wright rapped out a hard grounder.

Strategy Goes Amiss.

The ball went straight at Stock and straight through him. It was one of the few times on this trip that Milton has been tried and found wanting, but a mighty bad time for him to be found that way. Of course, Traynor trooped home.

George Grantham followed this break with a single to right, and Wright never stopped running until he was safely perched on third. Once more Robbie tried strategy and once more it went wrong. He ordered Smith passed, but on the first pitch out, "Oil" stepped over and dropped a deft single over third that counted both Wright and Grantham. This was bad and worse was to come.

The ever-trying Ford made as fine a stop as has ever graced a ball game on Meadows's bid for a hit through short and shot the ball to Stock for what looked to be a forced play on Smith at second. That is, it looked so to everybody but Umpire McLaughlin. He saw it differently and stuck to his story while the entire Brooklyn infield gathered round him like infuriated hornets.

Since the arbiter refused to even discuss the matter, there was nothing to do but go on with the game. When play was resumed, Carey fouled to Johnston, and it seemed that the barrage was over. But it wasn't by any means. Moore smashed a single to left, scoring Smith and eliminating Erhardt from the pastime. This brought Tiny Osborne on to the mound and Kiki Cuyler into the batter's box.

Mr. Cuyler Obliges.

That is Mr. Cuyler's favorite stamping ground, and he wasted little time. Osborne's first pitch cut the plate and Kiki cut it to right for three bases and two more runs. That made six for the inning. That the Buccaneers gathered two more in the eighth and one in the third is of no great consequence here any more than it was in the ball game.

Neither will the manner in which the Brooklyn runs were produced be of any great interest, except perhaps the two which Dick Cox knocked in with a homer over the left field wall.

Lee Meadows pitched a fair game for the winners after a bad beginning, and became the leading pitcher in his league, in points of games won, for doing it. He now has ten victories to his credit.

Four singles for Fournier in five times up there.

Skipper Robinson stood on the burning deck in the seventh with a sack of peanuts in one hand and a slab of cut plug in the other. "Brooklyn expects every man to do his duty," he cried. "We have just begun to fight," and "Don't give up the ship." The doughty skipper kept repeating these cries but all to no avail.

To say that the Robins will be glad to get the soil of that dear Flatbush under foot again is putting it mildly.

FLUSHING H. S. NINE WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Captures City Title From Brooklyn Tech, 4-3, as Gold Hits Homer in 14th.

RUTH TOSSES OUT BALL

P. S. 9, Brooklyn, Beats P. S. 4, Bronx, 16-4, at Ebbets Field for Elementary Crown.

As tense a baseball game between scholastic teams as the city has held in recent years ended yesterday in the fourteenth inning at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, when Dave Gold smashed a home-run drive to left centre, giving Flushing High School's nine a victory over Brooklyn Tech H. S. in the deciding game for the city championship. The score was 4 to 3 and the long-drawn-out struggle for title honors thrilled a crowd of close to 5,000 admirers of the schoolboy sport.

The victory was the first for a Queens championship team in recent years and gave Flushing the chance to clash with Lane Tech of Chicago in the annual scholastic intercity game, which will be held Wednesday at the Yankee Stadium.

The high schools game was the feature of a scholastic baseball double-header. Babe Ruth tossed the first ball which started the afternoon's proceedings, and then occupied the rôle of spectator as he saw the Public School 9 team of Brooklyn vanquish the team from Public School 4, Bronx, in the city's elementary schools championship by the overwhelming score of 16 to 4. This game was cut to seven innings in order to give the high school lads a chance to get an early start.

Gold's circuit drive was one of two which the high school game produced and came with one out in the fourteenth. The Flushing lad, incidentally, just managed to beat the relay of the ball to the plate by a matter of inches. In the sixth inning Hal Halvorsen cracked out a home-run drive to right centre, which gave the Brooklyn Tech team its third run and brought the Brooklyn champions to the front, 3 to 2.

The count remained at those figures until the ninth, when Reiss's single and two errors by Ernst, the Tech shortstop, produced a Flushing run that tied the score and sent the lads struggling through five successive innings without a score until Gold ended the game.

TIGERS WIN IN TENTH, 6-3.

Tavener's Triple Scores Runs That Defeat the Red Sox.

BOSTON, June 19 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers staged a three-run rally in the tenth inning after two were out and defeated the Boston Red Sox in the first of a three-game series, 6 to 3, today. The winning hit was a three-base blow by Tavener over Boone's head in right field, scoring two runs. Bassler brought Tavener in with a one-base hit. In the fifth Ehmke made a balk which scored a run.

Sweetser and Lloyd to Meet in Met. Golf Final—Danby Wins Hanover Handicap

SWEETSER TO PLAY LLOYD FOR TITLE

Jess Reaches Met. Golf Final by Beating Berrien, 5 and 4, and Jones, 3 and 2.

LLOYD ALSO DOUBLE VICTOR

Triumphs Over Peacock at 21st Hole and Oakley, 3 and 2, in First Championship Campaign.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

DEAL, N. J., June 19.—Jess Sweetser stands tonight on the brink of another metropolitan golf championship. The 1922 winner of both the district and national titles today disposed of his two opponents, Stephen Berrien and Richard A. Jones Jr., the junior champion, and tomorrow he and another former Yale man, Larry Lloyd of Greenwich, will settle the championship question for 1925.

Lloyd's two victories which launched his first championship campaign were gained at the expense of the 1921 runner-up, Grant Peacock of Cherry Valley and R. L. Oakley of Hudson River. It took him twenty-one holes to dispose of Peacock. He did not have to travel that far against Oakley, winning the match on the sixteenth green.

Jones reached the semi-final round through his defeat of Reggie Lewis of Greenwich at the home green this morning, while Oakley put an end to the aspirations of yesterday's hero, A. G. Whitham, conqueror of William Reekie, the defending champion. Following that rather unusual feat it was thought by many that Whitham would go on to become the dark horse of the tourney, but today was not yesterday, and Oakley refused to be disturbed by any thoughts of what had happened to the New Jersey Scot.

Victories Typical of the Man.

Sweetser's two victories were won in a manner typical of the man. In both matches he was slow to start, allowing his rivals to remain in suspense until the turn, or even beyond. In Berrien's case it was at the tenth hole that "Big Jess" began his drive; in Jones's case the twelfth. But in both matches there was scarcely any doubt of the ultimate result, for Jess was always well within himself and his rivals struggling for what they got.

It was on and around the greens that Sweetser's superiority stood out in both matches today. Berrien and Jones might, and sometimes did, outplay him in other departments, but near the greens, recovering from trouble, approaching and putting, his margin was miles wide. The best example of this came in the match with Jones in the afternoon.

For eleven holes it was anybody's match, and not only that but a match that was well worth the watching. Then "poor" Richard began making descensions into traps. The first noteworthy descent was made at the twelfth hole and it made him one down. He was trapped again on the thirteenth and the hole went to Sweetser, 3 to 4, Jess playing a beautiful mashie niblick pitch close to the pin and holing the putt for a birdie. On the next green Sweetser was inside Jones and got down a six-footer for another birdie 3. That made him 3 up and four holes to play.

He gave young Richard a great opening when he pitched far over the fifteenth green, but the king of the juniors passed it up, playing short and into a trap. He had a good recovery, but Sweetser, after failing to get his second over the mound, pitched up dead for a 4 and halved the hole.

Expectations Are Short-Lived.

The match was now dormie 3, but Sweetser once again left the door wide open. His drive was in the rough to the right and his second to the left of the green, also in the rough. Jones, however, after a fine drive, played an iron short and into a trap, but came out with every expectation of winning the hole. His expectations were short-lived, though, when Sweetser, after again failing to get over the bank, laid his approach dead and halved the hole.

The cards:

Out—
Sweetser	4	3	4	5	5	4	5	5	4—37
Jones	3	4	4	3	4	5	5	4	5—37
In—
Sweetser	5	4	4	3	3	4	5
Jones	5	4	6	4	4	4	5

Sweetser was out in 38 against Berrien, and that match was all even at the turn. Then a series of mishaps struck the Upper Montclair youngster and Sweetser took five holes running. A fifty-yard chip shot up to the pin gave Berrien a birdie on the tenth and he had a par on the eleventh, where Berrien was out of bounds. Sweetser's next three holes were 3, 4, 4, a birdie and two pars, and that ended it. A twenty-five-yard putt gave him the birdie 3 at the twelfth and he laid Berrien a stymie at the thirteenth.

Lloyd's golf was too strong for Oakley in the afternoon, the Hudson River veteran finding himself 3 down going to the fifth hole. From there until the ninth Oakley won three holes, but he lost two and his deficit therefore was two holes at the turn. His chances were not improved any when he was out of bounds on the tenth, which he lost 6 to 7, and when Lloyd won the twelfth the question became not who but how long. Oakley managed to get a hole back at the thirteenth, where Lloyd drove into the woods. But the Greenwich ace retaliated by taking the sixteenth to clinch the match.

Oakley Wild Off the Tees.

Against Lloyd, Oakley did not play the type of golf that he played against Whitham in the morning. The latter was the victim of a natural let-down coming after his two fine rounds yesterday. He was wild off the tees and unable to putt with steadiness, and so Oakley had a rather easy time of it.

The other two matches in the third round were hard fought, one going to the eighteenth green and the other three holes farther than that. In the first Lewis was 2 up against Jones, with only five holes to play, but once more the old, old ogre of golfers got in its deadly work. Reggie lost three straight holes to Jones's par golf and from 2 up he was 1 down and two to play when the spasm was over. He was wide of the fourteenth green on his second, he was out of bounds at the fifteenth and then trapped, and at the sixteenth he missed a tiny putt that would have given him a half.

The seventeenth was halved in 4s, neither distinguishing himself in the playing of it. Then, coming to the last hole, with Jones one hole to the good, but trapped on his drive and forced to play his second short of the cross bunkers, Reggie used what turned out to be bad judgment. He was himself trapped off the tee and attempted to get home from where he was. Instead, he hooked his ball out of bounds and then, after topping, pitched into a trap. Barely on the green with his next stroke, he took one putt and then conceded the hole to Jones, who was on with his third.

The match between Lloyd and Peacock was peculiar in that after the third hole Peacock was never even until the last one. Five holes from the finish the Greenwich player was three up, but missed a drive at the fourteenth. Peacock's brilliant second shot to the fifteenth, and a 4 at the home hole enabled the Long Islander to gain level footing.

Fate of a Topped Ball.

At each of the first two extra holes Peacock topped his drives, but scrambled halves nevertheless. When playing to the third extra hole he topped another. He did not fare so well, for this time Lloyd took full advantage of the opportunity thus afforded him, put his second shot on the edge of the green and putted up close to the hole. Peacock's second was played short purposely, and his third was hooked into the bunkers on the left to the green, from where he had an almost impossible approach to lay dead, but he failed and so faded out of the tourney.

There is no telling how the match might have gone had it not been for that topped ball or for that third shot. Had he been on the green, anywhere near the hole, Lloyd might not have laid his approach putt dead for his ball was on the edge of the green many yards from the hole.

The cards:

King George and Queen Mary Will See U. S. Army Polo Team Play British Today

LONDON, June 19 (AP).—London's polo enthusiasts, including King George and Queen Mary and a goodly sprinkling of tourists, will troop to Hurlingham Club in the southwestern suburbs tomorrow to watch the British Army polo team play the American Army team in the first of three international matches in which the American four will defend the military championship it won at Meadow Brook last year. The two other matches will be played June 24 and 27.

Unless it rains tonight the Hurlingham field will be in ideal playing condition, and with men and ponies in the best of health and spirits the best polo exhibition this country has seen since the war is promised. In their last two practice games here the American players made a very good impression with the experts, who agree that the two teams are about even in form and that the results cannot be forecast.

The American team will be made up as follows: No. 1, Major A. H. Wilson; No. 2, Captain Charles H. Gerhardt; No. 3, Captain Peter P. Rodes, and Major Louis A. Beard, back. The British team will be: No. 1, Captain R. L. McCreery; No. 2, W. S. McCreery; No. 3, Captain J. P. Dening, and Major D. C. Boles, back.

The American team arrived in England a month ago and has played nearly a dozen practice games, most of which it has won. The British four has sustained a serious loss in Major Vivian N. Lockett, whose uncertain health caused the British selection committee to substitute Captain J. P. Dening.

THREE JOCKEYS HURT AT LATONIA TRACK

Fronk, Pool and Maguire Are Thrown in Second Race—Takaweesa Is Destroyed.

Special to The New York Times.

LATONIA, Ky., June 19.—A serious accident marred the running of the second race this afternoon in which Jockeys W. Fronk and W. Pool were badly hurt and F. Maguire was shaken severely. The race was for 2-year-old maiden fillies over the course of five and a half furlongs. Twelve went to the post and they were sent away to a good start. Before they had completed a furlong there was a bad jam, in which B. Combs's Mona stumbled and fell. Pool went down with her and Mrs. G. W. Church's Betty C., and Harry Payne Whitney's Takaweesa fell over them.

Takaweesa had her back broken and was destroyed. Fronk had a broken wrist and injuries about the chest. It was Maguire's first mount since his recovery from a broken leg sustained at the meeting at Churchill Downs.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For three-year-olds; claiming; purse $1,400; five and one-half furlongs. Mr. Biltmore, 108½ pounds (Connelly), $15.80, $6.60, $4.50, first; Beulah Stone, 95 (Mortensen) $5.10, $4, second; Betty Star, 100 (Canfield), $6.10, third. Time—1:07 3-5. Garr, Duanne, Lancer, Catesby, Mr. Fat, Return, Captain Dogan, Charcoal and Aurora also ran.

SECOND RACE—For two-year-olds; fillies; maidens; purse $1,400; five and one-half furlongs. Lakne 115 pounds (Canfield), $17.60, $9.20, $4, first; Lady Carolyn, 115 (McCoy), $5.50, $3.20, second; Percussion 115 (Connelly), $2.60, third. Time—1:08 2-5. Dawn of Tomorrow, Queen Navarre, Girl o' My Heart, Marial Barton, Breathless Moments, Stella King, Mona, Betty C. and Takaweesa also ran.

MISS COLLETT WINS IN FRANCE, 7 AND 5

Beats Mme. Vagliano in Golf Title Play and Will Meet Mlle. Chaume in Final.

VERSAILLES, France, June 19 (AP).—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., by defeating the French golfer, Mme. Vagliano, 7 up and 5 to play, today, has an opportunity to play in the finals of the French women's golf championship tomorrow. To win the championship she will have to defeat Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume, a 17-year-old schoolgirl, who today disposed of the formidable player, Pauline de Bellett, 5 and 4.

Miss Collett's form has made her the favorite to win the championship, although she made the first nine holes today with only one stroke less than was required by Mlle. de la Chaume. The American player won at the thirteenth hole. She made a number of splendid strokes. On the eleventh, her third stroke carried for nearly 200 yards on to the green.

Both Miss Collett and Mme. Vagliano hit the flag with their shots at the third hole. Miss Collett won the fifth, sixth, seventh and ninth holes, lost the second and halved the first, third, fourth and eighth.

HANDSOME HARRY WINS BLUE AT HORSE SHOW

Takes Honors for Polo Mounts at Huntington Bay Exhibit—Dansant Loses Twice.

Special to The New York Times.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., June 19.—A champion was created, a former grand champion hunter was twice beaten and a former champion saddle horse again was returned victorious here on the opening day of the fifth annual Huntington Bay Horse Show, held in the sunken theatre of the Huntington Bay Club. Two thousand enthusiasts turned out to see twenty-eight classes judged.

The champion was created in the class for polo mounts, which was won by Handsome Harry, a bay gelding owned by the 101st Cavalry of Brooklyn. The same military unit's Perfect was reserve.

Dansant, John McE. Bowman's hunter, which only last Saturday won grand championship honors at the Westchester Horse Show, failed to get the coveted blues in the class for ladies' hunters carrying 160 pounds and in the class for lightweight hunters carrying 165 pounds. Beaucaire, a chestnut gelding owned by Mrs. John C. Loud, defeated Dansant in the first-named class and Miss Katherine I. Magner's Dupree in the lightweight hunter group.

George Crouch's Princess Gloria, saddle horse champion in the Westchester show for horses over 15.2, won the blue in the same class here today, and also the first prize in the saddle horse sweepstakes.

Mr. Crouch took two other firsts beside a third and a fourth today. Bronze King was his other double winner when it came through in the class for combination horses and then won in the saddle horse group.

Throughout the competition was keen. Charles F. Hubbs's horses won two firsts and a fourth while the animals of Miss Elizabeth Greze took firsts and seconds. Two blues, two reds and a yellow fell to Harvey S. Ladew's horses and Mrs. Richard J. Goodman won four seconds, two thirds, and two fourths but could not get a blue.

Besides winning the polo championship the 101st Cavalry won another first, three seconds, two thirds and one fourth.

Post and Paddock

Mad Play, conqueror of Sting in the Brooklyn Handicap, is asked to take up 128 pounds this afternoon in the Queens County Handicap at Aqueduct, but the Rancocas Stable has accepted the issue for the son of Fair Play and Madcap. Only six have been named overnight, but it should be a fine race, as the track is at its best.

The Hudson Stakes, which dates back to 1887, has attracted eleven of the crack two-year-olds. Top weight at 122 is on the Greentree Stable's Navigator, which was classed as the best two-year-old on the Maryland circuit.

On and after next Wednesday entries at Aqueduct will close at 1:30 P. M. Weights for handicaps will be announced at 12:30 P. M. and declarations must be made by 1:30 P. M. each day.

Jockey E. King did a circus stunt on Amstelle when the gelding bolted at the first fence in the steeplechase. King started to go over his head, but stopped on his neck and after some difficulty managed to get back into the saddle and regain his irons. He finished last.

Desmond Dale was the only one of the nine starters to come down, finding trouble three fences from home. Jockey S. Higgins was thrown heavily and sustained a broken collarbone.

Handicapper W. S. Vosburgh yesterday announced the weights for the Winfield Steeplechase Handicap, which will be decided next Wednesday at two miles. It will carry $3,000 in added money and attracted forty-eight nominations. All of the cracks are named and Dan IV, as usual, is top weight with 160 pounds.

Sting, which was injured in the running of the Brooklyn Handicap, is coming around nicely. He was lively as a cricket yesterday morning and showed no sign of lameness. It was decided yesterday that Sting's next appearance will be in the Saratoga Cup, at a mile and six furlongs, which will be run on the last day of the meeting at the Spa.

Franklin was claimed out of the first race by Louis Weiss for $2,000.

SANDE RIDES DANBY FIRST AT AQUEDUCT

Gets Colt Under Wire Ahead of Florence Nightingale in Hanover Handicap.

FISHER'S CARTOONIST WINS

Captures the Gravesend Purse by a Head From Lightship—Devastation Takes a Race.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Danby carried off the Hanover Handicap, a mile dash for three-year-olds, which featured a seven-race program at the Aqueduct course yesterday afternoon. Splendidly ridden by Earl Sande the bay colt, under 119 pounds, ran the distance in 1:37 4-5 over a fast track. He was third choice in a field of five and was held at 3 to 1 at post time.

Danby was almost overlooked in the race for the Hanover, most of the money going on the Fisher entry of Swope and Flagship and on W. M. Jeffords's Florence Nightingale. The entry closed at 2 to 1 and the filly at 11 to 5, while R. L. Gerry's Peanuts was the 4-to-1 outsider.

McDermott took Florence Nightingale to the front soon after the rise of the barrier and opened a length and a half on Swope, which had Albert Johnson up. Sande rated Danby in third place down the backstretch and around the turn, where he disposed of Swope and then went on to challenge the filly. They made a brilliant battle of it down the homestretch, but the colt outlasted the filly to beat her by three parts of a length.

Swope had up top weight of 126 pounds and the burden proved too much for him. He dropped back in the stretch drive and finished out of the money. Peanuts showed much improved form. Away last, he gradually worked his way up and was up to take the short end of the money a length back of Florence Nightingale and four lengths in front of Swope. Flagship was outrun all the way and finished last.

Close Call for Cartoonist.

The Gravesend Purse, at a mile, brought out a field of eight, with H. C. Fisher's Cartoonist, the odds-on favorite, backed to 1 to 2 at post time. W. H. Jeffords's Man o' War filly Lightship made the early pace. Cartoonist coming up on the outside on the turn. The two made a hot race of it down the stretch, and at the end Cartoonist did not have anything to spare on the lightly weighted filly, gaining the decision by only a head. Cartoonist packed 122 pounds and gave twenty-one to Lightship. Tom Welsh's three-year-old colt Despot came from in back to take third money from Resolution.

The selling steeplechase over the course of about two miles was easily won by John W. Converse's old gelding Silver Threads, which was much the best of the nine which paraded. Burgess rated him back of the pace for a turn and a half of the field. He closed fast and won galloping by a length from H. W. Maxwell's Vox Populi II. W. M. Jeffords's Macduff was eight lengths back to take third money. The winner was the second choice at 7 to 2. Isis, the 9-to-5 favorite, and right with the leaders all the way, was poorly ridden and was fourth.

There were so many entries for the claiming event for three-year-olds and up, at six and a half furlongs, that the race was run in two divisions. A dozen faced the barrier in the first, with Sarsaparilla and Frankman equal first choices, at 5 to 2. The former forced the early pace and held on well to take the place, while the latter did not figure. The winner was Mrs. O. C. Rasch's old gelding Devastation, which hasn't been to the races in a long time. He was a 15-to-1 shot.

Blackstone Tastes Dust.

The second division brought out an even dozen, of which A. P. Doyle's gelding Blackstone was the 8-to-5 favorite. After making the early pace he quit and finished out of the money. The winner was the second choice, John McCambridge's Banner Bearer, which was making his first start in this part of the country.

CITO BERGERSLUST IS BEST SHEPHERD

Double German Grand Champion Is Awarded American Grand Championship Again.

BELMONT PARK SHOW ENDS

Judge Kaempfe Picks Irma Von Doenerhof, Also Owned by John Gans, as the Reserve.

Cito Bergerslust, twice German grant champion, was adjudged yesterday American grand champion for the second time at the eleventh annual show of the Shepherd Dog Club of America, and thereby achieved a distinction that has come to no other shepherd dog. John Gans's star of dogdom reached the apex of shepherd aristocracy on the second and closing day of the exhibition held at Belmont Park, with Otto Kaempfe of Jena, Germany, the judge.

The national breeding master of Germany brought to an end a show which is said by experts to have been one of the greatest steps toward advancement in the fundamentals of shepherd breeding here by giving every one of the ribbon winners a classification of excellent, very good, good, fair or no good. Judge Kaempfe's distinctions in this regard were held by many as more important than the awards of prizes.

The prize for the best of breed could not have been won by any other exhibitor than John Gans, for his bitch, Irma von Doenerhof, was the reserve. Both of Mr. Gans's champions, before entering the ring for the best of breed, had won the solid gold medals set in rosettes for the champion dog and champion bitch classes. These classes brought out some beautiful specimens of shepherds.

Judge Kaempfe classed all eight of the winners as excellent, which high rating was considered all the more remarkable owing to his severity of judging. As evidence of this was his withholding of first prizes in two of the puppy bitch classes and also a second prize because the animals shown were not good enough to merit the honors. His criticism of these and other dogs was that they were too soft, lacked temperament, firmness and had not been worked enough.

A victory that brought great satisfaction to American breeders and one which was another illustration of the judge's sternness was the triumph of the Joselle Kennels' Zelberta of Joselle in the open class for bitches. Zelberta of Joselle, only eighteen months old, won from many older dogs and was classed as excellent. John Gans's Anka von Springeberg was second, also rated as excellent. Zelberta of Joselle went on to win the silver medal set in a rosette, which was the first prize in the winners' bitch class. Anka von Springeberg was again second, winning the rosette with bronze medal in centre.

Sarazen Goes 4 Under Par.

Gene Sarazen, former national open golf champion, played his first match on the nine-hole course at Governors Island yesterday. Playing in an eighteen-hole foursome with Frank Presbrey against Colonel John W. Grissinger and Major Henry W. Fleet, Sarazen did the first round of the nine holes in a par 32 and negotiated the second round in 28. Sarazen and Presbrey won the match, 1 up.

HURSTWOOD TAKES HARDWICKE STAKE

Beats Mme. Calmann's Tournesol and Lord Rosebery's Plack at Ascot.

COMPILER, 20 TO 1, VICTO

Wins the Wokingham From Sil Guard and Lady Nurnburnholme's Perhaps So.

ASCOT, England, June 19 (AP).—Someville Tattersall's Hurstwood won the Hardwicke Stakes for £2,000 with extras run here today. Madame Calmann's Tournesol was second and Lord Rosebery's Plack third. Seven ran. The betting was Hurstwood 10 to against, Tournesol 20 to 1 and Plack 10 to 1.

Hurstwood won by half a length while only a head separated Tournesol and Plack. Hurstwood is by Gay Crusader out of Bleasdale.

Lewis Schaverin's Compiler won the Wokingham Stakes of £700 with extras also run here today. George Hardy's Silent Guard was second and Lady Nurnburnholme's Perhaps So third. Twenty-two ran.

Compiler won by half a length. Three lengths separated Silent Guard and Perhaps So. The betting was Compiler 20 to 1 against, Silent Guard 100 to and Perhaps So 100 to 9.

BRAIDED WIRE
KELLY
Kelly
Flexible Cord

The best tire Kelly ever built

The New Kelly Way

The drawing shows how the bead of the new Kelly Cord is formed by enclosing strips of braided wire in the loops of the cord fabric. The cords which form these loops are continuous from the beginning of the innmost ply to the end of the outer. The whole tire thus has a flexibility and "give" that is necessarily lacking in tires made by the ordinary method.

THE construction of the Flexible Cord is different from that of any other tire. The bead is built in as an integral part of the carcass, making a stronger and yet less rigid construction which also makes possible the use of a flexible tread. The Flexible Cord is sturdier than the former Kelly Cord and at the same time is more pliable. To the car-owner this means a combination of mileage and easy riding that hitherto never has been equaled, either by Kelly tires, or so far as we know, by any others.

Walker Agrees to Fight Dave Shade

WALKER ACCEPTS BOUT WITH SHADE

Signs Before Commission to Defend Welter Title at Vernon on July 21.

GREB FIGHT NOW ASSURED

Last Obstacle Removed From Italian Hospital Fund Feature at Polo Grounds July 2.

The last obstacle in the path of the world's middleweight championship bout of fifteen rounds between Harry Greb, the champion, and Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, scheduled as the feature attraction for the Italian Hospital Fund boxing card at the Polo Grounds on July 2, was removed yesterday. Smiling Mickey, hesitant about observing the order of the State Athletic Commission that he perfect arrangements for a bout against Dave Shade, Californian, who is recognized as his foremost challenger, finally capitulated.

Walker deserted his training camp at Summit, N. J., for a hurried visit to the commission's offices, and there, while cameras clicked, signed the documents which bind him to defend his title against Shade. Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, appeared at the commission's office, but was refused admittance to the signing, which was done by Walker.

The fight, according to the agreement entered into yesterday, will be held in Vernon, Cal., on July 21, and will be for ten rounds to a decision under the boxing law of California. Promoter Jack Doyle will handle the bout. Tom Laird, delegated as a representative of Doyle, visited the commission at its meeting yesterday morning and, submitting articles for the bout, gained the approval of the commission to the match being held in the Far West. He signed on behalf of Doyle. Promoter Humbert Fugazy of the Italian Hospital Fund bouts, accompanied Laird to the commission.

Must Post $10,000 Forfeits.

The articles provide that Larry McGrath of Los Angeles referee the contest, and that each boxer post the sum of $10,000 as a weight and appearance forfeit. In the event that one of the boxers fails to make the stipulated weight, 147 pounds, eight hours before the bout, his forfeit automatically reverts to the boxer who has complied with the weight stipulation. Further, the boxer at weight, in the event that one of the pair fails to make the weight, is at liberty, if he so elects, to decline to fight.

Shade last May 25 signed to meet Walker, the commission notified Laird, so that with Walker's signing the match legally is closed.

Thus an end is furnished to countless days of uncertainty and worry for the backers of the Italian Fund bouts and threatened disciplinary action by the commission against Walker is averted. The charity bouts, too, are assured, now that Walker has complied with every request and demand of the commission. Originally, Walker was placed on the ineligible list of the commission in this State for his refusal to recognize Shade as his challenger. He was restored to good standing and permitted to sign for the Greb fight only after he had consented to recognize Shade as challenger and had posted a bond of $10,000 that he would sign to meet the Westerner.

Babe Herman, California featherweight, who has transferred his residence permanently to Freeport, L. I., was recognized as the foremost challenger of Louis (Kid) Kaplan, featherweight champion, and a notification of the commission's selection, together with a request that Kaplan advise the commission of his attitude with respect to the selection within fifteen days, was forwarded to Kaplan and his manager, Scotty Montieth.

Dundee Out of Running.

Herman's selection was made over the challenges of Eddie Brady, Syracuse featherweight, and Bobby Garcia of Camp Holabird, Md. The selection of Herman as foremost challenger for Kaplan's title, precludes the possibility of a bout between Kaplan and Dundee here for Herman, Chairman Farley said, now is established as the boxer Kaplan first must face in a bout in this State.

For the rest the business of the commission meeting involved only minor affairs. Matchmaker Tom McArdle of the Queensboro Stadium notified the commission that Jimmy Goodrich and Stanislaus Loayza, contestants for the final bout in the commission's lightweight championship elimination tournament, had agreed to accept a smaller percentage of the receipts for their bout in order that the supporting card might be materially strengthened. The commission approved this change.

TILDEN AND CHAPIN VICTORS IN DOUBLES

Richards and Voshell Also Win in Semi-Finals of Met. Clay Court Title Play.

William T. Tilden 2d and Vincent Richards will meet twice tomorrow in the metropolitan clay court championships at the New York Tennis Club. In addition to playing for the singles championship they will also be opposed to each other in the final of the doubles. In the semi-final round yesterday Tilden and Chapin defeated Anton E. Von Bernuth and Carl N. Jolliff of the Montclair A. C. at 6—3, 6—2, 8—6, and Richards and S. Howard Voshell of Kew Gardens eliminated F. M. Bonneau and I. Biltchik at 6—0, 6—3, 8—6. The singles final will be played at 2:30 and the doubles match will follow.

Neither Tilden and Chapin nor Richards and Voshell were extended yesterday. Joliff and Von Bernuth both played fast clever tennis but they could not stand up against the pace and court craft of Tilden and his partner. The champion played uniformly fine tennis from the time the umpire called play until he scored the final point of the match with a beautiful passing shot. Chapin held up his end in capable fashion until the final set, when he weakened for a while. In the first set the Springfield youth performed in brilliant style, scoring on daring drives down the line and volley placements between the opposing pair.

The other semi-final was not as interesting. Richards and Voshell were not inclined to extend themselves as long as they did not have to and it was not until the finl set that Bonneau and Biltchik put them on their mettle. Atef taking six games in a row for the first set with little effort Richards and Voshell softened their stroking in the second and did not press matters.

Fugazy Abandons Slattery Bout.

Promoter Humbert Fugazy has abandoned plans for arranging a bout between Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo middleweight, and either Yussel Pearlstein or Tony Marullo as an attraction for the Italian Hospital Fund boxing card at the Polo Grounds, July 2, it was announced yesterday, because of Slattery's money demands.

Munn to Wrestle on July 8.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 19 (AP).—The giant of the wrestling game, Wayne (Big) Munn, will appear in action here July 8, Gus Tiefenthaler, St. Louis promoter, announced today. The promoter said Munn agreed to meet any one selected by Tiefenthaler.

BOXING BOUTS TONIGHT.

Commonwealth S. C.—Lee Anderson vs. Tiger Flowers; Patsy Motto vs. Frisco McGale. Two twelve-round bouts.

Ridgewood Grove S. C., Brooklyn—Marty Silvers vs. Jackie Gordon; Pete Scarano vs. Henry Shaw; Dan O'Connell vs. Johnny Urban; Willie Walker vs. Georgie Smith; Rudy Miller vs. Patsy Yodice. Five six-round bouts.

Schedule of Tennis Matches At Forest Hills for Today

The schedule of matches for the Cathedral Fund at Forest Hills today follows:

2 P. M.—Court 1: Dr. George King vs. Watson Washburn. Court 3: Zenzo Shimizu and Takeichi Harada vs. Dean Mathey and Karl Behr.

3 P. M.—Court 2: William T. Tilden 2d vs. Vincent Richards.

4 P. M.—Court 1: R. Norris Williams 2d vs. Francis T. Hunter. Court 3: Dean Mathey vs. Takeichi Harada.

5 P. M.—Court 2: Tilden and Richards vs. Washburn and Williams.

TENNIS STARS PLAY IN BENEFIT TODAY

Tilden to Meet Richards to Aid Fund of Cathedral on Forest Hills Court.

One of the largest crowds that ever attended a series of tennis exhibitions will throng to the famous courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills this afternoon to see William Tilden, Vincent Richards and other leading players of the country perform for the benefit of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. More than two thousand tickets already have been sold, an unprecedented demand for a non-championship event. It is estimated by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, which is staging the matches along with the Metropolitan L. T. A. and the West Side Club, that this number will be doubled today.

The match between Tilden and Richards is the big attraction that is drawing the crowd. The opportunity to see the two leading players of the country opposed to each other on turf is not one to be passed up by any one the least bit interested in tennis, and the victory of Richards over the champion at Orange several weeks ago has awakened the curiosity of many who perhaps never saw a match before. They want to see the youth who was able to beat the world's greatest player. This match will start at 3 o'clock on court No. 2.

At 5 o'clock Tilden and Richards will go on the courts again, this time on the same side of the net. They will play R. Norris Williams 2d of Philadelphia and Watson Washburn of New York, former Davis Cup combination. The outcome of this match will be awaited with much interest by the Davis Cup Committee as giving that body a line on the two teams as Davis Cup doubles possibilities.

The exhibitions will start at 2 o'clock with a singles match between Dr. George King and Washburn on court 1 and a doubles match on court 3 between Captain Zenzo Shimizu and Takeichi Harada of the Japanese Davis Cup team and Dean Mathey and Karl Behr, former internationalist. Another big feature match will bring together Williams and Francis T. Hunter of Beckley, W. Va., Wimbledon and Olympic doubles champion, with Richards.

Bishop Manning will head a party of close to a score of Cathedral officers. Delegations from various metropolitan polo, tennis, golf and country clubs have booked sections of seats. Tickets may be purchased at the West Side Club today. They are priced at $1.50 each.

EASTERN N. Y. TITLE TENNIS OPENS TODAY

Tilden and Richards Among the Seeded Players in 81 Entered on N. Y. A. C. Courts.

William Tilden and Vincent Richards don't seem to be able to keep out of each other's way this year. They met in Florida at Palm Beach in the early Spring, at Orange several weeks ago, at Boston in the Church Cup matches; today they meet at Forest Hills and tomorrow in the final of the metropolitan clay court championship at the New York Tennis Club. Already another meeting between the two ranking stars of the country is in sight, for they are both entered in the Eastern New York State championship, which will begin today at the Travers Island home of the New York A. C.

Eighty-one players will start in the championship, which formerly was held at the Amackassin Club in Yonkers. Through the initiative of Henry W. Wilson, Chairman of the Tournament Committee, the greatest field that ever competed for the title has been attracted. In addition to Tilden and Richards the draw, which was made yesterday, shows the names of Dr. George King, who defeated Wallace Johnson of Philadelphia in the Church Cup matches; Herbert L. Bowman, New Jersey and North Side titleholder; A. H. Chapin Jr. of Springfield; Harold Binzen, Paul Martin, Alfred D. Hammett and Horace Orser, national interscholastic titleholder. These constitute the seeded players.

Because of their engagements today at Forest Hills and tomorrow at the New York Tennis Club, Richards and Tilden will not begin play in the tournament until Monday at 5 o'clock.

MRS. MALLORY LOSES AGAIN

Bows in Delaware Doubles Final to Mrs. Jessup and Miss Thayer.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 19.—One match, the final in the women's doubles, was the big attraction in the Delaware State lawn tennis championship tournament here today. Mrs. John B. Jessup of the Wilmington Country Club, who won the singles championship by defeating Mrs. Molla B. Mallory in the final yesterday, and Mrs. Molly Thayer of Philadelphia were pitted against Mrs. Mallory of New York, former national champion, and Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston. Mrs. Jessup and Mrs. Thayer won at 7—5, 4—6, 6—3.

TENNIS TITLE PLAY MONDAY

Connecticut Women's Championship to Start at New Canaan.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., June 19.—Mrs. Helene Falk and Mrs. W. H. Pritchard of New York and Miss Jessie Scott of Scarsdale are among those entered for the women's State tennis championship, which begins next Monday at the Country Club of New Canaan. Although Miss Mayme McDonald of Washington, present State singles champion, and Mrs. H. Stewart Greene of Philadelphia, runner-up last year, have not yet entered, the committee expects their names will be on the list before it closes.

The singles matches begin at 2:30 P. M., the doubles and junior girls' singles start on Tuesday and the mixed doubles start on Friday.

Applegate Wins Insurance Prize.

Ralph W. Appelgate of Plainfield, N. J., employed in the Group Division, yesterday carried off the point trophy for the athlete scoring the greatest number of points at the annual athletic meet of the Metropolitan Life Insurance A. A., held at Indian Point on the Hudson. Applegate scored 12 points. It was the second successive year in which he has captured this trophy.

Babe Herman Beats Ames.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, June 19 (AP).—Babe Herman, California featherweight, decisively outpointed Willie Ames, Akron junior lightweight, in a twelve-round boxing contest here last night.

MARSHALL WINNER IN COLLEGE TENNIS

Columbian Falls Heir to New York State Crown by Beating Garretson of Cornell.

ITHACAN'S ERRORS COSTLY

His Wildness Gives Opponent Match—Victor, Paired With Case, Takes Doubles Titles.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Richard Marshall of Columbia University found out yesterday that there really is some truth in the adage that all things come to him who waits. Richard hasn't been wanting all things, but he has had his mind set on winning the New York State intercollegiate tennis championship, and after two years of waiting he got what he wanted. In the final round of the championship tournament at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, yesterday morning Marshall defeated Jack Garretson of Cornell at 6—3, 6—2, 6—4.

If he hadn't won the match Marshall wouldn't have believed there was any Santa Claus, for this is his final year of eligibility for the title. Two years ago he was runner-up to Jerry Lang in the first tournament held for the State championship, and last year he reached the final again, where he lost to Perry Rockafellow of Colgate. The Columbian is now going to have his final fling at the national intercollegiate championship, which starts Monday at Haverford, Pa.

In addition to winning the singles title Marshall also won the doubles championship with George Case of Columbia. They defeated Jacob B. Young and Alfred E. Zeese of Pratt Institute at 6—3, 6—1, 6—2 in the final round of the tournament in the afternoon. This is the third year that Marshall has taken the doubles title. Two years ago he won with Lang and last year with Paul Kong. Columbia now has six points on the doubles cups and needs only one more victory to take them outright.

Marshall continued his policy of waiting yesterday and let Garretson defeat himself. Garretson took the first two games and then lost all range of the lines and the net. In the first set Marshall won 40 points, and 34 of them were gained on his opponent's errors. In the second set Marshall's total of points was 29 and just two of them were earned.

Garretson got a grip on himself in the final set and the play bore some semblance of a match, but Marshall was always the steadier. This time he earned 7 of his total of 38 points.

Marshall gained a lead of 30—0 on two nets in the first set, but Garretson pulled up with a series of pretty drives and took the game at 7—5. He won the second on his own service.

The third game saw Garretson started on his mad streak of error making. He dropped the third game without getting a point, was broken through at 4—1 in the fourth and made four errors in a row in the fifth. The Columbian was unable to handle Garretson's service in the sixth, and the score was tied at 3—all. Marshall then took the next three games. Garretson had a good chance to break through in the ninth when he led at 40—30, but each time, needing only a point for the game, he flubbed the easiest sort of shots, and Marshall finally won the game at 11—9 and the set.

In the second set Marshall won the first four games without earning a point, taking each of them at 4—2. He lapsed in the fifth and lost the game on errors at 4—1. Garretson, after pulling up from 0—40 to advantage, passed up his opportunity and lost the game at 8—6. The next two games went on service.

Garretson got away to a good start in the final set. He won the opening game at love and was twice within a stroke of breaking through in the second, only to lose it at 7—5. Three double faults cost him the third, and Marshall increased his lead to 3—1 in the fourth. He won the fifth, also, at 4—1. Garretson won the sixth at 6—4. He took the seventh, also, at 7—5, and the score stood at 4—3 in Marshall's favor. Marshall won the seventh at love, Garretson the eighth at love and Marshall the tenth at love for the match.

NETTLETON NOW HEADS YALE ATHLETIC BOARD

Chairman of Department of English Is Appointed for One Year to Succeed Mendell.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 19 (AP).—Professor George H. Nettleton, Chairman of the Department of English at Yale, has been appointed Chairman of the Board of Control of the Yale University Athletic Association for a one-year term to succeed Professor Clarence W. Mendell, recently elected dean of Yale.

Professor Nettleton has been a member of the Board of Control since its organization in 1916, serving from 1916 to 1921 as the representative of the Sheffield Scientific School and from 1921 to 1925 as the representative of Yale College.

A. A. U. TRYOUTS TODAY.

Leading Athletes Entered for Events at Travers Island.

Athletes of international, national and district prominence are scheduled to compete this afternoon at Travers Island in the Metropolitan A. A. U. track and field tryouts for the national championships to be held in San Francisco July 3, 4 and 5. Full squads have been entered for the meet by the New York A. C. and the Newark A. C., the leading clubs of the district, as well as by many of the smaller organizations.

Jackson Scholz, J. Chet Bowman, Frank Hussey, Allan Woodring, Joe Tierney, J. O. MacDonald, Jimmy Connolly, Willie Goodwin and Willie Sullivan are a few of the prominent athletes scheduled to compete.

BIDWELL WINS NET TITLE.

Beats Ingraham for Massachusetts Crown After Five Sets.

BROOKLINE, Mass., June 19 (AP).—Raymond B. Bidwell won the Massachusetts State singles tennis championship at the Longwood Cricket Club today from William W. Ingraham, former Harvard star. The scores were 6—2, 9—7, 3—6, 2—6, 6—3.

Both men played a spirited volleying game. Bidwell, always on the offensive, worked up a comfortable lead in the first two sets, and after losing the third and fourth staged a fast comeback in the fifth, losing but three points in the first five games. He won the last set handily.

FOSTER AND CRISMAN WIN.

Reach Southern Title Golf Finals by Taking 19-Hole Matches.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 19 (AP).—Ted Foster of Jacksonville, Fla., and Glenn Crisman, Selma, Ala., today won their way into the finals of the Southern Golf Association championship tournament, after nineteen holes of play. To get their chance to win the Southern amateur championship, Foster and Crisman had to dispose of Frank Dyer, Memphis, and Fred Lamprecht, New Orleans, in the semi-finals this afternoon. Dyer and Lamprecht were favorites.

GEORGETTI VICTOR OVER HILL IN RACE

Captures Mile Bike Event in Straight Heats at New York Velodrome.

16,000 SEE ITALIAN WIN

Largest Crowd of Season Turns Out for Cycle Card—Fred Spencer Triumphs.

Riding in a brilliant manner, Franco Georgetti, the crack little Italian star, making his initial outdoor appearance in America at the New York Velodrome last night, defeated Fred Hill of Boston in two straight heats of a one-mile match race before 16,000 fans, the largest turnout at the Kingsbridge Bowl this season.

It was Georgetti's initial appearance on a board track outdoors and although not used to it he rode like a veteran, using excellent judgment as well as an abundance of speed.

Georgetti and Hill jockeyed up to a lap and a quarter to go in the first heat, when suddenly Georgetti dashed away and opened a tremendous gap. Hill was unable to close it all and Georgetti won by half a dozen lengths, riding the last eighth mile in the excellent time of 12 seconds flat. In the second heat Hill was glued to Georgetti's wheel all the time and did not attempt to do any jockeying but Georgetti jumped going into the last lap and Hill was unable to even draw up alongside of him, Georgetti winning by a length.

Freddie Spencer, Plainfield, won the quarter-mile national championship race, the sixth of the series of twenty-four races to decide the bicycle championship of America, by defeating Bobby Walthour, the popular Jersey youngster, and Harris Horder, Australia. In the heat to decide fourth place, Pete Moeskops defeated Bill Fenn and Mario Bergamini. Horder got off first at the crack of the gun with Spencer on his wheel and Walthour in third place. Horder tired coming down the home stretch and Spencer nipped him at the tape, while Walthour also beat him out for second place.

As a result of last night's race Fred Spencer and Bobby Walthour are now tied for first place with sixteen points, while Horder is third with thirteen. Pete Moeskops has six points, Cecil Walker five and Arthur Spencer three.

Charley Jaeger, Newark, gave the crowd the biggest thrill of the night by winning the twenty-mile motor-paced race after he had taken a nasty tumble in the first mile. Jaeger lost a lap, due to the fall, but gamely got back the lap and then won the race, while the crowd howled with delight. Lucien Bergamini was second, Angelo Vey, third and Sam Gastman, fourth. The time was 29:20 4-5.

One-Mile Novice, Amateur—Won by Alfred Setter, Empire City Wheelmen; Philip Meyerowitz, Century Road Club of America, second; Wester Holm, Century Road Club of America, third. Time—2:07 2-5.

Two-thirds-Mile Handicap, Amateur—Won by Charles Pelosa, Unione Sportiva Italiana (55 yards); Frank Keller, North Hudson Wheelmen (45 yards), second; Peter Mascherant, Century Road Club (85 yards), third; Edward Jensen, Century Road Club (75 yards), fourth; Louis Hartman, Acme Wheelmen (45 yards), fifth. Time—1:15 1-5.

Miss-and-Out Invitation, Professional—Won by William Hanley, Newark; Fred Taylor, Newark, second; Alfons Verraes, Belgium, third; Anthony Beckman, Secaucus, fourth; Louis Benezatto, New York, fifth. Distance—2 miles 4 laps. Time—5:25 4-5.

One Mile Match Race (Professional)—Franco Georgetti, Italy, vs. Fred Hill, Boston. Won by Georgetti. First heat won by Georgetti. Time—3:58. Last eighth mile, 0:12. Second heat won by Georgetti. Time—3:35. Last eighth mile, 0:12 1-5.

Twenty-Mile Motor-Paced Race (Professional)—Angelo Vey, Italy, paced by Jean Antenucci, New York; Charles Jaeger, New York, paced by Otto Miller, Brooklyn; Sam Gastman, Newark, paced by William Zipf, Newark; Lucien Bergamini, Italy, paced by Frank Jeehan, New Haven. Won by Jaeger; Bergamini, second; Vey, third; Gastman, fourth. Time—20:28 4-5.

One-Quarter-Mile National Championship (Professional)—Won by Fred Spencer, Plainfield; Bobby Walthour, Arlington, second; Harrys Horder, Australia, third; Peter Moeskops, Holland, fourth. Time—0:29 2-5. Time of heat to decide fourth place—0:30 2-5. Point score—Walthour and Fred Spencer, 16; Horder, 13; W. Spencer, 7; Moeskops, 6; Cecil Walker, 5; Arthur Spencer, 3.

Two-Mile Open (Amateur)—Won by Charles Winters, Century Road Club; Jack Costello, Bayview Wheelmen, second; Paul Croley, New Crescent Wheelmen, fourth; Al Bernhardt, Bayview Wheelmen, fifth. Time—4:13 2-5.

Two-Mile Handicap (Professional)—Won by Fred Hill, Boston (60 yards); Reggie McNamara, Newark (10 yards), second; William C. Coburn, Kearny (100 yards), third; Cecil Walker, Australia (scratch), fourth; Alex McBeath, Australia (10 yards), fifth; Norman Hill, San Jose (140 yards), sixth; Richard Schneider (190 yards), seventh. Time—3:56 4-5.

GALLANT 5-HEAT VICTOR.

Repeats Worcester Triumph as Norwich Trot Meet Closes.

Special to The New York Times.

NORWICH, Conn., June 19.—The Bay State Circuit trotting meeting closed here this afternoon. Gallant repeated his Worcester victory when he took the 2:24 trot. Billy Crozier piloted Miss Gloaming home in front in the first heat. Gallant won the next two and then went into a break, the heat again going to Miss Gloaming. With the others ruled out, Gallant was the winner of the fifth heat in the slow time of 2:24½.

The summaries:

2:24 TROT (3 IN 5).

TITLE POLO FINAL TODAY.

Harvard Four to Ride Against Army at Westchester Biltmore.

RYE, N. Y., June 19 (AP).—Light exercise for ponies and players was the order of the day for the West Point and Harvard polo teams in preparation for their contest tomorrow for the championship trophy of the intercollegiate polo tournament at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club.

Superiority of ponies has made Harvard a slight favorite over the Army team but West Point's team and ponies have had the advantage of three day's rest, while the Harvard combination was called on for its hardest game of the tournament yesterday when it defeated Yale 6 to 4.

Vermont Beats Japanese Nine.

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 19 (AP).—The Osaka Manichi baseball team of Japan, sent overseas by the newspaper of that name, was defeated by the University of Vermont today, 2 to 1. Morse of Vermont drove out a homer in the first with Carney on base, scoring the winning runs.

POLITICS IN THE NORTHWEST.

Even the famous dead go quick, and speculation is already busy with the political effects of Senator LA FOLLETTE's departure from the scene. Attention will first be centred upon Wisconsin. A bitter fight was expected in that State next year, when the Washington Administration was counted upon to throw all its influence to Senator LENROOT in his effort to secure re-election. Now there will be two Senators to elect from Wisconsin instead of one, and the chance of patching up some kind of compromise between the La Follette Republicans and the regulars would seem to be brighter than it has been. Doubtless Senator BUTLER, as Chairman of the Republican National Committee and also as political Field Marshal for the President, will bring his powers of conciliation, or the reverse, to bear upon the party situation in Wisconsin.

That particular State has been so long a La Follette enclave that the magic of the late leader's name may persist there longer than in other parts of the Northwest. What shift of sentiment, if any, will be caused in the Dakotas, in Iowa and Kansas, by the death of Senator LA FOLLETTE? He had a large and loyal following in those States. The question is whether it was more attached to his personal leadership than to the political ideas with which he was associated. If the former is true, then we might look for a speedy weakening of the insurgent movement within the Republican Party. But if the doctrines of the dead Senator counted most in rallying support for him in the Northwest, the rebellious impulse will continue to manifest itself.

In one sense, at least, Senator LA FOLLETTE's personality was essential to the Third Party movement. He was the cement that held it together. Nobody else could have exercised such a domination over the various and discordant elements that came together temporarily under his banner last year. He compelled them to accept his own tenets—at any rate, for the time being, in the platform which he wrote and forced them to adopt. During the campaign he succeeded, for the most part, in holding the lunatic fringe in check. With such an imperious control now removed, it would be strange if divergences and quarrels did not destroy the cohesion of the Third Party movement.

No figure looms today in the Senate or out of it ready or likely to take LA FOLLETTE's place as undisputed leader of the insurgent Republicans and the "farm bloc." There may be no open contest for the succession. The various minor commanders may continue to operate in their separate areas until it appears whether one of them may develop the qualities of a commander-in-chief. Meanwhile it is evident that the causes of the party troubles and the political unrest in the Northwestern States remain very much what they were, quite apart from personalities. Present indications are that the aggrieved farmers will be asking a change of tactics in the next session of Congress on the part of their Senators and Representatives.

Concerning the special measures of relief for agriculture which were vainly advocated last Winter, it would appear that the farmers have pretty well lost hope. They do not any longer look to the Government to fix prices for them or to buy up the farm surplus. But something fully as disturbing to Republican peace is reported to be in their minds. From various sources of information, both political and business, the clear intimation comes that the farmers of the Northwest have at last lost faith in the protective tariff. The violent swing of prices in the wheat market has demonstrated to them that the increased duty on imports of wheat was merely a hollow sham. But they are waking up to the fact that if a high tariff could not help them it may easily hurt them. It cannot put up the prices of the main products which they have to sell, but it can increase the cost to them of many things which they have to buy. So they are coming to the conclusion that their wisest course is to make a dead set on the tariff next December. They are cherishing the hope that with the aid of the Democrats in Congress they may be able to reduce the duties which bear most heavily upon the consumers on the farm.

This is to reckon ill by leaving out President COOLIDGE. He has been accused of making Democratic policies his own, but freer trade has never been one of them. On that subject he remains sound in the face of the Home Market Club of Boston. So that he would be almost certain to veto any bill or bills which might come to him touching a hair on the gray head of the tariff. Yet the movement could take such a form as to give him serious annoyance politically. What would it avail to be done with Senator LA FOLLETTE and the McNary-Haugen bill if the spectre of a low tariff were suddenly to rise like a threat in the Northwest?

ANOTHER OIL DECISION.

Acting much more promptly than the Federal Judge who decided that the Doheny oil lease in California was vitiated by fraud, Judge KENNEDY in Wyoming has upheld the Sinclair lease of Teapot Dome. He decided that "the allegations of fraud have not been sustained." One point in the decision might be thought to justify the skeptical saying—many judges, many minds. Judge KENNEDY held that the Executive order of President HARDING transferring the naval oil reserves to the jurisdiction of the Interior Department had legal warrant. It will be remembered that the California decision declared it to be in excess of the power of the Executive. Until the Supreme Court passes on the question, perhaps a couple of years from now, we shall not really know what the law is.

All along it was recognized that the Teapot Dome case stood on a footing different from that of the Doheny lease in the California naval reserve. There was no direct proof that Secretary FALL had been bribed or corrupted by Mr. SINCLAIR, as it was charged that he had been by Mr. DOHENY. And it will be remembered that in the Wyoming trial a good deal of evidence which the Government counsel sought to introduce showing suspicious financial transactions with Secretary FALL, or members of his family, was ruled out on technical grounds. Of course, the Government will take an appeal, and the end of the matter is far from being in sight. The strong odor of oil will for a long time cling to the transactions of 1921-22.

THE POWERS AND CHINA.

Foreign Secretary CHAMBERLAIN announced, in Thursday's debate on the Chinese situation in the House of Commons, that the British Government is approaching the other Powers with a view to expediting the conference on Chinese tariffs provided for at the Washington Conference. At first sight an international discussion of Chinese customs duties would seem to be comically far removed from the present crisis in Shanghai and other ports. But Mr. CHAMBERLAIN's presentation of the case agrees with the opinion held by those best acquainted with Chinese conditions and sympathetic with legitimate Chinese aspirations. Given such a rapid development of "education and industrialism" as RAMSAY MACDONALD alluded to, unhappy incidents like that at Shanghai become inevitable in the absence of a Central Government at Peking capable of enforcing public order on the Chinese themselves and insuring protection for foreigners. Undesirable conditions in the Shanghai factories are admitted. But it is not inevitable that the usual accompaniments of industrial development in all backward countries should lead to violence. The general break-down of government and the prevalence of civil war have combined with nationalist ferment and industrial unrest to produce the present situation.

Next to the demand for the restoration of Shantung, an increase in customs rates was the demand chiefly stressed by China's representatives at the Washington Conference. It was estimated by WELLINGTON KOO that an increase in import duties from the existing "nominal" 5 per cent. to 12½ per cent would add $300,000,000 to the Peking Government's revenues. With such an income the Central Government could render itself independent of the military chieftains by organizing an army of its own and so putting an end to the chronic civil warfare. Our representatives at Washington were willing to concede the 12½ per cent. asked for. Great Britain was ready to grant 7½ per cent. Japan would yield an increase only to an "effective" 5 per cent. and had her way, with the proviso that revision of the tariff upward would be taken up at a future conference—which is still to come.

The regrettable events at Shanghai are an indictment of the delay. To be waiting for the end of civil war before calling the conference was to travel in a vicious circle. The one way to beat down the power of the Tuchuns and to direct the rising nationalism of the student masses of China into constructive channels was to provide the means for setting up and maintaining a government that could restore Chinese unity. Such a government, by appealing to national pride, could rally to itself the patriotic sentiment that has been largely expended on an imported radicalism. Mr. CHAMBERLAIN's proposal has the merit of addressing itself both to the basic causes of Chinese unrest and to the immediate situation. The present outburst of anti-foreignism may be expected to subside in the presence of a conference seriously bent on redeeming the pledges made at Washington.

BANNING POISON GAS.

In urging that defense against the use of poison gas in warfare be not dropped by the War Department, Dr. CHARLES H. HERTY draws attention to the refusal of the experts at the Washington Conference to sanction prohibition of poison gas production. Their report was suppressed and the United States, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan joined in an agreement not to use "asphyxiating, poisonous or other gases" in warfare and to invite "all other civilized nations to adhere thereto." The agreement has not in treaty form been ratified by all the parties to it. Dr. HERTY, in his address at a meeting of the Synthetic Chemical Manufacturers' Association, quoted from the report, which probably was suppressed because it was known that the nations represented at the Washington Conference would not heed it. "Owing "to the enormous use of potential "warfare gases in peace," said the report, "it is impossible to take effective steps to prohibit production "of these gases." Restriction could only be effected "by a universal international regulation of chemical "industry and commerce, giving to "each and all nations the means to "provide for its own needs and no "more." It was argued that "if only "one Power in the world refused to "keep an international agreement to "abstain from using poisonous gases, "the general agreement would be automatically nullified." The Chemical Warfare Service of the army still functions and General AMOS FRIES must be of the opinion that Dr. HERTY is right. It was only the other day that Captain ADRIAN ST. JOHN declared that aviators flying at an altitude of 500 feet above New York could spray a mustard gas that for fourteen days would kill anybody in the vicinity.

The protocol for the abolition of poison gas warfare adopted at the Geneva Arms Conference was based upon the agreement entered into by the five Powers at the Washington Conference. A phrase that would have restricted signatures to States represented in the parley at Geneva was deleted. Thus the purpose of the delegates was to obtain the adherence of as many nations as possible to the compact framed at Washington. Theirs was the faith that turns away from such arguments as were made by the subcommittee at the Naval Conference, which found only difficulties in the way of abolishing poison gas warfare. May it not be presumed, if all the civilized peoples of the world bound themselves not to employ gases in warfare to maim and kill, just as the poisoning of wells was forbidden and never resorted to, that no nation would defy the moral sentiment of the world so expressed by all? It is part of a crusade to have the peace of the world kept. Such a righteous agitation can be productive of good only.

CHELSEA'S EAST SIDE.

That the west side has its east side is often forgotten when the Summer drives for the relief of the children of the tenement districts begin. Old Chelsea, although it cannot boast so dense a population to the square mile as the ghettos and Little Italies near the East River, has its congested settlements where children stifle during hot days and nights and overworked mothers pray for a few hours' respite and coolness. The Hudson Guild has for thirty years been ministering to the district's needs, giving help and advice as well as financial and material relief. The usual provisions have been made, such as free milk stations, free baths, and supervised recreation and games for the children. More far-reaching than this has been the assistance in hygiene and housekeeping given by the Guild's nurses and teachers in the homes. The natural emphasis on communal health has led it to use its influence for the building of new tenements and improving old ones.

Like all such institutions, the Hudson Guild has found it necessary to go outside its district and organize Summer camps for relief in the hot weather. These meet three purposes: to help convalescents, to give relief to exhausted parents, and to facilitate a brief vacation in the country for the city's youngsters. At the Guild's farm in New Jersey all of these functions are performed. Camps and cottages for families are operated. Special care is given to sickly and undernourished children. Those who are healthy are taken on hikes and permitted to enjoy for a few days or a week green grass and cool breezes. Day excursions from the city are also organized, and everything is done to enable as many children as possible from the Chelsea district to get away for a short time.

The Hudson Guild's budget for the Summer is comparatively modest. It is asking for $10,000—checks may be mailed to the Guild at 436 West Twenty-seventh Street—with which it hopes to be able to supplement its other funds in order to carry out the full season's program. Curiously enough, the very fact that its territory is not on the east side has sometimes made it more difficult to raise the necessary funds. Everybody knows about the congestion in the parts of the city along the East River. Most who hear of Chelsea visualize it in terms of the spacious residences of West Twenty-third Street and neighborhood, with their yards and gardens in front, and still saturated with the spirit of the middle nineteenth century when for a time the world of fashion frequented it. Mrs. WHARTON has described it in her recent books. But today most of it is densely crowded, and as much in need of relief as the better known east side.

STEPHAN PANARETOFF.

Like EDMOND CHARLES GENET, the first French Minister sent to the United States, STEPHAN PANARETOFF, the first Bulgarian Minister accredited here, is also to become an American citizen. While the Frenchman was recalled for trying to embroil this country in war, the Bulgarian was kept at his post for doing the opposite. Mr. PANARETOFF, who is now 75, reached here in December, 1914, after forty-four years spent as Professor of History and Languages at Robert College, Constantinople. The situation which confronted him would have severely tested the knowledge and skill of a trained diplomat—particularly after Bulgaria threw in her lot with the Central Powers and after the United States declared war on them.

It seemed paradoxical that Washington could still maintain diplomatic relations with Sofia when the latter was bound to Berlin and Vienna. Many resented this. Mr. PANARETOFF was accused of sending information of value to our enemies concealed in his code dispatches. But he politely proved that he sent his Government no code dispatches. Long before the armistice he had effectively silenced his most persistent critics.

Mr. PANARETOFF was also something of a prophet. It is not known whether his Bulgarian colleagues at Berlin, London, Paris and Rome possessed this gift. At any rate, these chancelleries established diplomatic relations with Moscow, and Washington did not. At Washington they believed in the authenticity of the Bolshevist documents furnished by the Sofia Government, while elsewhere they did not. A year ago, as one of the speakers at the Williamstown Institute of Politics, Mr. PANARETOFF met the challenge of the Soviet, which was also an accusation. He demolished it and proceeded to show what actually took place in Bulgaria last April. Mr. PANARETOFF has accepted the chair of Near East History at the George Washington University and contemplates writing his memoirs. He should be able to produce a valuable contribution to biography and history.

AN UNECONOMIC INDUSTRY.

In his new book, "The Miners' Fight," President LEWIS of the United Mine Workers says that "uneconomic mines" must be closed. Secretary DAVIS holds the same view. The mining of soft coal as traditionally conducted is an anomaly. As it happens, the great Pittsburg Coal Company, whose mines are very far from being "uneconomic" in any proper sense, has of late closed fifty-four mines that have been running at a severe loss, throwing many thousands of men out of work; and most unionists see in the fact only an effort to force down the agreed scale of wages—which in some measure it doubtless is.

The basic fact is that there are too many mines and too many miners. Three years ago the surplusage of both was estimated roughly at 30 per cent. Now it is figured at 50 per cent. The difference is due in part to increasing efficiency in the mining and burning of coal, with increasing use of hydroelectric power. But for many years the soft-coal industry has been able to pay a profit only as the result of disorganization. At the annual peak of demand the supply of cars was not sufficient, so that prices could be raised almost at will, and speculation was rampant. The result of strikes was similar, and strikes have been chronic. In 1917 the union wage was fixed at $5 a day. Under the Jacksonville agreement of 1924 it was raised to $7.50, and the operators expected to continue making a profit. Even at the increased wage the miners for the most part remained poor, since the season of employment is brief. Yet the public was mulcted in the price of every ton of coal.

Time was when the United Mine Workers hoped to extend their organization through all the chief fields, fastening their grip on the industry—and the Jacksonville wage scale. The resulting lawlessness and bloodshed are a familiar story. The West Virginia mines command the market; and, with more continuous employment at the smaller daily wage, afford their miners a far larger annual earning. Of late there have been no strikes of moment—and no resulting profit to the operators of unionized mines. At the same time, thanks to the initiative of Secretary HOOVER, the supply of cars at the peak of demand has been more nearly adequate. Hence the present shutting down and unemployment.

Ultimately this industrial paradox, with its colossal waste and inefficiency, has been maintained by the Sherman Anti-Trust law. The conference of 1924 could not be assembled, and the "strike" price of coal reduced, until Secretary HOOVER brought word from the White House that operators attending it would not be prosecuted. What is needful today is a nation-wide agreement which will eliminate uneconomic mines, settle the burning question of unionization and insure to the public a steady supply of coal at an honestly economic price. It is a problem of administration as complicated as it is vital. The Federal Trade Commission, which should do for the mines what the Interstate Commerce Commission is doing for the railways, is laboring under a sadly defective statute, has been often wrong-headed and inefficient, and is now threatened with being abolished.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Paper's Size Is Not a Grievance.

Yesterday, owing to the fact that an unusual amount of news both important and diversified came in the course of human events, THE NEW YORK TIMES, in presenting it all, was obliged to print more than the ordinary number of columns filled with notably interesting "reading matter." This news came from many parts of the world. In its aggregate, it probably incited repetition of the charge that THE TIMES is too large—that it has too many pages—that to read it takes too long.

People who say things like that forget that a paper of large circulation necessarily must satisfy the demands and expectations of many large groups, not all of whom have the same interests. It is inevitable, therefore, that, included in its contents, will be more or less matter which does not appeal to them all. But why should the members of one group be irritated because, though they themselves find exactly what they want, they do not see the need of giving other groups, also, what they want.

Nobody is under any compulsion to read the whole paper, and probably nobody does read it all. That hardly could be done "conscientiously," without using up more hours than anybody can devote to the perusal of a daily paper. But surely it is not a grievance to be enabled to make a judicious selection from a varied feast of information.

These same complainants do not protest because on a hotel's bill of fare there are more viands than they could eat at a single meal. It is the same with the newspaper menu; when long, it is offered as an opportunity for selection according to tastes and needs.

The other complaint sometimes heard—that there are too many advertisements—is equally unfounded. It has been explained a thousand times that without the advertisements the collection of the news would be impossible unless a far higher price were charged for the paper than any reader would dream of paying. Besides, the advertisements themselves in many cases are, and in all cases ought to be, news.

His Vague Charges Are Resented.

There was justified complaint that the Aron reports on the quality of the milk sold in this city lacked one feature essential to giving them value. They charged that much milk was sold in all parts of the city that did not come up to, or barely reached, legal minimum requirements as to fats and solids, but in not a single case was any mention made of the source of this milk, and those who distributed it were not named. Action on the reports therefore was impossible, and they put a suspicion of following dishonest and dangerous practices on everybody engaged in this business.

That, of course, was utterly unfair, unless all of the milk distributers were equally guilty, and that fact should have been stated if fact it was. The members of the Dairymen's League already have come forward with protests against such wholesale and indefinite condemnation, and now the head of the big Borden Company, PATRICK D. FOX, indignantly declares that, while he cannot speak for the other distributers, he strongly denies that there has been any abstraction of cream from the milk sold by his corporation as "whole." He insists, too, that his company, instead of reducing its product to the permitted minimum, systematically and intentionally gives more.

That should compel other companies to make like statements if they can. It is unbelievable that Mr. ARON does not know who, if anybody, is selling here the milk he calls adulterated—a more nearly correct term would be "robbed"—and while he may say that it is the business and duty of the Health Department, not his, to bring offenders to justice, he is under an obvious obligation to lay any knowledge of wrongdoing that he possesses at the disposal of the authorities.

One Name for Two Maladies.

As "sleeping sickness" is a name which long since was fixed on a definite malady existing only in Africa, and caused only by the bite of a fly found only in that country, it is unfortunate that the same name should have been given to an entirely unlike malady which has appeared lately in the United States and several parts of Europe, notably in England. The doctors do have, indeed, the cumbrous and little informative appellation of encephalitis lethargica for the seeming sequel to influenza, while among themselves they call the African scourge trypanosomiasis, referring to the peculiar germ which the tsetse fly injects into the bodies of men and some animals in the territory it afflicts. Neither of these names, however, is for common use.

Before a remedy for it was discovered, the African disease terminated fatally in nearly every case, and it depopulated of their black inhabitants whole great areas. Some white men also have been victims of it, but, being more fully clothed and knowing the nature of the danger, they usually escaped.

What is called "sleeping sickness" here is as yet little understood as to the manner of infection, but though it is severe recoveries from it are numerous.

The Indians Suffered Everywhere.

It was with a good deal of excuse that R. MUNOZ-TEBAR, in the lively letter printed on this page yesterday, protested against a repetition of the old and widely held charge that the early Spanish discoverers and settlers were peculiarly cruel to the Indians. That they were cruel in many cases he did not deny, as of course no student of history could, but he resorted successfully enough to the ancient defense of "You're another."

Certainly the record of the colonists along the North Atlantic Coast for treatment of the Indians was not so much if any better, judged by its final results, than that of the conquistadores. The New Englanders and their kind did less actual slaughtering of the red men than did the Spaniards, but even of that they did not a little, and in one way or another they brought about a much closer approach to extermination than took place in Mexico and South America, where Indians still are sufficiently numerous to constitute a large part of the population.

But the Northern and Southern Indians were different, and the latter usually were more amenable to white discipline. In Cuba, where the natives refused to be slaves, as they mostly did in New England, they were all killed off mercilessly.

Of course, Mr. MUNOZ-TEBAR was right in saying that the Spaniards did more gold-hunting than the Puritans simply because there was none to hunt in the one case and a lot of it in the other. Gold was held equally desirable in both sections, then as now.

Menace From Truck Drivers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While motoring just outside one of the larger Westchester cities, I was ascending a hill. Suddenly from around a curve and coming in the opposite direction, a large motor truck came crazily careening down the incline.

Having driven for over ten years myself, professionally and otherwise, almost every conceivable type of vehicle, I consider my estimate of forty miles an hour as the speed at which the truck was coming to be fairly accurate. It was, of course, impossible for it successfully to negotiate the turn. Crashing into the cement guard fence, it skidded and headed diagonally across the road, squarely hitting a light sedan amidships. Jumping out of my car with a fellow-passenger, I anticipated dragging two dead men out of the badly smashed sedan. However, neither was severely injured, although one had to be taken to a hospital.

Within a few moments a member of that efficient body, the New York State Troopers, was on the scene. The driver of the truck, who was not injured in the least, attempted to lie his way out of the responsibility, but to no avail, as there were many witnesses of the accident.

At the request of the trooper, I used my car to take the driver and the remaining occupant of the car hit to court in one of the larger Westchester County cities, where charges were brought against the driver of the truck before a local magistrate.

Now comes what to my mind is the criminal laxity of the law. The driver, a young Italian, was constantly boasting that the arrest would do no good, as he had no money. He was driving for a man whom he professed to know only by his first name. A local garage man and myself checked the fact that his brakes were inadequate. His address in Long Island City could not, of course, be then verified. In other words, he was patently of the type of driver that, realizing his bodily safety in a heavy truck and his financial irresponsibility, daily endangers life and property on our highways. Yet the Judge paroled him for his appearance at a future date.

The trooper complained to me of the lack of cooperation, which was quite obvious. Candidly, had I known this would have happened, I think I would have exercised my more or less limited fistic knowledge in the hope of impressing that driver.

ROWLAND D. GOODMAN.
Larchmont, N. Y., June 16, 1925.

How to Water Central Park.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The greatest need of Central Park is a well-watered soil. As it is now, every means has been adopted to make the soil of our beautiful park so dry that trees, shrubbery &c., cannot obtain even normal moisture for growth.

The surface openings of the subsoil drainage system are everywhere in evidence along the asphalted roadways, walks and grass plots. The soil for all vegetation, wherever possible, should be a few inches below the roadways and walks; then the rainfall could reach directly the soil along all asphalted surfaces of the park.

The soil for the trees and other shrubbery should be a few inches lower than the asphalted roadways and paths, so that all the rainfall would be directed to the soil on either side. Canals and cisterns could be so located as to take care of excessive rainfalls. In a short time the earth around the cisterns or along the canals would absorb their contents, increasing the moisture of the surrounding soil.

What an evidence of ignorance and neglect to plant trees and utterly ignore means by which the soil around them should receive an abundant amount of moisture from the rainfall and other means during their existence!

WAKING.

The moon is an orange wafer
  Laid flat on a velvet sky;
The wind in the dark deodars
  Is a sigh.

I am come again—ah, wonder!
  To a well-remembered place . . .
This, this, is my garden, wearing
  The old grace.

It lies now—white in the moonlight,
  Scarfed by the yellow mist . . .
Like a pale, veiled woman waiting
  To be kissed.

They were dreams, then, dreams only,
  The long, intervening years,
And all the white Northern Winters,
  And my tears?

The scent of the jasmine, sleeping
  On the breast of the Southern night,
Is sweet as a whispered promise
  Of delight.

A mocking-bird in a pine tree
  Flings on the perfumed air
A melody more poignant
  Than the heart can bear.

My window looks on the garden,
  The garden looks on a gate . . .
Ah, what are gates to a lover?
  I wait, I wait.

A voice is calling, calling—
  I hear and I rise to go . . .
*What means this pale, cold moonlight
  On the snow?*

*How came I here by the casement,
  My hands on the window pane?*
Ah, Sleep, you have tricked me, tricked me!
I will sleep again!

EVOLUTION AND TENNESSEE:

Views on the Issues in the Approaching Trial—Court Not Likely to Rule on Truth or Falsity of Evolution.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Regarding the pending prosecution against John T. Scopes for violating a law of Tennessee prohibiting the teaching of the evolutionary theory, one would judge from the discussions and arguments appearing in the press that this case involved the issue of the correctness or falsity of the doctrine of evolution.

In fairness to the public and to the readers of newspapers, the precise issue which is raised and which will be decided by the Court should be explained, so that people will not go astray and believe that the doctrine of evolution is on trial.

The issue is fairly disclosed by the motion to quash the indictment, which raises the question of the right of the State Legislature to pass the act involved, on constitutional grounds. Whether the act is constitutional or not does not depend upon the correctness or falsity of the doctrine of evolution, but upon the power of the Legislature to enact statutes of this kind.

The Court will not inquire into the question of the wisdom of the legislation, as that is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Legislature, and will concern itself simply with the question of whether the Legislature has the constitutional right and power to prescribe what can and cannot be taught in the educational institutions of the State.

* * *

Should the Court decide that the Legislature has the right to pass such legislation the only question that remains is whether Scopes acted in contravention of the law, and if it is found that he did the Court will not permit him to question the wisdom of the act or the motives which prompted the Legislature in passing it.

All of the attacks and arguments made against the act simply involve the wisdom of its passage, from the standpoint of science and education. Casual reading of the act shows that it does not destroy freedom of thought or freedom of speech upon the subject of evolution, but that it prohibits the teaching of it to young students attending public institutions of education.

Since the doctrine of evolution is yet in the stage of considerable doubt, it is hardly fair that a teacher should take advantage of the immature and pliable minds of students attending public institutions of education, who are bound by reason of their youth and their respect for teaching generally to accept as the truth any doctrine or theory that may be taught to them. Our law recognizes the right of parents to teach their children or to have them taught by others any views, doctrines or subjects that they choose, and if they collectively decide that they do not wish their children taught certain things, their judgment must be respected by the law, provided, of course, that no constitutional law is thereby violated. It would seem that scientists and men like Scopes, who desire to prove and win adherents to the doctrine of evolution, should first undertake to convince people of mature age and judgment, who are equipped to analyze and test the proofs and arguments submitted in favor of the doctrine of evolution, rather than to play upon the susceptibility of inexperienced and unwitting youth.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As I organized two high schools near Dayton, Tenn., and introduced the study of biology, which I taught three years, besides delivering numerous lectures in churches and elsewhere, I believe I can make a good guess at what has happened in Tennessee to bring about such a controversy.

In all my experience there, I never heard of any one who thought science was in any way interfering with his religion. From close touch with all classes of religious people, I know they had so much confidence in their religion that they believed even "the gates of hell" could not prevail against it. They welcomed science because they believed Solomon when he said, "With all thy getting get understanding," and Paul's admonition, "Prove all things," and Christ's promise, "The truth shall make you free."

If they are now "scared of" the public school teachers, and fear for their religion, so that the courts must help them divide the sheep from the goats on Bible or biology, it is because some "wise guys" have "put it over on them" that their churches and preachers, Bible and religion, can be saved only by the politicians. It is easy to see who profits by this absurd political issue, with the usual motto to get while the getting is good.

The indictment of the Dayton teacher marks the end of a perfect day for the demagogues and gadfly exhorters, who thus display their wisdom in a show-window exhibition. Tennessee must excuse us "right now" if we believe all over the Union that their political issue is not a local or home-rule affair, but of vital importance to the problem of freedom and education in the United States.

New York, June 9, 1925.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An article in your editorial columns of June 11 stated that Professor Scopes was not the first person to be tried for attempting to teach Darwinism in a public school. It is also true that Darwin himself was not the first great exponent of evolution.

Twenty-four centuries before the birth of Darwin, the Greek philosopher Thales taught that all life originated in the sea and developed in accordance with natural law rather than the wills of the gods. In the eighteenth century, Goethe, Erasmus Darwin and Geoffroy St. Hilaire came quite independently to the one conclusion, that species were not permanent, and each offered some explanation of the process of change. Following them came Lamarck, a leader of the French anti-creationists, who published, between the years 1800 and 1815, a series of books whose great thesis was that every living thing, including man himself, was descended from some earlier, and in most cases simpler, living thing.

So far as we can tell, Lamarck did not go far to convince Charles Darwin that species were the product of natural forces, nor did he furnish much material for the young naturalist's study. Indeed, it seems probable that Darwin did not read Lamarck's books in the original French, for he had great difficulty with the language. This, perhaps, accounts for the slighting and even contemptuous references to the books which one may find in several of the letters.

Darwin was acquainted with the general conception of the evolution of life some years before he went upon the Beagle as naturalist. That he did not consider the idea as either probable or even suggestive of truth is shown by his own statement that while on the voyage he accepted the Bible literally and along with it the theory of special creation. * * *

It is plain that the most recent discussion of evolution is but a repetition of a squabble that has been going on for centuries. But it is nevertheless an up-to-date subject, and the trial of Professor Scopes should be an interesting one.

ALBERT J. FESSLER.
New York, June 12, 1925.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

* * * I know those Tennessee folks well enough to pass judgment upon their actions as well as their words. This Scopes evolution excitement, it seems to me, smacks considerably of "monkey business." I wonder if you have noticed that one of Mr. Scopes's very best friends was at the bottom of this and caused his arrest. It seems to me that this is a wonderful publicity affair for Mr. Scopes and his friend, Dr. George W. Rappleyea. The doctor not only has his very best friend arrested, he accompanies him to New York to confer with his lawyers. * * *

I do not believe that any sane man, except through prejudice, would say that he did not believe in organic evolution, but pray tell me, what has this to do with the origin of man? We should not confound origin with reproduction and growth. Evolution is unfolding and progress, not transmutation.

Most all of the evolution, so called, which I have read or heard discussed is based upon the teachings of Charles Darwin, who did not try to account for creation in his theory, and all his writings and investigations were based upon facts this side an organized existence—this side of creation. Darwin was a great and fearless naturalist, and if he lived today he would have cause for more slander suits against self-styled evolutionists than any man would have for any cause. I cannot but think that Darwin is deliberately misquoted by most of those who pretend to be his followers. * * *

Evolution is a fact, not a law, and it was a fact before the day of Darwin as much as it has been since his day, and he did not try to warp the fact of evolution into a law. Darwin recognized evolution as a fact governed by the law of nature, and he recognized the law of nature as the law of God.

Darwin recognized, and so admitted, that often he was on dangerous ground; he knew that you could not make a man out of a monkey, but he did know that you could make a monkey out of a man, so he grew careful; much more careful than some of those who claim to be his scientific followers.

I am pleased to style myself "a scientist." I flatter myself upon being somewhat a naturalist, having spent a number of years in field and forest studying the fact of evolution and the law of nature, and my conclusion is, and my chemical laboratory proves, that all things, both animate and inanimate, are governed by an unfailing law, which governs organic evolution with the same accuracy with which it governs the planets in their orbits around the suns. * * *

My countrymen down in Tennessee are great on publicity stuff, and they will do most anything within or without the law to get it. You cannot tell what their politics or religion is going to be tomorrow in many cases, for they change their religion and politics overnight, sometimes without any change of conviction. * * *

My father and two neighbors once were school directors. I heard one of the directors questioning a new professor on certain fundamentals preparatory to his entering upon his new duties. The director asked him what he taught as to the earth's form, and he replied:

"That depends upon 'wher' I am teaching; if my 'paterns' want me to teach the round system I teach that, and if they want me to teach the flat system I teach that." * * *

The fair-minded and genuine seeker after truth cannot find any warring doctrines between true organic evolution and the Bible. On the other hand, the Bible teaches organic evolution, and the Governor of the law of nature has made that teaching so clear that a man, though he be a fool, cannot err therein. * * *

The doctrine of evolution, as now taught by some, is not in harmony with the Bible. * * * It grieves me greatly to see two great questions so besmeared by the making of a mountain out of a molehill, and this is just what both sides are doing today.

EDWARD BRUCE BUTLER.
New York, June 15, 1925.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

* * * To exchange this vapor-like theory called evolution for the wonderful Gospel of Christ that gave America its liberty, England and Scotland their freedom and other nations even to the ends of the earth, the overflow of its blessings, would be like Esau selling his birthright for a mess of pottage or selling Manhattan Island for $24.

It seems that right cannot stand in this present world for any length of time. There was no room for Christ, none for His disciples; none for Lincoln and none for the righteous man.

But "let us not be weary in well doing: for in due time we shall reap if we faint not."

LAWS AND LANDLORDS.

Writer Finds Public Safeguards Nullified by Leases.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is hardly to be expected that any one will imagine the Real Estate License law was passed for the purpose of protecting the public from the real estate brokers of New York State.

Our lawmakers are not given to passing laws for the protection of the common public, but where business interests are concerned it is a different matter entirely.

Why is it that real estate owners and real estate agents, in the interest of owners, are permitted to incorporate in their printed leases submitted to tenants provisions compelling the tenant to "waive all rights under any and all laws" enacted for his or her protection?

Why did our lawmakers adopt Section 201 of Article XII of the General Business Laws?

Why was the third section of an act entitled "An Act to Abolish Distress for Rent and for Other Purposes" passed on May 13, 1846?

Are these provisions some of the "jokes" our lawmakers are said to play on the easy-going public?

If any landlord or his agent can by inserting a provision in a lease nullify laws passed by our lawmakers, of what use are such laws and how does the power of our lawmakers compare to that of the property owners and real estate brokers?

Disrespect for law is increasing daily, and therefore it is up to those having authority to make it impossible for the greedy to ignore the law and the rights of others.

ELISE REEVE IS WED TO JAMES H. MILLER

Ceremony Is Performed by the Rev. J. H. Mellish at Grace Church-on-the-Heights.

BROTHER GIVES BRIDE AWAY

The Marriage of Lucy L. Thom to Lieutenant G. B. McReynolds on June 13 Is Announced.

The marriage of Miss Elise Reeve, daughter of Mrs. Reeve and the late Edward Reeve of Brooklyn, to James Herbert Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Miller of Brooklyn, took place at Grace Church-on-the-Heights in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon. The Rev. John Howard Mellish performed the ceremony.

Henry Reeve gave his sister in marriage. Mrs. George Philip Capon of Boston was her sister's matron of honor and only attendant. Raymond Beeney was best man. The ushers were Nelson Skinner and Walter Lowrie, both of Canada. Following their wedding trip the couple will live in Brooklyn.

McReynolds—Thom.

The marriage has been announced of Miss Lucy Lewis Thom to Lieutenant George Brooke McReynolds, U. S. A., Field Artillery, which took place on June 13 at the home of the bride's grandfather, Benjamin H. Miller, near Sandy Spring, Md. Following their wedding trip, Lieutenant McReynolds and his bride will make their home at Cornwall-on-Hudson, near West Point, where Lieutenant McReynolds is stationed.

Kugel—Cowen.

Miss Sylvia Cowen of 240 West Sixty-ninth Street was married to Harry J. Kugel yesterday by the Rev. Dr. George Alexander Kohut at Mr. Kohut's home, Broadway and Eighty-sixth Street. The bride is a sister of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Gordon of 203 West Eighty-first Street. Mr. Kugel, who was graduated from Yale in 1910, is headmaster of the Kohut School for Boys at Harrison, N. Y., in which place they will make their home following a wedding trip.

MRS. MORGAN BETTER; TWO DOCTORS LEAVE

Two Others Stay at Bedside—Relatives Are Kept Away From the Patient.

The condition of Mrs. J. P. Morgan, wife of the banker, who was stricken by sleeping sickness last Sunday, continued to improve yesterday, according to bulletins issued through J. P. Morgan & Co. No announcement of her progress was made at the Morgan home, Matinecock Point, East Island, Glen Cove, and precautions to insure quiet on the island continued in force.

An encouraging sign at the estate, however, was the withdrawal yesterday of two of the four physicians who have been attending Mrs. Morgan. The first bulletin issued at the Morgan office reported the family much encouraged by the fact that "the alarming symptoms apparently are subsiding."

"The outlook is very encouraging, and Mrs. Morgan's condition continues to be very satisfactory," said the bulletin at 10:30 o'clock last night.

Owing to the highly infectious nature of sleeping sickness, concerning which medical science has as yet little definite information, the usual safeguards were taken at the Morgan home. Mr. Morgan, who was summoned home by wireless when he was cruising on the Corsair, and other members of the family were barred from the sick room.

The Corsair swung at anchor off the Morgan landing yesterday. It was the first time in years that the black-hulled vessel had not carried Mr. and Mrs. Morgan to witness the Harvard-Yale boat races. The annual rose show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, which opened on Thursday night on the Pratt estate at Glen Cove, lacked Mrs. Morgan's entries for the first time since the show was inaugurated.

Dr. Joseph B. Connelly, Health Officer of Glen Cove, received yesterday the official report of Mrs. Morgan's illness, giving sleeping sickness as the cause. Dr. Connelly also disclosed that physicians had definitely diagnosed the illness of Harold Perkins, 14 years old, son of H. W. Perkins of Forrest Avenue, Glen Cove, as sleeping sickness. The boy has been ill three weeks, but is virtually well now.

GEORGIE POTTS BETROTHED.

Member of Junior League to Wed George Dwight of Boston.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Georgie Fanshawe Potts, daughter of the late George H. Potts and Mrs. Potts of 105 East Sixty-third Street, to George Dwight of Boston. Miss Potts is the granddaughter of William S. Fanshawe of 136 East Sixty-seventh Street, with whom she is spending the Summer. She made her debut last Winter and is a member of the Junior League. She attended Miss Spence's School and is a graduate of St. Timothy's School in Catonsville, Md.

Mr. Dwight is a son of George Edmund Dwight of Boston, and the late Mrs. Dwight, who was Miss Shelley Holmes, daughter of John H. Holmes who at one time was owner and editor of the Boston Herald. He was graduated from Harvard in 1924. No date has been set for the wedding.

N. D. Potter, Sculptor, Gets Divorce.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 19 (AP).—Nathan Dumont Potter of Greenwich, a sculptor now at work on a statue of General Palmer, U. S. A., for unveiling in Colorado, today was granted a divorce from Marion Farnsworth Potter of Ayer, Mass., on grounds of desertion by Judge Newell Jennings in Superior Court. Mr. Potter is the son of the late Edward Clark Potter, the famous sculptor, who died in Greenwich in 1923.

Vanished on Eve of Graduation.

Frank Demby, 15, of 46 East Fifteenth Street, Bayonne, did not receive a diploma last night with the rest of the graduating class of St. Mary's Parochial School. With the arrangements for his graduation completed, Frank left his home Thursday and did not return. Last night his brother reported his absence to Police Headquarters and expressed the fear that the boy had been drowned while swimming near a coal dock.

MAY SAVE CHILD'S LIFE BY RARE OPERATION

Six-Year-Old Girl Better After Surgeons Open Sac Near Her Heart.

Dora Fischthal, 6 years old, of 467 Milford Street, Brooklyn, was expected early last night at the Long Island College to die before midnight, but now she may live as a result of an operation such as rarely has ben performed on a child.

Dora had been severely ill with pneumonia, which had been followed by an infection of the pericardium, a sac near the heart, the swelling of which was causing abnormal pressure against that organ. The ordinary operation, it was stated, demands cutting away two small sections of the two ribs protecting the heart and inserting a tube through an incision in the sac to draw off the poison.

But the child was too weak to permit such an operation or even to permit a general anaesthetic. The surgeons said the only chance to save her was by an incision in the breast near the heart, with only a local anesthetic.

Dora smiled, the surgeons reported later, while the local anesthetic was applied, the incision made and a tube on which was attached a slender lance pierced the pericardium. Only part of the poison was drained away, for it was considered dangerous to remove it all and relieve the pressure on the heart too suddenly.

"I feel better already," the child was quoted a few minutes later. "I can breathe easier now."

The operation is expected to be completed tomorrow, and she is expected to live, although, the surgeons said, sufferers in similar cases usually die.

LOST BABIES ARE FOUND.

Picked Up Mile From Home After 3-Hour Search—Gypsy Is Blamed.

Evelyn Schroy, two and one-half years old and May Kushel, a year younger, disappeared from in front of their home at 293-295 Eighth Avenue, Long Island City, yesterday and more than 500 school children, policemen and residents of the district started a search.

When the two mothers looked for their children, who had been playing on the sidewalk, and learned from a passerby that he had seen a dark gypsy-looking woman carrying two babies toward Steinway Avenue, they spread the alarm.

In a few moments the neighborhood was aroused. The school children just released from Public School 6 for the noon recess joined with men and women in the hunt. Police Sergeant Schroy of the Flushing Precinct, father of Evelyn, was notified and started out with a dozen Astoria policemen.

Three hours after the children had disappeared they were found sitting on the curb at Grand and Fifteenth Streets, nearly a mile from their home, a spot which the police said they could not have reached without the guidance of an older person.

It was believed that the woman who took them from in front of their home abandoned them when she became aware of the search.

GIVES $10,000 TO HOSPITAL.

Miss Elizabeth Curtis to Establish Memorial to Father and Brother.

Miss Elizabeth Curtis of Watertown, Conn., has given $10,000 to the new Presbyterian Hospital for two beds, in memory of her father, William Edmond Curtis, and her brother, William Edmond Curtis Jr., it was announced yesterday at the headquarters of the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Centre, 17 East Forty-second Street.

Both father and son were New York lawyers, both were graduated from Trinity College and each served as a vestryman of St. George's Church. The son, who died three years ago, was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under President Cleveland and was prominent for his activity in behalf of the gold standard. The elder Curtis was Chief Justice of the Superior Court of New York City and also President of the Board of Education. He died in 1880.

The Curtis contribution will be a part of the twelve-bed ward, which will memorialize the services of the Presbyterian Hospital unit in the World War. The unit was known officially as United States Base Hospital No. 2. Mrs. William Barclay Parsons, Dr. George Emerson Brewer and others are sponsoring this movement, for which $41,305 has been subscribed to date. One of the recent contributions came from Dr. Charles A. Kinch, a member of the class of 1873 of the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Tea for Miss Marion Yates.

Mrs. Stephen Yates gave a tea at her country home, Briarlee, at Setauket, L. I., yesterday for her daughter, Miss Marion Combes Yates, who has just been graduated from the Misses Masters' School. On July 1 Mrs. Yates will give a dance for her daughter at the St. George's Country Club.

SENATOR LADD IN HOSPITAL.

Stricken With Neuritis on His Way to North Dakota by Automobile.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—United States Senator Edwin Fremont Ladd of North Dakota, one of the members of the La Follette bloc barred from the regular Republican organization of the Senate after last fall's election, has been at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, for ten days, suffering from a painful attack of neuritis. The disease first appeared in the right wrist and hand and spread to his left knee, according to Donald E. McArthur, the Senator's secretary. He had a similar illness more than a year ago.

Mr. Ladd and members of his family recently started for North Dakota by motor. At Cleveland the Senator's condition caused him to turn back for treatment at Baltimore. It was said tonight that Senator Ladd's kidneys are slightly affected, but that he is recovering and if no complications ensue he probably will be able to leave for North Dakota early in July.

SMOKES DURING OPERATION.

Magistrate Glatzmayer, Treated for Hernia, Also Hears Radio.

While he smoked a cigar, chatted with hospital attendants, or listened to selections played by a jass orchestra over the radio, Magistrate August W. Glatzmayer of 3,309 Bainbridge Avnue, the Bronx, underwent an operation for strangulated hernia yesterday afternon in the Hunts Point Hospital.

The operation was performed by Dr. J. Lewis Amster of 1,882 Grand Concourse and lasted about an hour. A regional anesthetic was used. Physicians said that Magistrate Glatzmayer would be confined to the hospital for about two and one-half weeks.

PUP CAUSES GIRL'S FALL.

Startles Her and She Drops From Window—May Not Live.

"Jerry," a puppy, was sleeping peacefully last night on a fire escape outside a top floor window of the home of John Haggerty at 329 East Twenty-eighth Street, when Mrs. Haggerty suggested that her two children, Florence, 5 years old, and Tommy, 4, go to the street to meet their father on his way home from work.

"I want Jerry with me," said Florence.

She reached out of the window and as she awakened the pup it jumped up. Startled, the girl lost her balance and fell. A policeman picked her up in the courtyard. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said she might not live.

NEW FRENCH MONEY PLAN.

Special Note Issue Not to Appear in Bank Statement.

PARIS, June 19 (AP).—It was stated today that Finance Minister Caillaux expects to ask Parliament for authority for a special note issue of between 4,000,000,000 and 5,000,000,000 francs to meet national defense bonds due in July and September. The issue will not constitute "inflation," officials said.

It was stated that the proposed new issue to meet maturing bonds will be separate from the actual note circulation and guaranteed by a different security and that it will not be included in the weekly statements of the Bank of France.

2 WOMEN TO DRIVE TAXIS.

One Receiving Police License Is a Widow With 3 Children.

Two women received licenses from the Police Department yesterday to drive taxicabs. The police reported that they passed physical and mental tests "with flying colors." They were Mrs. Verbena King, 35 years old, a widow and mother of three children, of 2,117 Eighth Avenue, who is a native of England, and Miss Elizabeth Buffington, 30 years old, of Dauglaston, L. I. Each drove cabs, they said, two years ago.

"I have three children to support," said Mrs. King. "I can make more money driving a taxicab than I can any other way."

Dairymen's League Elects Officers.

The Board of Directors of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association at their New York offices yesterday reelected the following officers for the coming year: President, G. W. Slocum of Milton, Pa.; First Vice President, J. D. Miller, Susquehanna, Pa.; Second Vice President, John D. Smith, Walton, N. Y.; Secretary, J. A. Coulter, Belleville, N. Y., and Treasurer, Chester Young, Napanoch, N. Y.

ASSERTS MAFALDA WILL WED SHORTLY

The Rome Tribuna Reaffirms Betrothal of Princess to Prince Philip of Hesse.

HE IS EX-KAISER'S NEPHEW

Prince of Wales Said to Have Been Attentive to Bride-to-Be in London.

ROME, June 19 (AP).—The Tribuna today reaffirmed the announcement of the engagement of Princess Mafalda, second daughter of the Italian Majesties, to Prince Philip of Hesse, which was reported yesterday at a garden party given by the royal Princesses.

The newspaper says the marriage ceremony will be held at Racconigi late in August or early in September.

It is said the engagement was known in Berlin in April, but that Italian newspapers withheld the announcement until the Princess informed her friends yesterday.

BERLIN, June 19 (AP).—Prince Philip von Hesse, whose engagement to the Princess Mafalda of Italy has been announced from Rome, is a nephew of the former German Emperor, his mother being the Princess Margarete of Prussia, youngest sister of the former Kaiser.

Prince Philip, who is 29 years old, was a lieutenant in the Horse Guards Dragoons during the World War.

This betrothal is the first between former warring royal families since the war.

Another of the royal Princesses who have been mentioned from time to time as likely to be betrothed to the Prince of Wales has become engaged, says The Associated Press. Princess Mafalda, an attractive person of many social accomplishments, is 22 years old, seven years the junior of her reported fiancé. Prince Philip is a son of Prince Frederick Carl of Hesse.

Princess Mafalda's name was linked with that of the Prince of Wales when she visited London with her royal parents about a year ago. The British heir on that occasion accompanied her in public and was said to have been very attentive to her.

Late in 1923 Princess Mafalda was reported about to become engaged to Prince Leopold of Belgium, but later it was stated, though not confirmed, that her sister, Giovanni, was the one selected for the Belgian Crown Prince.

Prince Philip is said to have been in love with Mafalda for several years. His suit is declared to have been opposed by the Italian royal family on the ground of difference in religious beliefs. Special dispatches last month, however, said this opposition had been overcome through the good offices of Mafalda's elder sister, Yolanda, who for two years has been happily married to a Piedmontese noble, Count Carlo Calvi di Bergolo.

COUPLE NOW IN 33D SUIT.

Wife Charges Non-Support—Husband Says She Ousted Him.

Patrick J. Murphy, a postal employe, who told Justice Mitchell May in the Brooklyn Supreme Court yesterday that he had been sued thirty-two times by his wife, Mrs. Mary Murphy, for a separation decree and that all of these actions had been decided in his favor, was a defendant in another action by his wife on a charge of non-support. She asked for reasonable alimony and counsel fees. In an affidavit opposing what Murphy terms the "thirty-third" suit, he said:

"I am of a peaceful disposition and have never brought a complaint against Mary. This action is merely a step in a long series of proceedings brought against me by my wife, which began in 1913." Murphy's affidavit further sets forth that he and his wife were married in 1900, and that in 1909 his wife barred him from their home at 104 Dean Street, Brooklyn, which is his property.

"I arrived home and found my clothes hanging on a fence outside of the house," Murphy alleged in his affidavit. "When I rapped on the door, my wife met me with a grip, containing more of my personal belongings, which she handed to me, with a request not to return."

Murphy said he had since lived at a house across the street, opposite to his own property. He charges that his wife has gathered a pile of bricks, placed conveniently at the door of her home, which he believes she will use to repel him if he approaches the house. He also charges that his wife has collected the rents for the property, while at the same time she is asking him to account for the rentals. The Court reserved decision.

ASKS $50,000 FOR BURNS.

Girl Says She Was Scarred by Electrical Device in a Dispensary.

Miss Rose M. Neubert, 21, a stenographer, has brought suit for $50,000 against her former employers, the American Car and Foundry Company, 165 Broadway, for injuries she alleges she received when she went to the company's office dispensary for treatment last November. She charges that she was burned on the chest and scarred by an electrical device.

The device, says the complainant, was manufactured by the Electron Emanator Company of Berwick, Pa., which is controlled by the American Car and Foundry Company. She also charges that the defendant experimented with the device upon ill employes treated in its dispensary.

The defendant has filed an application for the removal of the case from Westchester County, where the suit was filed, to the Federal Court, Southern District of New York. At the offices of the American Car and Foundry Company it was said that although Miss Neubert claimed to have been injured and scarred last November, she had continued to work for the company without losing a day until recently, when she brought the action. Neither the company's nor Miss Neubert's counsel would discuss the case.

ART COLLECTORS IN SUIT.

One Charges Partner Owes Him $4,951 From Joint Sale.

A dispute between two art collectors over an alleged joint sale of their collections came before the Appellate Division yesterday in a suit by Dr. Alexander Scott against Hagop Kevorkian. The Court reversed a lower court order appointing Enos S. Booth receiver of the art objects in dispute, but continued an injunction restraining Kevorkian from disposing of the articles pending the suit.

Dr. Scott contended that he delivered an Indian sculptured figure, made of Mattra sandstone of the period of the Third Century B. C., to Kevorkian, and that the latter urged him to dispose of it for $6,000, by making misrepresentation as to its value, and then sold it to Dr. J. C. Burnett of Alpine, N. J., for $18,000. Kevorkian contends that Dr. Scott owes him $4,951.

Vienna Prepares for Zionist Congress

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 19.—The first press conference in connection with the Zionist World Congress, to be held here in mid-August, met today. Chief Rabbi Chajes of Vienna explained that the congress would discuss Palestine finances and relations with the Arabs, Great Britain, France, other powers, the League of Nations and the Vatican. In reference to the last, he said, Zionist Palestine did not pursue an anti-Catholic policy.

COMMISSION PONDERS DATA IN RAIL MERGER

Hears Chesapeake & Ohio Testimony on Sale of Securities After Consolidation by Van Sweringens.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP).—Pending decision over the scope of questions to be put to O. P. Van Sweringen, principal promoter of the Nickel Plate Railroad merger, the Interstate Commerce Commission proceeded with hearings on the question today to allow the introduction of data. Mr. Van Sweringen has been excused from the stand until June 24.

E. M. Thomas, general auditor of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, one of the merger companies, brought in exhibits today showing the banking deposits of that corporation in its various depositories during 1923 and 1924. Replying to H. W. Anderson, counsel for Chesapeake & Ohio minority stockholders who dissent to the merger scheme, in going over the figures, he said, that between 1923 and 1924, the earlier date being approximately that on which the Van Sweringen interests acquired the dominating control of the Chesapeake, that company had sold about $6,000,000 in Government securities it had formerly held in its treasury. The money was added to the corporation's bank balances in the Guardian Trust Company of Cleveland and J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York.

U. A. Colston, counsel for the Nickel Plate, objected to some of the inquiries and during argument Mr. Anderson indicated that he would attempt to show that the increase in bank resources from the sale of the securities had aided the Van Sweringen interests to proceed with their merger.

TO BAR SOME GERMAN GOODS

Poland Retaliates for Berlin's Embargo on Her Coal.

WARSAW, June 19 (AP).—The Political Committee of the Polish Cabinet has adopted a resolution that will result in an economic war with Germany, as the importation of various German goods will be prohibited.

The amount of German products to be kept out of the country will equal the Polish loss in trade resulting from the German embargo on coal after the League of Nations arrangement for the settlement the Silesian fields expired.

The period during which Polish and Silesian coal was exported to Germany free, under the agreement following the partition of Upper Silesia, expired on June 16. Poland sent 500,000 tons of coal a month to Germany. The German Government proposed to accept one-eighth of this amount after June 16 on the condition that the Polish Government would give political concessions to Germans in Poland.

Poland refused, and the Berlin authorities notified Warsaw that no more Polish coal would be accepted in Germany.

LEGION BARS HILL SPEECH.

Cancels Invitation to Congressman Because of Prohibition Views.

COLUMBUS, Neb., June 19 (AP).—Because of his expressed desire to speak against prohibition, Congressman John Philip Hill of Baltimore will not be accepted as the principal speaker at the annual convention of the American Legion, Department of Nebraska, it has been announced.

Congressman Edgar Howard of Nebraska invited Mr. Hill but when he wired back that he would be glad to speak "if I could talk against the Dawes plan to throttle the Senate and against attempts to do away with the old Constitution." Legion officials decided to withdraw the invitation despite protests of many legionnaries.

Mr. Hill is a holder of the Croix de Guerre with a silver star for bravery in the World War.

CONFER ON BELGIAN DEBT.

Foreign Minister and Envoy From Washington Have Discussion.

BRUSSELS, June 19 (AP).—The Belgian Ambassador to the United States, Baron de Cartier de Marchienne, was summoned by the Foreign Minister immediately upon his arrival here today for a discussion of the payment of Belgium's war debt to the United States.

In an interview the Belgian Ambassador said the United States desired conversations to start as soon as possible for a settlement of debts, "which has been postponed longer than is necessary."

"The time has come," he said, "to settle Belgium's debt to the United States with loyalty and dignity. Belgium is resolute in her determination to do this, and her attitude has produced the best effect in Washington as well as in financial circles in New York."

CRASH ON THE ELEVATED.

Two Cars Telescoped When Empty Train Runs Into Another.

Residents in tenements near Eighth Avenue and 137th Street became excited last night when an empty six-car elevated train which was being shifted onto the express track to be lined up with other empty trains in preparation for the morning rush hours crashed into the rear of another train standing on the track.

The noise of the crash was heard for several blocks. Some one sent in a call for fire apparatus. The crowd in the vicinity was so large and so noisy that police reserves were called and police lines established. The rear car of the forward train and the front car of the other train were telescoped, but no one was injured. A wrecking crew cleared away the débris.

STOKES IS LOSER AGAIN.

Widow of Lawyer Gets Award of $3,800 Counsel Fees.

Mrs. Hallie Louise Ellis, who, as executrix of the estate of her husband, Daniel B. Ellis, sued W. E. D. Stokes for $5,000 fees for legal services, won a verdict yesterday of $3,800 and interest since the Winter of 1919-20. It was proved that Mr. Ellis, as a partner in the law firm of Rogers, Ellis & Johnson, had appeared for Mr. Stokes in the litigation in Denver in which Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes succeeded in obtaining possession of her two children.

Mr. Stokes's defense was that instructions which he gave to his counsel had not been observed, the inference being that failure to follow his orders had resulted in the loss of the suit. The action was tried before Federal Judge Thacher and a jury.

SUBWAY RECORDS BURNED.

Fire in Transportation Board Offices Put Out by Employes.

Robert Ridgway, Chief Engineer of the Board of Transportation, led a force of engineers and clerks who extinguished a small fire in the Board's Contract Adjustment Department on the third floor of its offices at 49 Lafayette Street yesterday. The telephone operator turned in an alarm but employes put out the blaze before the arrival of the firemen.

The plans for Mayor Hylan's proposed new $542,000,000 subway system were not endangered as they were all on the seventh, eighth and ninth floors. The papers destroyed were said to be records relating to claims of subway contractors against the city for delay or loss of profits caused by conditions brought about by the World War.

Mgr. Byrne Bishop of Porto Rico.

ROME, June 19 (AP).—Pope Pius has appointed Mgr. Edwin Byrne, Vicar General of Jaro in the Philippines, to be Bishop of Ponce, Porto Rico.

DR. EDMUND JAMES DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Former President of the Illinois and Northwestern Universities.

KRUTTSCHNITT—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company held at the Company's offices, 55 Cedar St., New York, June 19, 1925, the following minutes were unanimously adopted:

The members of this Board have learned with profound sorrow of the sudden death on June 15, 1925, of one of its most able and distinguished members, Mr. Julius Kruttschnitt. During the period following his election to this Board in 1911, Mr. Kruttschnitt served the Company's interests with untiring zeal and devotion, his wise and helpful counsel having at all times been most highly prized by his associates.

His is an outstanding name in our country's great railroad industry—a name written large in an age of unparalleled achievements. His unflagging energy, his modesty, his lofty ideals and his fidelity to his chosen profession may well serve to inspire those who would win success and distinction.

The directors of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company herewith by resolution attest their deep appreciation of his worth as a man, his high standing in the business and financial world and his unselfish service to this Company.

In paying this tribute to our late director we extend heartfelt sympathy to the members of his family in their bereavement and direct that these minutes be incorporated in the records of the Company, and a copy be forwarded to the members of Mr. Kruttschnitt's family.

PLANES WITH BOMBS IN BIG 'FIGHT' TODAY

Aided by Tanks, Fleet Will Attack Miller Field, Defended by Anti-Aircraft Guns.

MANY THRILLS PROMISED

Parachute Leaps and Speed Contests Also on Program of the National Guard Meet.

One of the greatest aerial displays the city has ever witnessed will be made today by the National Guard, at Miller Field, New Dorp, Staten Island. About 100 airplanes and seaplanes will participate in the program lasting from 7 A. M. until 7 P. M.

Entrants in the seventeen events began arriving yesterday at the field. One of those to arrive was First Sergeant R. G. Fry of the Marine Corps, who flew from the marine base at Quantico, Va., at the rate of 160 miles an hour. The previous record for a 250 mile flight was an average of 147 miles an hour. Eight other planes from Quantico and from Bolling Field, Washington, followed Fry to the field. Fry left Quantico at 11:05 A. M. and reached Miller Field at 1:35 P. M.

One of the spectacular events on the program will be an aerial attack on Miller Field. The attacking force will be reinforced by whippet tanks, while the defenders will have anti-aircraft batteries. A smoke screen will be laid down to hinder the aim of the bombing planes. Both attackers and defenders will employ phosphorous bombs, thus increasing the realism of the "battle."

To give visitors to the free demonstration an additional thrill, the sham battle will be followed by a demonstration of attack in the air. Two one-man pursuit planes will assail a two-seated observation plane. During the attack the observer will leap from the rear cockpit of his plane and land with the aid of a parachute, to display this method of escape.

Rose to Defend Record.

Some of the greatest parachute jumpers in the country have entered in an effort to beat Sergeant Randle Rose's world record of a 1,500-foot drop before opening the parachute. This part of the program is especially dangerous, owing to the chance that the jumper may delay too long the opening of the parachute. Representing the regular army aviation post at Mitchel Field, Sergeant Rose will be on hand ready to better any other record that may be made.

Plans have been made to accommodate 100,000 spectators. Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Air Service; Major Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Army Air Service, and two other Major Generals, will be among the judges of the contests.

The navy dirigible Shenandoah will hover high above the planes during the afternoon. The marine base at Paris Island, S. C., notified Miller Field yesterday, that ten ships, twelve officers and twenty men were on their way to the meet. Major E. Lohman will head the detachment of planes from Philip Field, Aberdeen, Md., and will fly a huge Martin bomber, which will be used in the smoke screen tactics.

Twenty planes will enter from Mitchel Field in command of Major William N. Hensley. Selfridge Field at Detroit, will send a fleet of planes, and Lieutenant Barksdale will lead three planes from Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. Major Westover of Langley Field will be there with his squadron of five Martin bombers, and an equal number of DH planes will fly to the meet under command of Captain William Black. McCook Field will send a fleet of experimental planes. A score of commercial aviation corporations will have planes there.

Planes From Other States.

The air units of the National Guard of Connecticut and Maryland will send six and nine planes, respectively. In addition to Admiral Moffett and Major General Patrick, the honorary judges will be Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall, commanding the Second Corps area; Major Gen. Charles W. Berry, commanding the 27th Division, N. Y. N. G., and Brig. Gen. James E. Fechet, assistant chief of staff, Army Air Service. The field judges will be:

Colonel Theodore A. Baldwin Jr., U. S. A. Chief of Air Service, 2d Corps Area; Colonel Adolph Huguet, U. S. A., Senior Instructor, N. Y. N. G.; Major William N. Hensley Jr., U. S. A.; Major Eugene A. Lohnan, U. S. A., Commanding Officer Philips Fields, Aberdeen, Md.; Major Thomas C. Lanphier, U. S. A., Commanding Officer Selfridge Field; Major Henry B. Clagott, U. S. A., Commanding Officer Bolling Field; Major Henry J. F. Miller, U. S. A., Air Service Militia Bureau; Major E. G. McCormick, U. S. A., Commanding Officer Miller Field, New York; Major Kenneth P. Littauer, N. Y. N. G. Air Service, and Captain Howard E. Burick, U. S. R.

It was announced that special trains would be ready to carry visitors from the Staten Island ferry landing at St. George to New Dorp at ten-minute intervals during the day.

CADETS GET AIR TRAINING.

West Pointers Take First Distance Ride of Week's Aviation Course.

The first detachment of West Point cadets who are receiving one week's training in the principles of aviation at Mitchel Field, L. I., took their first distance airplane ride yesterday when they were taken up over the Hudson as far as the academy at West Point.

Every available ship at the air station was pressed into service and the eighty cadets made the trip in two divisions. Each was about two hours in the air.

Today a second detachment of eighty cadets will arrive at Mitchel Field to undergo a similar training period. Many of them will be flown over to the National Guard air meet at Miller Field, Staten Island, this afternoon by pilots who will participate in the meet.

SEEKS AIR PROGRESS DATA.

C. F. Redden Goes to Study Commercial Aviation in Europe.

C. F. Redden, President of Aeromarine Airways Corporation, sails today on the Duilio to invite European aircraft manufacturers to participate in the international airplane races to be held here in October. He plans to make an intensive study of European progress in commercial aviation, seeking features of benefit to American development.

Mr. Redden will visit France, Italy, Germany, Holland, Russia, Belgium and England. He plans to fly to Moscow by way of Constantinople and will go to Berlin, Amsterdam, Paris and London by way of the air lines between those points. The Aeromarine Airways Corporation, he said, operates eleven enclosed cabin flying boats between Key West and Havana; Miami and Nassau, and Detroit and Cleveland, and has carried more than 31,000 passengers over 1,000,000 passenger miles. He attributed European commercial air success to Government subsidy.

Small Fire Halts Times Sq. Traffic.

Passersby in the northern end of Times Square stopped yesterday afternoon to watch a small fire that started soon after 4 o'clock atop the glass awning of the Monte Carlo, 209 West Fifty-first Street, just off Broadway. Several patrolmen from the West Forty-seventh Street Station were needed to disperse the crowd that gathered, while vehicular traffic along Broadway and in the northern end of the square was halted for ten minutes. When firemen arrived the blaze had been extinguished. It was believed that a cigarette started the fire.

NEW NIGHT AIR MAIL TO CHICAGO IS READY

46 Landing Fields and 110 Beacon Lights on the Route for Service July 1.

PILOTS PRACTICE TONIGHT

Entire Business Day to Be Saved by Only Regular Post of Its Kind in the World.

Final details of the night mail flying service between New York and Chicago, which will be inaugurated July 1, were announced here yesterday by Colonel Paul Henderson, Second Postmaster General, and Colonel J. E. Whitbeck, Superintendent of the Eastern Division, Air Mail Service, who had charge of laying out the new air route. It will be the only regular night flying service in the world.

The planes, which will fly every night except Saturday and Sunday, will enable letters reaching the New York Postoffice before 8 P. M. to be delivered in the postoffice in Chicago at 6:45 the next morning, thus saving an entire business day as compared to transit by rail. On the eastward trip, mail will leave the Chicago Postoffice at 7:30 P. M., arriving at the postoffice here at 7:30 the next morning.

From New York City to Hadley Field, near New Brunswick, N. J., the eastern terminus of the night flying, the mails will be transported by rail. Terminal fields are located at Bellefonte, Pa., Cleveland, Bryan and Maywood, Ill., about twelve miles west of Chicago. The route is 784 miles long, and the equipment of the fields has cost thus far about $500,000.

Mr. Whitbeck said the experimental flights, which have been going on for the last fortnight, had demonstrated that the planes could maintain their schedule 90 per cent. of the time. Twenty-four remodeled De Haviland planes are available for the work. Usually, one plane will fly from Hadley Field to Cleveland, where the mail will be transferred to a second plane, which will continue the flight to Chicago. The eastbound mail also will change planes at Cleveland.

Forty-six landing fields have been laid out between the two cities at an average distance of fifteen miles. The minimum distance is five and a half miles in the Alleghany Mountain region and the maximum eighteen miles in open, level country to the westward. Besides these landing fields, all of which measure about forty acres, there are 110 beacon lights, so it is believed the pilots will be in little danger of losing their way, even in the stormiest nights. The planes have a cruising speed of 100 miles an hour and a maximum speed of 125 miles.

The new route to Chicago differs from the one hitherto used by the transcontinental mail service. From New York to Cleveland it follows almost an air line of 410 miles, about 150 miles shorter, Mr. Whitbeck said, than the shortest railroad line.

Mr. Whitbeck has been laying out the route since last Winter and has driven over 30,000 miles by motor car and traveled 800 more, either on foot or in horse-drawn vehicles. He said that before the present route was decided upon, surveys were made for others, one through Harrisburg, Pa., and the other through Albany, Rochester and Buffalo.

The wind is expected to be such a great aid on the flight eastward from Chicago that the lapsed time is figured at 6 hours and 30 minutes, as against 9 hours and 15 minutes on the westbound flight.

MRS. JONES ON TRIAL AS KIDNAPPER OF BOY

Was Arrested Last March When Raimonde Von Maluski Vanished—Father Told of Threats.

Mrs. Harold Jones was placed on trial in Judge Collins's part of General Sessions yesterday for the kidnapping of the still missing 3-year-old Raimonde Von Maluski Jr. from in front of his home at 600 West 178th Street last March, but when a jury had been selected the trial was adjourned until next Monday morning. Mrs. Jones, who is 41 years old, and formerly lived at 61 Third Avenue, was arrested the day following the disappearance of the boy, after Raimonde's father, superintendent of the apartment house in the basement of which he lived, had reported threats made by the woman.

Anna Logan, 10 years old, of 280 Wadsworth Avenue will be the principal witness against the woman at the trial. Anna identified Mrs. Jones, who is an Austrian, as the woman who, on the night of little Raimonde's disappearance, followed the boy in a taxicab as Raimonde with other children was walking on the sidewalk. Another important witness for the State is William D. McMahon, taxicab chauffeur, who said he drove a woman resembling Mrs. Jones and a boy of Raimonde's description to Jerome Avenue and 164th Street on the evening of the boy's disappearance, from a point a short distance from the Von Maluski home.

GIANT MOTH FIGHTS CAPTORS IN AN OFFICE

Grips Man's Fingers With Powerful Antennae—Rare Specimen, Says Scientist.

A moth of unusual size and brilliant hue flew into a thirteen-story window of the Telephone Building at 24 Walker Street late last night and was captured by R. H. Allegar, assistant wire chief of the Western Union Telegraph Company. It fought vigorously against capture, gripping Allegar's fingers with its long, powerful antennae.

The wings spread out measured six and one-half inches from tip to tip and were strikingly colored. On each wing was a half-inch rainbow border, in which brilliant red predominated, shaded down to a white, tinted in clay brown. Four red crescents shading into white adorned each wing, and the body appeared under the electric light to be striped in red, white and black.

"The body stripes," Allegar said, "are the most striking feature. The body is about two inches long and there are five series of these tripes."

When the moth was described over the telephone to Herbert F. Schwarz, M. A., Research Associate in Hymenoptera in the Department of Entomology at the American Museum of Natural History, he said that it was probably an exceedingly large specimen of the Samia Cecropia.

"The Cecropia family are not rare in North America," Mr. Schwarz said, "but I never heard of one flying so high before. They are great long-distance travelers however and Fabre, the French scientist, carried out some of his most interesting experiments with them by imprisoning the female of the species, attracting males from a distance. While the Samia Cecropia is not rare today they are becoming fewer."

Freed on Promise to Be Honest.

On a promise to be honest and the assurance of his family that restitution would be made, Magistrate Max S. Levine in West Side Court yesterday dismissed a grand larceny charge against Anthony Noto, 17 years old, of 3,328 Barker Avenue, the Bronx. The youth admitted on Thursday when arraigned that he had taken $2,296 in bank deposits from his employers, the Warren Nash Company of Broadway and Fifty-sixth Street, on June 11. About $1,200 was found when Noto was arrested on Wednesday in Pittsfield, Mass.

Frocks Which Are NOW in the "Who's Who" of Fashion

Misses' FROCKS of the Hour!

CUSTOMARY PRICE—$25 TO $45

Not just frocks—the market is overcrowded with them! But frocks which have been painstakingly assembled so that this sale would present all that is NEW and BEST in Summer Fashions. As a matter of fact, the majority of them have been made to our order—in surplus materials, of course, or it would be impossible to offer them at these prices. But it is obvious that we have chosen only the endorsed materials and designs of the hour.

Many, many models! The sketches give but a glimpse of them. Every type from simple frocks for all hours of the day in town or country; afternoon at the country club or seaside casino; dinner or dance on the roof or the clubhouse.

COLORS! A PALETTE OF THEM—from delicate rose chair to gorgeous printed leaves of Autumn—from serene periwinkle to the smart practicality of navy blue—a veritable medley of flower shades.

At $16.75

Exquisite Cotton & Linen Frocks

From the tailored mode in linen to voiles that rival Georgette crepe.

Imported voiles, beautifully lightened by narrow pleated ruffles of dyed lace. Voiles in a simpler mood, with demure tucks and hand-drawn work. Plaid ratines with jabots of finely pleated batiste.

Plain and plaid linens whose tailored lines are smartly accented by broad tucks and Irish lace. Fine batiste with an all-over design in colored applique.

At $25

Silk Frocks—Printed & Plain

Georgette crepe, chiffon, crepe de chine and polka dotted foulard.

Periwinkle blue Georgette crepe over peche for dancing. Black Georgette crepe and lace over pink for dinner in town. Gayly printed crepe chiffons, one and two-piece models, for afternoon uses. Polka dotted foulard or plain crepes de chine in pastel or dark shades—correct for the street.

Extra! PURPLE

In response to the very latest dictates of Paris, we have had six of the models in this sale made in the new and popular shade of purple—in

200 TESTS CONFIRM RESULT

Independent Analysis Proved Recovery to Be Actual Gold, Dr. Nagaoka Says.

PRACTICAL VALUE UNCERTAIN

Sees Possibility of Obtaining Silver by Further Transmutation Process.

Bits of porcelain containing microscopic specks of gold that once was mercury were presented to Dr. George F. Kunz yesterday by Dr. H. Nagaoka of Tokio, the "Japanese Einstein," who is accredited with having succeeded in producing artificial gold by disintegrating atoms of quicksilver in an electrical field of several million volts per centimeters.

The Japanese scientist, who sailed at 1 o'clock this morning on the Olympic for Europe to attend the International Research Congress at Brussels, brought with him a number of gold-specked fragments from the porcelain flasks in which the mercury was treated. In more than 200 experiments the change from mercury to gold has been confirmed, he declared.

Dr. Nagaoka said that he was engaged in trying to accelerate the radioactivity of uranium and to speed up its decay into radium. This experiment failed because the radio-active substances set up electrical effects of their own which protected them against the intense electrical action that Dr. Nagaoka sought to bring to bear against them. In this investigation, however, he found a way to concentrate intense electrical activity in a very small field. It occurred to him that his artificial electrical storm might be severe enough to wreck atoms and change their nature. With this in view he experimented on the mercury and obtained gold.

"We have also obtained from the quicksilver a white metal which we have not been able to identify," he said. "We can prove that it is not platinum, but can't tell what it is. It occurs in such small quantities that it defies ordinary methods of analysis. The mercury may be changed into still other substances, but we haven't any further evidence on it. It appears, however, that the changes which are forced on the atom are somewhat complex."

Doubts Berlin Reports.

Dr. Nagaoka said that he was skeptical about the reports that Dr. A. Miethe of Berlin had obtained gold from quicksilver. He said that the amount of electricity used by Dr. Miethe was not sufficient to break down the mercury atom into gold, and that he suspected the gold to be a contamination.

"It might have come from the quicksilver, it might have come from the silica glass used in the experiment, or it might have come from the carbon electrode," he said. "I do not believe it was the result of any changes in atoms."

Dr. Nagaoka also expressed doubt that Rutherford had succeeded in effecting "transmutation" or the disintegration of atoms by bombarding them with alpha particles. He said there was no way of confirming by chemical analysis or otherwise the supposed changes in atoms resulting from the bombardment by the alpha particles given off by radium.

On his visit yesterday to the American Museum of Natural History, Dr. Nagaoka described his own work as follows:

"In the course of my experiments, the fine structure of the mercury spectrum lines seemed to me to have some connection with the instability of the nucleus in the mercury atom. That was the point of origin of this particular line of work.

"To obtain an insight into the core of the atom it was necessary to have an extraordinarily intense electrical field to shake off the surrounding electrons and to get into the heart of the atom. That seemed impossible at first. But in experimenting on the Stark effect in metals I obtained an unexpected result. I found that in the neighborhood of the positive electrode there is an intense electrical field. There is a very thin layer in which the applied voltage is magnified 1,400 times.

"With the power to intensify an electrical field in such a way, it seemed probable that even if we could not strip off all the electrons, we could at any rate cause a great commotion in the core of an atom, and that was the result.

Achieved Unexpected Results.

"I started on the experiment with Mr. Sugiura, formerly my assistant, with a big induction coil which gave a spark of 120 centimeters length in the air. The experiment was not done in the air. The medium in which it was done is at present a secret.

"After applying the electrical discharge to mercury for about four hours on Sept. 14 of last year we tested chemically for gold by what is called the Cassius purple test. The result was decidely positive. This was rather unexpected.

"The next day we started afresh. This time I didn't test the result, but turned it over to a chemist not connected with our institution and let him examine it carefully. He found specks of gold in the mercury residue."

The idea that the gold had existed as an impurity in the mercury or in other materials used in the experiment naturally suggested itself. The experiments were then repeated after triple distillation of the mercury and tests of all other materials which precluded the possibility of contamination.

The fact of the existence of the gold after the mercury had been subjected to the intense electrical action was confirmed by physical as well as chemical tests and also by the microscope and naked eye. The mercury was made to deposit gold on glass. The glass was then heated to about 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit and found to be typical ruby glass. Light in passing through it became rosy red and bluish green, according to the thickness of the glass, just as it does in passing through ordinary ruby glass, which is glass mixed with a small proportion of gold.

Commercial Value Uncertain.

Dr. Nagaoka said he thought the white metal later detected might be tin. He thought other changes of atoms might be produced by his process.

"Perhaps tin may be changed into cadmium and cadmium into silver," he said.

The total amount of gold produced by Dr. Nagaoka's laboratory so far has a market value of a fraction of a cent.

Dr. Nagaoka said he did not know whether the process could be applied economically on a large scale.

The bits of artificial gold which Dr. Nagaoka presented to Dr. George F. Kunz, the mineralogist and gem expert, will become part of a collection called "The Alphabet of the Universe," which Dr. Kunz is forming to present to the American Museum of Natural History. This will contain specimens of every known element and is called the "Alphabet" because everything in the earth and everything in all the stars, so far as is known, is made of them.

Police Buying Shoes by Mail, Atlantic City Dealers Complain

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 19.—Mail order houses cleverly advertising specially thick-soled and otherwise easy shoes are corraling the trade of half of the policemen in this and other cities is the plaint of members of the Atlantic City Shoe Retailers' Association, allied with the National Shoe Dealers' organization.

The shoe men at a conference meeting here advocated some sort of campaign to persuade the men on municipal payrolls to buy their shoes from home merchants, adding that retail dealers are forced to carry so many styles of shoes as to seriously increase overhead and lower net profits. City officials are to be enlisted in the plan to have the policemen and other city employes buy at home.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN CONFER WITH SMITH

Hear an Explanation of His Proposals for Constitutional Amendments in the Fall.

WILL CAMPAIGN FOR THEM

Bonds and Consolidation of Departments, Issues in November, Are Discussed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 19.—For more than three hours this afternoon Governor Smith conferred with Democratic women from all sections of the State, formulating a program for a State-wide campaign to support three of the Governor's proposals which will be voted upon at the November election as constitutional amendments.

The proposals which go before the people are a $100,000,000 bond issue for permanent State improvements which include a new office building for New York City, a $300,000,000 bond issue to be used for grade-crossing elimination, and in consolidation of 119 State departments into 21 departments.

After the conference the Governor said, "we have constituted what might be called a speakers' bureau of democratic women who will carry to the women of the State the truth about these proposals." He added that he had gone into details for the women as to what was sought to be accomplished by the various projects.

"They are now armed with all the arguments in favor of these three amendments," the Governor said.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of Hyde Park, Mrs. Easpar Whitney of the League of Women Voters, Miss Harriet May Mills of Syracuse, Mrs. Gordon Norrie of Dutchess County, and Miss Nancy Cook of Dutchess were among the prominent women who came to Albany for the conference. They will arrange meetings in various parts of the State during the campaign and will spread the information they obtained today.

Others who attended were:

Mrs. Richard Billings of New York City, Mrs. William G. Willcox of Staten Island, Mrs. N. Taylor Phillips of New York City, Mrs. Dorothea Courlon of Richmond, Mrs. Joseph Adams of Suffolk, Miss Virginia Ott of Sayville, L. I., and Miss Annie Mathews, Miss Laura Coble, Miss Dorothy Straus, Miss Dorothea Juligig and Miss Anna Naughton, all of New York City.

Miss Grace Reavy of Cohoes and Mrs. William Gorham Rice, Mrs. John Gallagher, Miss Frances Lyon, Mrs. John F. Murphy, Mrs. Frederick Stuart Greene, Mrs. Elizabeth Colbert and Mrs. John Craigin, all of Albany.

Miss Effie Burns, Mrs. George B. L. Moore, Mrs. Robert C. Turner and Mrs. Joseph Conroy, all of Buffalo, and Mrs. Philip Clancy, Niagara Falls; Mrs. Grosvenor Allen of Oneida, Mrs. George Mills of Oneida, Miss Louise Farrell of Oswego, Miss Elizabeth Babcock of Watertown, Mrs. B. F. Lent of Ithaca.

Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr. of Dutchess, Mrs. Robert Searing of Ulster, Mrs. Robert D. Livington of Columbia, Mrs. Robert D. Livingston Jr. of Columbia, Miss Kathleen Horner of Schuyler, Mrs. Ida Davis Roberts of Delaware, Mrs. Mary E. Gainer of Washington, Mrs. Cecilia D. Patton of Saratoga, Miss Marion Dickerman of Dutchess, Mrs. Vanderbilt Webb of Putnam, Miss Florence Ketchum of Orange, Mrs. Robert Nicoll of Chemung, Mrs. John Campbell of Herkimer, Miss Mary Butler of Plansburg.

Miss Nancy Schoonmaker of Glens Falls, Miss Geneva Frye of Gloversville, Miss Margaret Mack of Dutchess, Mrs. Daisy Sinook Borst of Amsterdam, Ruth A. Stevenson of Putnam, Mrs. Stanley Schaffer of Schoharie, Mrs. Lewis Robbee of Schoharie, Mrs. John Conner of Columbia, Miss Laura Conner of Columbia, Miss Marie Hester of Columbia, Mrs. William Aurich of Montgomery, Mrs. E. J. Finough of Amsterdam, Miss Anna Naughton of Amsterdam, Mrs. Florence E. Smith of Amsterdam, Mrs. M. T. Ryan of Troy, Mrs. Martha Guilfoyle of Rensselaer, Miss Ruth Hall of Catskill, Mrs. William T. Hyde of Otsego, and Mrs. L. H. Clark, Otsego.

INDICT MINISTER IN KILLING.

The Rev. A. H. Budd's Auto Crushed Man Against Wall.

The Grand Jury yesterday returned an indictment for manslaughter in the second degree against the Rev. Alfred W. Budd, pastor of a Congregational church at Derby, Conn., for causing the death of a man when he lost control of his automobile at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street on the evening of Oct. 24. The clergyman, who was released on bail following his arraignment in the Homicide Court a few days after the accident, probably will be called for pleading before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions next Tuesday.

Mr. Budd was on his way to the Boy Scout ceremony at the grave of Theodore Roosevelt in Oyster Bay when the accident occurred. The car swerved into the sidewalk and crushed Max Felgelman of 775 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, against the wall of a building.

HOLD BROKER FOR THEFT.

Importer Charges $25,000 Deposit for Bond Deal Was Pocketed.

Hamilton A. Gill, 28 years old, of 346 East Fifth Street, Brooklyn, formerly in the brokerage business at 7 Wall Street, was lodged in the Tombs yesterday in default of $5,000 bail on an indictment charging theft of $25,000 in securities. When he was arraigned in General Sessions, Assistant District Attorney Geraty told the Court that E. Edward Mueser, an importer, of 30 Church Street, was the complainant in the case.

Mr. Geraty said that the importer alleged that in July, 1923, Gill approached him with a plan to buy $1,575,000 worth of bonds and he gave the defendant $25,000 in negotiable securities as a deposit with other bonds for the deal. The prosecutor said that Mueser swore that Gill had sold the importer's securities and pocketed the money. Gill pleaded not guilty.

8 GET PRISON TERMS FOR TRADING FRAUDS

Five Ordered Goods on Name of Newmarket Co. and Speedily Sold Them Below Cost.

OPERATED IN MANY STATES

Three Others Sentenced for Concealing Assets of Aldo Shirt Co.—Five More on Trial.

The work of the Commercial Frauds Bureau, established by United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner last March to prosecute promptly those who prey upon merchants, resulted yesterday in prison sentences for eight defendants. Four others are to be sentenced Monday and five more are on trial.

Five of the eight sentenced yesterday were convicted on Wednesday of using the mails to defraud and for violating the Interstate Commerce law in connection with the operation of the Newmarket Trading Company, Inc. Federal Judge John C. Knox sentenced Jacob Lerner, President of the concern, to four years' imprisonment in the Atlanta Penitentiary. Isidor Horowitz, Lerner's brother-in-law, was sentenced to the same prison for eighteen months, while Alfred Moscow, alias Mr. Harris, and Joseph Greenberg, alias Joseph Green, alias Mr. Fine, were each sentenced to the Essex County (N. J.) Penitentiary for one year. Walter Fox, alias Walter Brown, was sentenced to the Westchester County Penitentiary for eight months.

Another count, charging the defendants with having sent through the mails a false statement of the company's assets, carried no prison sentence, but the Court directed the defendants to report once a month for five years to a probation officer after the expiration of their prison terms so that it could be learned whether the defendants were behaving properly. Four other defendants, Max Yucht and Samuel Shapiro, who were also convicted, and Morris Rachmil and Irving Silverman, who pleaded guilty and assisted the Government in the prosecution, will be sentenced on Monday.

Operated Throughout the Country.

Evidence during the trial disclosed that the defendants had obtained control of the Newmarket Trading Company, Inc., which had had a good reputation, and had used it to defraud merchants throughout the country of merchandise valued at many thousands of dollars. It was the purpose of the defendants, the prosecution showed, to use the good character built up by the former owners of the Newmarket Company to order large quantities of all sorts of goods and sell them speedily at less than cost. This was accomplished by establishing in various States subsidiary companies and then having these smaller concerns pass into bankruptcy.

After Postal Inspectors Allen and Boyle had begun an investigation into the matter Frederick R. A. Stiefel, the receiver of the Newmarket concern, discovered that large shipments of goods were on their way to the office of the company in this city and that orders for large quantities of additional goods had been placed. It was shown that the group operated in this State, California, New Jersey, Ohio, Michigan, Delaware, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Illinois and elsewhere.

In sentencing the defendants Judge Knox said that it had been shown that Lerner had amassed a large fortune by lending money at usurious rates of interest to persons in dire need and that Horowitz had a reputation for philanthropy. These conflicting traits explained the difference in the sentences of the two men. While the sentences were said to be heavy, Judg Knox explained: "I sometimes think I am entirely too soft-hearted to be a Judge, because a Judge is very frequently confronted with a situation where he has got to harden himself."

Three Others Sentenced.

Later in the day Judge Knox sentenced Aaron Davis and Nathan Lachoff to six months each in the Essex County (N. J.) Penitentiary and Samuel Rabinowotz to three months, after they had pleaded guilty to concealing assets from a trustee in bankruptcy. The three operated the Aldo Shirt Company at 593 Broadway, and were petitioned into bankruptcy in December, 1923. Liabilities were said to amount to $70,000 and assets to less than $8,000. The bankruptcy proceedings were instituted about five months after the defendants had issued a statement to the effect that they had assets amounting to $95,000.

The three were arrested in Brooklyn and sent to the Raymond Street Jail last January for failing to obey an order directing them to turn over $12,000 in their possession. They came from the jail to court, and after they were sentenced they were returned to the jail to await final action on the contempt charge. They will begin to serve their prison sentences after the contempt charge is taken up.

MYSTERY CLOAKS VIEW OF M'COOEY ON HYLAN

Says Question of Candidacy Is 'Unchanged,' but Doesn't Tell What It Was Before.

The question as to who will be the standard bearer of the Democratic Party in the race for the Mayoralty this Fall is still "unchanged" in the mind of John H. McCooey, leader of Kings County.

"I still stand just exactly where I stood before the conference with Governor Smith. My position is unchanged. I cannot make it any plainer than that." This was the reply of Mr. McCooey when he was asked yesterday concerning the statement of Mayor John F. Hylan that he would surely be a candidate for re-election and reports which quoted Mr. McCooey as saying that he would stand by Mayor Hylan "until the boat sinks."

The reply of the Brooklyn political chieftain was interpreted in various ways by Brooklyn politicians, but as Mr. McCooey had made no emphatic explanation as to where he stood before the conference with Governor Smith the reasoning of various politicians was based mainly on personal beliefs and hopes.

Despite the uncertainty as to where Mr. McCooey stands on the question of a candidate for the office of Mayor there was no uncertainty as to the amount of activity displayed about his office. All day there was a stream of visitors to his sanctum. The visitors were mainly leaders of Assembly districts in the borough and women coleaders. There were also a number of men prominent in the life of the party who are not district leaders.

A report spread about that the visitors had been called to the office so that Mr. McCooey could get an expression of opinion from the rank and file of the organization as to the reported feeling or lack of feeling on their part as to the advisability of again naming the Mayor to head the Democratic ticket.

"All bunk. All bunk," replied Mr. McCooey when asked about this phase of the situation. "This is just the regular meeting day."

Brophy Sets New Traps to Nab Firebugs; Motor Patrols Watch Suspected Areas

Alarmed by the rapidly increasing number of fires of suspicious origin in the past six weeks, Fire Marshall Thomas Brophy, it was learned yesterday, has taken drastic measures to combat the situation and capture incendiaries.

A majority of the suspicious fires have been in buildings in the district between Canal Street and Fifty-ninth Street from river to river, comprising the First and Second Battalion districts. The Fire Marshal has ordered a deputy marshal to ride to every fire with the Battalion Chief of each of these districts, so as to be on hand for an immediate investigation.

Another step taken was the establishment of a motor patrol system. Deputy fire marshals and detectives have been riding through the streets, keeping watch in suspected sections. The patrols have been keeping in touch with Fire Headquarters so as to be able to hurry to a fire as soon as one is reported.

While the suspicious fires have not been entirely confined to the lower part of Manhattan, the indications of incendiarism have been more noticeable there. In many instances firemen have arrived at a burning building to discover that the flames started in two places. Flames have originated in hallways and vacant rooms in tenements, and many fires have started in baby carriages parked under stairways, favorite places for the incendiaries to kindle flames.

While the loss of life has not been great there have been many narrow escapes for tenement dwellers and factory workers.

MOTHER DIES TRYING TO SAVE HER BABIES

Killed by Trolley as She Attempts to Get Three Children From B. M. T. Tracks.

SHE HURLS ONE TO SAFETY

Others Are Hurt, One Seriously, as She Is Struck Down—Had Warned Them to Keep Off Rails.

Mrs. Lena Tartar, 46 years old, of 9,731 Avenue L, East New York, was killed last night by a trolley car at Avenue M and the B. M. T. tracks, a short distance from her home, while attempting to save the lives of three of her eight children.

Two of the children were injured, one seriously. The third was hurled from the car's path by Mrs. Tartar just before she was run down.

Late yesterday afternoon, following a day of shopping, Mrs. Tartar took three of her children, Isadore, 8 years old; Hyman, 6, and Tessie, 4, for a walk along the shore front at Canarsie. She complained of fatigue and said that the sea breeze might serve to brace her up. Her husband, Harry R. Tartar, a real estate dealer, remained at home with the other five children.

Mrs. Tartar and the three younger children walked for about half an hour near the shore. They started for home about 6:30. Hyman and Tessie wanted to walk the trolley rails, but their mother forbade them.

Ran to Walk the Track.

A car passed, and the children then ran to the tracks, which are raised above the street level at this point.

"Look," exclaimed Hyman, "I'm a tightrope walker." And he began walking along one rail with both arms extended in the manner of the man he had seen in the circus. Tessie clapped her hands joyfully, and clambering upon the other track folowed the example of her brother.

Mrs. Tartar was tired and did not see the children at first. But when Tessie finally tumbled from the rail and she and Hyman laughed loudly she noticed the two and sent Isadore to bring them away from the tracks.

There is a long curve at Avenue M and no sooner had Isadore started toward the tracks than Mrs. Tartar noticed a Canarsie shuttle trolley bound for the station at Rockaway and Lott Avenues speeding around the curve headed in the direction of the children. She knew that the motorman would not be able to see the children in time and cried out to warn them of their danger.

But Isadore thought she was only urging him to hurry and the other children were so engrossed in play that they paid no attention to their mother's cries.

Saves One Before Being Struck.

Mrs. Tartar ran toward the tracks as the trolley bore down upon the children. Isadore stood with his back to the car and did not see it. The motorman jammed on his brakes. Mrs. Tartar seized Isadore and hurled him out of the trolley's path. But she was knocked down, her head striking a rail with such force as to fracture her skull. Both Tessie and Hyman were hit. The little girl received internal injuries and a fracture of the skull. Hyman was only sligthly shaken up.

An ambulance was summoned from the Brownsville-East New York Hospital, but when it arrived Mrs. Tartar was dead. Tessie was taken to the hospital, and while her condition is critical physicians there believe she will recover.

Samuel Meyers of 109 Amboy Street, motorman of the trolley car, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide.

CHINESE SLAIN IN HIS HOME.

Victim Just Released on Bail on Drug Charge—Cousin Sought.

For a time yesterday afternoon it was believed that the shooting and killing of a Chinese in a Chinatown tenement was the signal for a revival of the tong war, but it developed later, according to the police, that the man was slain by his cousin in a dispute over the arrest of the victim the night before on a charge of having narcotics in his possession.

There was an exodus from the streets at 4:30 P. M. when two shots were fired in the tenement at 13 Mott Street. Detectives and policemen started through the building to find the doors of the apartments barred. Threats to break down the doors, in a process of elimination, eventually led to the apartment occupied by Leong Hang, 31 years old, and his cousin, Harry, on the third floor.

Chairs had been propped against the door, but it was easily pushed open. Inside the police found Leong lying on the floor dead with a long-barreled .38-calibre pistol a few feet away. Two bullets had passed through his head.

Neighbors told the police of hearing Hang, who was released in $500 bail, accuse his cousin of informing the police and of a quarrel that followed.

HUT DWELLER LEFT $10,000.

Police Find Bank Book and Deed to Land in Gallagher Home.

Search of the police and detectives through the débris that littered the home on Nassau Avenue, Astoria, which was occupied by William Gallagher and his sister, Miss Mary Gallagher, was rewarded yesterday when a bank book of the Long Island City Savings Bank was found, showing deposits of more than $3,000. A call at the bank showed the money was there to Gallagher's credit. A deed was found, showing that Gallagher and his sister recently purchased the hut in which they lived. The estate will probably be appraised at close to $10,000.

Gallagher was found dead in the hut last Wednesday. He had been dead more than two days, and it was revealed for the first time to many neighbors that his sister was living there with him. Gallagher was buried Thursday. His sister is being cared for by a family in Astoria. She is more than seventy years old and very feeble.

Plane to Succor Alaskan Indians.

JUNEAU, Alaska, June 19 (AP).—Governor Parks has authorized an airplane flight with a physician and supplies from Fairbanks to the Koyukuk River region, where many Indians are reported to be affected with a mysterious epidemic which has resulted in numerous deaths. The district has no physician.

MRS. THORNE WINS IN FIGHT OVER SON

Justice Faber Permits Her to Appoint Guardian ad Litem for Her Child.

HEIR TO $3,000,000 FUND

Mother Will Contest Stanfield Claim to Estate in Long Island City, Asking Three-eighths.

Mrs. Mary Casey Thorne, divorced wife of the late Joel Wolfe Thorne, won a victory yesterday in her long fight to obtain custody of her ten-year-old son, Joel Wolfe Thorne Jr., and to control the appointment of his guardian. Her right to select a guardian ad litem for the boy in defending a lawsuit growing out of his father's will was upheld by Supreme Court Justice Leander B. Faber in Queens.

Since Mr. Thorne's divorce and death the custody of the child has been held by the father's relatives, as the divorce decree took the infant away from its mother. A $3,000,000 trust fund, left by Mr. Thorne's father, the late Samuel Thorne, an associate of the late James J. Hill, is an object in the legal battle over the child, who is heir to the fund.

The guardian ad litem selected by Mrs. Thorne was John J. Kirby of 55 Liberty Street, her own attorney. Kirby was appointed by Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey to defend an action brought by George D. Stanfield of New York, a friend of Thorne, in litigation for real estate valued at $100,000 in Long Island City.

Left Son Residuary.

Thorne, in his will, left this property to Stanfield and named the son as residuary legatee. At the time the will was signed, April, 1920, Thorne owned only five-eighths of the Long Island City property, but later acquired the remaining interest. Stanfield says he is entitled to the entire property, but Mrs. Thorne asserts that the three-eighths belongs to her son as part of the residuary estate.

Through his attorneys, Andrew Ten Eyck and Ralph C. Taylor of 32 Broadway, Stanfield sued for a construction of that part of Thorne's will dealing with the Long Island City property. Mrs. Thorne on May 26 last obtained her attorney's appointment as her son's guardian for that legal battle.

Stanfield's attorneys raised objections to the legality of Kirby's appointment on the ground that it had been made without notice to the general guardians of the boy. Justice Faber in his decision ruled that Kirby had been properly appointed, and that there was no necessity of giving notice to the general guardians, as there was "no testamentary or general guardian now or at the time of the granting of the order involved."

Had Surviving Parent.

"Moreover," said Justice Faber, "any attempted appointment of a guardian for the infant defendant under the provisions of his father's will would be illegal, as there was a surviving parent."

Last April the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, on an appeal by Mrs. Thorne, reversed a decision by Surrogate Gleason of Dutchess County appointing Victor C. and Samuel B. Thorne, uncles of the boy, and the Central Union Trust Company, as general guardians of the boy. The Appellate Division said that Surrogate Gleason had no jurisdiction to make the appointment, as on the death of the father the son's legal domicile became that of the mother, which is in New York City.

An appeal from the Appellate Division's decision is now pending before the Court of Appeals. Waiting on the decision of the Court of Appeals is an application by Mrs. Thorne to Surrogate Foley of New York City for her appointment as general guardian.

Lost Son When Divorced.

Mrs. Thorne lost the custody of her son when her husband divorced her. Thorne died May 30, 1924, from injuries received in an automobile accident. Before his death a referee in New York County recommended to the court that a decree of divorce be granted to him, with custody of the son. The decree was confirmed after Thorne's death. Since her husband's death the child has been kept in Colorado by Thorne's relatives, according to Mrs. Thorne.

Joel Wolfe Thorne and Mary Casey were married in the Hotel Plaza in 1911. At the time of the marriage Thorne was living with his parents at 914 Fifth Avenue. Mary Casey was a teacher, who had once lived on the east side, near Third Avenue, and had later been graduated from Barnard College.

ASLEEP, FALLS TO DEATH.

Yonkers Girl, 13, Is Killed in Plunge From Third Floor Window.

While walking in her sleep, Alice Murray, 13 years old, of 74 Saratoga Avenue, Yonkers, stepped out of her bedroom window early yesterday and plunged three stories to her death in an alley below.

Patrolman John McDermont found the body and called an ambulance from St. John's Hospital, Yonkers, in charge of Dr. Kaplan. The physician said the child had been killed instantly. Coroner Edward Fitzgerald was notified and will make an investigation. The girl was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Murray. She attended Public School 13 in Yonkers.

ILL OVER SISTER'S DEATH.

Mrs. Cromwell Goes to Her Other Daughter in Chicago Hospital.

Mrs. Lincoln Cromwell, mother of Miss Elizabeth Cromwell, who was lost at sea from the Veendam last Tuesday, was called to Chicago yesterday by the illness of another daughter, Mrs. F. A. Chandler. At the Cromwell home, 711 Park Avenue, it was learned that the shock of her sister's death had upset Mrs. Chandler to such an extent that physicians had ordered her removed to a hospital. Jarvis Cromwell, a brother, accompanied his mother. Lincoln Cromwell said last night that Mrs. Chandler was not considered dangerously ill.

Nothing concerning Miss Cromwell's death, aside from the fact that it was an accident, has been learned either by the family or the Holland-America Line.

WITNESS ACCUSES MRS. SYMINGTON

Corespondent Admits Charges Linking Him in Divorce Suit Are True.

GAVE EVIDENCE TO HUSBAND

Steuer, Defense Counsel, Questions Witness About Financial Status When He Aided Plaintiff.

Talbot W. Chambers, President of the Talbot Coal Corporation, a corespondent in the divorce action brought by Thomas H. Symington, dealer in railway supplies, against Ida May Symington, testified before Supreme Court Justice Ford and a jury yesterday, admitting that the charges against him and Mrs. Symington were true. A paper written by Symington and signed by Chambers, which told of his relations with the defendant, was offered in evidence.

A letter from Chambers's personal attorney was given to Justice Ford during the course of the trial yesterday, in which the lawyer asked that his client be excused from having to answer "embarrassing" questions. The Court ruled that Chambers would be treated as any other witness and denied his counsel the right to appear in his behalf. Before his client took the stand, however, the attorney produced a letter written by Mrs. Symington to Chambers, while she was at Palm Beach. Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mrs. Symington conceded that the letter had been written by her, but was the only one she had written Chambers. It read:

"Dear Tal, or Pete, as I prefer to call you: Well, old top, when are you coming to Palm Beach? Thanks for your sweet note of Christmas greetings. Some of our friends are coming down and I think you should be here. Friend husband has sold my old house and I had to move out, bag and baggage. I am now occupying an apartment at the Everglades Club with my maid and child as chaperons. Mr. S. does not intend to return for a while. I am on the loose."

Told of Cocktail Parties.

After some more references to the humdrum life the letter said that because of the heavy rainfall at the time "we have been doing nothing but going to cocktail parties." Mrs. Symington said in the letter that she declined an invitation to a party at Nassau, but said she would have accepted "if you were here." "Everybody has a beau but me," she said in the letter.

During the direct examination of Chambers by W. A. Young, the attorney produced a memorandum which the witness said he had signed. The paper, it was later shown, was written by either Mr. Symington or his brother, C. J. Symington, and under the words "read and approved" was affixed a signature which Chambers testified was his own. It told of relations between Chambers and Mrs. Symington.

Mr. Steuer, in cross-examining Chambers, elicited the information that he had first met Mr. Symington on April 19, 1924, in his office. They had a short talk, and later, on April 23 Mr. Symington and his brother both called at Chambers's office and at this visit he was shown the memorandum which he signed.

"Did you know that the Symingtons were large buyers of coal?" asked Mr. Steuer.

Questioned About Finances.

The witness said he didn't know but he imagined they might be inasmuch as they were dealers in railroad supplies.

"Are you serious?" the lawyer inquired.

"Yes," Chambers replied.

Q.—Well, if you can sit there and tell this jury that you didn't know that the Symingtons were large buyers of coal, didn't you at least discover that they were when they held conferences with you at their office? A.—Not necessarily. We didn't discuss coal.

Q.—What was your financial condition in April, 1924? A.—Not so good.

Q.—As a matter of fact, weren't you in a hole for money at the time? A.—No; I needed money, but it wasn't as bad as that.

When the lawyer pressed him for more definite information concerning his financial status at the time he signed the memorandum, Chambers seemed very reluctant to answer. When both he and his lawyer had objected to one of Mr. Steuer's questions about his finances at that time and after the Court told him to answer as the question was important, the witness admitted he was in debt, but only to the extent of "a couple of thousand dollars."

Several servants testified concerning Maurice Fatio, an architect, who is also named as a co-respondent.

Mr. Steuer, at the close of the session, pointed out to Justice Ford that in both the original and amended complaints of the plaintiff, it was charged that Mrs. Symington was intimate with persons "whose names are unknown," and although they had in their possession the signed memorandum by Chambers he was not named in the complaint. This, the lawyer said, was not in accordance with a ruling of the Appellate Division two years ago, which held that all persons who are known to be co-respondents must be named. Justice Ford said he would consider the facts. The trial will continue today.

YOUNG DIVORCE CASE BEGUN

Jury Will Hear Publisher's Suit Against Wife This Morning.

The divorce action brought by Courtlandt H. Young, magazine publisher, against Dorothy Campbell Young began in the Supreme Court yesterday before Justice Delehanty and a jury. After the jury had been selected and counsel for both sides had briefly outlined their cases the trial was adjourned until this morning.

The suit is an outgrowth of litigation begun in May, 1923, when Mrs. Young brought suit for separation from her husband on the ground of habitual drunkenness and cruelty. Former Justice Robert L. Luce as referee recommended the dismissal of this action in April, 1924, and the alimony allowance which had been previously granted revoked. It has been shown that the publisher visited his wife after this suit was dismissed.

The next move was made by Mr. Young, who tried to obtain custody of their four-year-old child through a writ of habeas corpus. He charged his wife with misconduct. Justice Levy dismissed the writ, criticized Mr. Young and said that under no circumstances would he give the child into the custody of its father. Mrs. Young was then served with a summons and complaint in the suit for divorce.

Justice Lydon later allowed Mrs. Young $200 a week alimony and $5,000 counsel fees, saying that she had a right to defend the charges of misconduct and was entitled to alimony. Mr. Young's income is said to be $100,000.

Boy Dodges Auto, Killed by Trolley.

Charles Brancodi, 3 years old, of 3,712 Thirteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, was killed last night when, in evading an automobile in front of his home, he was knocked down by a trolley car. Patrick Donohue, motorman of the car, of 201 East Seventy-ninth Street, Brooklyn, was arrested on a technical homicide charge.

A Butler Grocery Held Up.

Three armed bandits held up the James Butler grocery at 1,435 Second Avenue shortly before noon yesterday, escaping with $70, of which $20 belonged to John Norton of 607 Third Avenue, the clerk on duty.

Jay-Walking Legal in Paris Court Assails Regulation

PARIS, June 19 (AP).—Declaring a police regulation against jay-walking illegal, a Paris Judge today said if the police had the right to regulate pedestrian traffic they might also require those who walk to carry a light or to proceed at stipulated speeds.

The Magistrate handed down judgment on the rights of walkers in releasing Jacques Allinbert, who was arrested for crossing the Champs Elysées at a point other than one of those marked out by the police. The Judge held a city ordinance empowered the police to regulate vehicular traffic but that they could not infringe upon the ordinary citizen's right to move as he pleases, so long as he does not violate other laws.

NEW HAVEN MAN HEADS ROTARY INTERNATIONAL

Donald Allison Adams, Vice President, Is Elevated—Convention Ends After Talk by Will Hays.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 19.—Donald Allison Adams of New Haven, Conn., has been elected President of Rotary International, it was announced here today.

The results of the election between Mr. Adams and Paul H. King of Detroit, Mich., the only other nominee, formally announced today, the last day of the convention, showed the vote 1,466 to 453.

President Adams succeeds Everett W. Hill of Oklahoma City, wealthy ice manufacturer, as head of the organization of 109,000 members.

Byron K. Elliott of Pittsburgh, Chairman of the Convention's Committee on elections, announced election of the following directors:

From the United States: Arthur H. Sapp, Huntington, Ind.; Hart I. Seeley, Waverly, N. Y.; Harry H. Rogers, San Antonio, Texas; Harry S. Fish, Sayre, Pa.; Carl L. Faust, Jackson, Miss.

From the British Isles: A. F. Graves, Brighton, England. From Canada: Charles Burchell, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Immediately after installation of the new officers the convention was declared adjourned.

The new President was born at Windsor, Wis., Sept. 7, 1881. He is the son of a minister. He was educated in the Wisconsin public schools and Carleton College at Northfield, Minn. He studied law at Yale University and was a member of the Yale debating team. He took up the practice of law in New York City, but in 1911 moved to New Haven. In addition to affiliations with some of New Haven's largest industries he is a Faculty member of one of its leading business colleges.

Adams has been one of Rotary's district governors, a member of its international common business methods organization and was elected First Vice President at Toronto last June.

Campaigns for furthering international relief work for crippled children were tentatively planned by the assembly.

Will H. Hays, President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, spoke on the influence of motion pictures in promoting friendship between nations. The motion picture, he said, knowing no barrier of distance or language, makes for understanding and understanding for the breakdown of suspicions and hatred.

POLICE MAGAZINE SHAKE-UP REVEALED

Editor and Publisher Quit, He Says, Over Disagreeable Conditions—Two in His Job.

A second change in the executive staff of The Police Magazine since its initiation a year ago was admitted yesterday at Police Headquarters. The change took place several weeks ago. Perriton Maxwell, who became editor and publisher after the magazine had been going five months, has resigned and his place has been taken by two men. Edwin Conover, formerly connected with House and Garden, is the new publisher, and Thomas N. Crawford will be the editor. The first publisher was Errol Hart, publicity representative of the Police Department.

The change in administration in the officers of The Police Magazine became known through a printed announcement sent out by Maxwell. Beyond a brief outline of the growth of the magazine and the statement that the publisher had to face "unusual handicaps" in his task, the statement gives no reason for the resignation.

At Police Headquarters it was said that the rapid growth of the magazine made a larger staff necessary, and that two men were required to do the work formerly allotted to Maxwell. At his home in Bayside last night Maxwell said he had resigned because of "disagreeable conditions." He would not specify what the "conditions" were.

ASKS TRIAL OF HIMSELF BEFORE SUING BRYAN

Nebraska Ex-Commissioner Seeks Court Test—Will Then Proceed Against Ex-Governor.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 19 (AP).—Criminal prosecution and civil suits to collect overpayments alleged to have been made to road contractors under George Johnson, Commissioner of Public Works under former Governor Samuel McKelvie, Republican, will be started soon, Attorney General Spillman announced today.

A letter delivered to Mr. Spillman today from Mr. Johnson asks that the suits begin immediately so that he might then institute proceedings against former Governor Charles W. Bryan, Democrat, whom he charged with "violation of the State Corrupt Practices act, violation of the State budget law and forcing a deficit so as to embarrass the previous State Administration, violation of the State statutes by fraudulent use of the State revolving fund, for fraudulent use of funds received from the Federal Government and for fraudulent use of the Federal mails in connection with his private coal company."

Mr. Bryan succeeded Mr. McKelvie as Governor.

HELD AS SECURITIES THIEF.

Chemist Alleged to Have Raised 2 Loans on Stolen Paper.

Harry Linn, 37 years old, a chemist, of 392 Hamilton Avenue, Brooklyn, pleaded not guilty yesterday before Magistrate Earl A. Smith on a grand larceny charge. He was held in $3,000 bail for a hearing next Tuesday. Detectives Murphy and Shea of the Beach Street Station told the Magistrate Linn was accused of stealing $7 in money and $3,000 in securities from an open safe in the office of James Crocco, a nickel plater, at 123 Chambers Street on May 17.

They also alleged that on May 25 Linn obtained a loan of $50 from George Ryan of 201 West 105th Street on one of the stolen securities, and pledged two others with Frank T. Williams of 1,693 Broadway as collateral for a loan of $170 on June 10. Ryan and Williams learned that the securities had been stolen, it was said, took them to banks to learn their value, and then notified the police.

HYLAN AND CRAIG GET CHEERS AT MEETING

Delighted Delegations Jam Estimate Board Room as Pet Projects Are Approved.

SEASON'S BUSIEST SESSION

Funds Voted for $8,000,000 Rockaway Boardwalk as Brass Band Plays.

BUSES FILL CITY HALL PLAZA

Visitors Come From All Sections—Queens Gets Bulk of the Appropriations.

In point of the duration of its session, as well as the number of spectators who attended its deliberations and occasionally applauded its acts, the final regular meeting of the Board of Estimate before the Summer recess yesterday established new records for the seven years of the Hylan Administration.

There was a heavy calendar to be cleared and its diversified items represented interests close to the hearts of many classes of citizens. With the exception of a brief intermission for luncheon, the board was in continuous session from 11 A. M. until 6.15 P. M., when it adjourned, thoroughly wearied. Until the middle of the afternoon the chamber was jammed to capacity with delegations from every section of the city. The plaza of City Hall Park presented a unique spectacle. In it were parked a score or more of the city's largest sight-seeing buses, some of them decorated with flags and bunting and bearing banners emblazoned with appeals to the Mayor and the board to grant this or that coveted improvement.

Some of the vehicles had brought cheering delegations from the Brownsville and Erie Basin sections of Brooklyn to urge the granting of a bus franchise. "Help us get our buses back!" read the banners flung from these cars. Others had brought hundreds of citizens from the Rockaways, intent upon seeing the Board of Estimate validate their $8,000,000 boardwalk project and upon making the validation a holiday occasion. Still other caravans had come from various sections of Queens. Most of these were interested primarily in the Queens subway routes laid down by the Board of Transportation for Mayor Hylan's independent, municipally owned and operated system.

Bands Invade City Hall.

Brass bands tumbled out of the buses and paraded through the corridors of City Hall, followed by flag-waving marchers, until the Mayor had to order the police to quiet the demonstration because the Board of Estimate upstairs could not hear the roll-calls.

Horns tooted, cheers resounded and the crowd from the Rockaways milled about the meeting room in a pandemonium of happiness which completely wrecked the decorum of the board when it voted to construct the boardwalk and appropriated an initial $1,670,000 for that purpose. Almost in the same breath the board loosed another demonstration of approval when it voted $843,300 for the extension of the Coney Island Boardwalk from Ocean Parkway to Coney Island Avenue, and Borough President Joseph Guider of Brooklyn announced that, at his request, the board would vest title in the property to be used on Aug. 15.

The throng was in great good humor. Nobody was slighted. "Three cheers for Mayor Hylan!" "Three cheers for Controller Craig!" "Hurrah for Connolly!" "Bully for the Board of Estimate!" rang the plaudits, while the tootings of the tin horns echoed an accompaniment.

After the unanimous vote had been recorded, leaders of the various delegations crowded to the fore to thank the Mayor and the board. Then the delegations began to cheer for their local leaders and for a time it looked as if the official dais would be taken by storm.

A man in the grayish-blue uniform of a special policeman, similar to uniforms worn by station guards on the I. R. T. and the B. M. T., pressed his way through the crowd and when he reached the front line shouted: "You're all right, Mayor! Next time you'll get 519,000."

The Mayor smiled. "You'd better send a communication to some of the embryo politicians about that," he remarked.

Business of the board was at a standstill as the various delegations continued their cheering and tooting. They kept up the din even in the corridors and out into the plaza in front of the City Hall until after they had boarded the fleet of buses and begun their triumphant homeward trip.

The Rockaway boardwalk, as planned, will extend for about seven and one-half miles along the beach taking in practically the entire peninsula. It will run from Jacob Riis Park through to Far Rockaway. It is estimated the promenade will cost about $1,000,000 a mile, making the total cost approximately $7,500,000.

When the approval was given, Borough President Connolly announced that he would immediately advertise the matter and that work would be started in a month or so.

Fix New Board's Salaries.

The Board of Estimate fixed the salaries of the Chairman and members of the reorganized Board of Standards and Appeals, Mayor Hylan having signed the reorganization bill several days ago. The salary of the Chairman was fixed at $10,000, and three other members will get $7,500 each. The fifth member will be assigned by the Fire Commissioner. He will be a fireman above the rank of Battalion Chief, with no extra compensation for his services.

Under the reorganization the personnel of the board has been cut from thirteen to five members and Fire Chief John Kenlon is eliminated from mandatory permanent membership in the board, but can be assigned as the Fire Department's representative if the Commissioner wishes.

With the authorization by the Board of Estimate to begin proceedings for acquiring title to a portion of the block bounded by Canal, Sullivan, Grand and Thompson Streets, the proposed extension of Sixth Avenue from Carmine Street South to Laight Street to provide traffic outlet for the new vehicular tunnel and a route for the Sixth Avenue subway was formally launched.

Borough President Julius Miller expects to have the physical work on this improvement under headway by the middle of July.

Though the long session of the board taxed the patience of its members, there was a minimum of friction. Mayor Hylan and Controller Craig, in the interest of despatching business, appeared to have declared a truce in their chronic hostilities. Peace and good nature reigned throughout the meeting.

Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens got the lion's share of appropriation for improvements. One humorous incident of Mr. Connolly's requests from the board was in the matter of a paving job in which he said there was but a "slight difference" between him and chief engineer Arthur S. Tuttle of the Board of Estimate.

"What is the slight difference?" the engineer was asked by Mayor Hylan.

"A difference of $1,200,000 in the cost," replied Mr. Tuttle, while the board members laughed. They later approved the Connolly request.

MAURETANIA RIPS PIER WHILE DOCKING

Bridge of Big Liner Twists Girder—Many Alarmed at Cracking Sound.

SHIP HAS A ROUGH PASSAGE

Giant Wave Smashes Glass in Wheelhouse, Cutting One of Crew—Minister to Sweden Arrives.

The Cunarder Mauretania, which arrived yesterday afternoon, five hours late from Southampton and Cherbourg, was moving into her berth on the south side of Pier 54, North River, foot of West Thirteenth Street, when the overhang on the port side of the bridge caught one of the upper steel girders of the pier and twisted it around like a wisp of paper. The force of the impact cracked the plates on the end of the bridge and tore away the woodwork underneath, but no serious damage was done, Captain Henry McConkey, the Marine Superintendent, said. It made a sharp, cracking sound, and some of those who were waiting on the pier for relatives and friends screamed and ran back as the big liner surged toward them.

In speaking of the incident later Captain Arthur H. Rostron, R. N. R., the master, said, "It was my unlucky side of the pier. I am always all right when I go to the north side. We just caught the girder by about six inches—no more."

The Mauretania was in poor luck on her westbound voyage, Captain Rostron said. He had to slow down twice for a fog and once for heavy weather when a wave went over the bridge and smashed the glass in the wheelhouse, cutting the face of Quartermaster W. J. Fennel, who was on duty at the time.

Big Wave Hits Ship.

"Our worst weather," he said, "was on Wednesday, when it blew hard from the southwest and then went to west and developed into a moderate gale. There were some very heavy seas and at 11 A. M. I went on the bridge and reduced the speed to 12 knots. I had just reached my cabin again when I felt her dive and then heard a loud crash as a big wave came over the bow and passed over the bridge, smashing the glass windows in the pilot house. I rushed up and saw the quartermaster with his face cut and bleeding, and the buckets and gratings on the after part of the bridge floating about in the water that was washing about. The speed was reduced to 10 knots and that was the only big wave that came over the bows. From noon Wednesday to noon Thursday the Mauretania only made 445 miles, which was her worst run on the voyage. The best was 628 miles from noon Sunday to noon Monday."

Among the first class passengers was Robert W. Bliss, the United States Minister to Sweden, who said he had come over for a brief vacation after being two years at his post. Business was rather quiet in the Scandinavian countries, the Minister added. The labor conditions were improving in Sweden and the influence of the radical element had decreased since the unions declined to order a general strike recently.

Another passenger was Mrs. Vincent Astor, who was met at the pier by her husband. She said she had been abroad visiting relatives and friends. She spent part of her time, she said, with Viscount and Viscountess Astor in England, with Lady Ribblesdale and with Princess Obolenski. Mrs. Astor wore a black silk costume with black hat and a single string of pearls. She will go out of town for a few weeks and later to Newport, R. I.

Others Arriving on the Liner.

Mrs. Henry P. Davison was at the pier to meet her daughter, Miss Frances Davison, who has been studying for several months in England and France.

Others who arrived on the Mauretania were Sir Percy Daniels, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, G. Rimini and Rosa Raisa, operatic singers, and Ruth Gordon, actress. American business men returning on the liner said there was no immediate danger of Russia attacking the Balkan States or Poland, because all the energies and gold of the Soviet were being devoted to getting control of Asia, and the present trouble in China had been started through its agents in Canton and Shanghai.

MAN, 88, FATHER OF 8, ASKS POORHOUSE TERM

Tells Court He Is Subject of Dispute Among Children—Sent to Welfare Island.

An aged man who said he was Oscar Baker, a printer, requested Magistrate James T. O'Neill in the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, to commit him for the remainder of his life to some institution, because he had become a subject of dispute among his children as to which of them should care for him. Baker said to the Magistrate:

"Your honor, I was born in Brooklyn 88 years ago. I was a printer in my day and a good one, but my eyes and and ears failed me, such as often happens to old men, and I finally had to quit. I was the father of fifteen children, eight of whom are living and are doing well. For some time I have been living with one or the other of these children of mine, but of late they have begun to quarrel as to who should have me, rather than about who shouldn't have me."

"Give me the names of these children," demanded the Magistrate.

"No, Judge, I don't want to bother them. I want them to be happy and may God be good to them. I would appreciate it if you would not insist on asking me anything about my children. I don't blame them."

Baker had suggested that he be sent to a jail. The court decided that the best place for him was at Welfare Island, and he was committed to that institution for six months.

"This is the longest period to which I may commit you to that institution," said Magistrate O'Neill. "If, at the end of that time you may want to remain there, I will see to it that you are again committed for a like period."

WARNS CHILD LABOR AGENTS

Pennsylvania to Prosecute Recruiters for New Jersey Berry Bogs.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 19 (AP).—Prosecution faces "padrones" and farmers who recruit child labor in Pennsylvania for the cranberry bogs and truck farms of New Jersey, Richard H. Lansburgh, Secretary of the State Department of Labor and Industry, said today. He declared that inspectors were investigating alleged violations of the Child Labor laws by "padrones," who charge a fee of $1 for each school child furnished, and asserted that jail sentences would be sought as a means of ending exploitation of school children.

Mr. Lansburgh said his department expects to proceed against the "padrones" on charges of conducting employment agencies in Pennsylvania without a license. He asserted that annually between 2,500 and 3,000 school children are recruited in this manner in Philadelphia alone. The Secretary said the department had been promised cooperation by the New Jersey authorities, who would act after the facts had been laid before them.

AID FOR GRAIN COMPANY.

Three Offers Said to Have Been Made to Marketing Concern.

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP).—Three offers of financial aid to tide over the Grain Marketing Company were reported to have been before the board of directors today. The company has only until July 28, under its contract, to repurchase from five old line grain operators, whose properties were leased by the company, $4,000,000 worth of Grain Marketing Company stock.

Reports that dissolution of the company is considered were discounted by directors and officers, although it was admitted that very little stock of the new company had been sold and it was explained that promotion of the stock "was just getting started."

Less than an hour before the directors met Gray Silver, President, was called into conference with George E. Marcy, President of the Armour Grain Company, and others in the Armour offices. The Armour Company was one of the five corporations merger of which made possible the launching of the new company nearly a year ago. It was understood that one of the offers to finance the company came from a syndicate specially organized for the purpose.

"THE CAT" BROUGHT BACK.

Burglar Who Troubled Scotland Yard Faces Murder Charge Here.

Detectives Senff and Kerr returned from London yesterday with Jack Schottenfeld, who is under indictment for shooting and killing Harry Schokofsky, a taxicab chauffeur, at Fifth Avenue and 111th Street on the night of March 26, 1922. Schottenfeld was locked up in Police Headquarters, and will be arraigned in General Sessions today or Monday.

Schottenfeld was reported to have admitted to the police of London when arrested there two years ago that he was wanted here on a murder charge. He was convicted there of several burglaries and had served nineteen months in Brixton prison when the English police notified Commissioner Enright that they would hold him for extradition.

Scotland Yard was eager to get rid of Schottenfeld, the New York detectives said. His stealthy burglaries in London had earned him the nickname of "The Cat."

STEAL $350, MISS $25,000.

Thieves Overlook Payroll and Securities in Robbing Old Safe.

Thieves pried open a safe in the office of the Typhoon Fan Company, 345 West Thirty-ninth Street, early yesterday morning and stole $350 in cash. In their haste to escape, however, they overlooked $5,000 in cash and $20,000 in negotiable securities which were on a shelf below the cash box.

The safe was an old one, used for petty cash and office books. In the absence from the city yesterday of Ernst Glantzberg, President of the company, the securities and the $5,000 payroll cash had been transferred from a modern safe on the floor below the main office. The $5,000 was in envelopes, ready for distribution, but Mr. Glantzberg said it was the first time in the firm's history that the payroll money had been left in cash overnight.

The robbers had used a pair of bent shears to open the safe. These and a soiled collar and necktie were the only clues left. The police are working on the case.

4 BANDITS ROB JEWELER.

Cover Man and Boy With Pistol and Escape With Ring Settings.

Leonard Rubenstein, a manufacturing jeweler, and his office boy were held up in his establishment on the twelfth floor of 341 Fifth Avenue yesterday afternoon by four men with pistols, who forced them into a corner. The bandits robbed a safe of several trays of ring settings. Rubenstein said that diamonds and other precious stones which had been in the settings were in another strong box, the key of which was hidden.

Two of the men held pistols against the jeweler and the boy while the other bandits stuffed the settings into their coat pockets. Then all four backed to the door. Bidding Rubenstein a polite farewell, they ran down the stairs and escaped. Detectives of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station obtained descriptions of the bandits, and a general alarm was sent out for them.

VACATES STAY FOR "WOLF."

Judge in Chicago Cancels Leniency for Worthington.

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP).—A stay of execution granted to John W. Worthington, "the wolf of La Salle Street," who recently vanished from a sanitarium at Los Angeles, was vacated today by Federal Judge Cliffe on motion of Assistant State's Attorney J. E. Byrnes, and as soon as he can be found he will be sent to Federal prison for a two-year term.

Worthington was sentenced in 1923 for using the mails to defraud by the sale of stock. He appealed, but in 1924 the United States Supreme Court affirmed the sentence.

Since then he has been at liberty under $5,000 bond by a stay of execution obtained on the plea that Worthington was ill of diabetes and likely to die. He went to California and entered a sanitarium and his disappearance led Federal officials here to decide upon no further leniency.

Dr. Young Pleads Not Guilty.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 19 (AP).—Dr. Thomas Young today pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder in connection with the death of his wife, Grace Grogan Young, widow of the olive millionaire, Patrick Grogan. Trial was set for Aug. 17.

THE WEATHER.

The Northeastern disturbance is now central over Newfoundland and other disturbances of slight intensity are central over Ontario, Manitoba and Southern Arizona. Relatively high pressure prevails over Alberta, the Rocky Mountain region, the Plains States, the Gulf States and off the North Pacific and South Atlantic Coasts.

There have been local showers within the last twenty-four hours in Maine, the northern lake region, the extreme upper Mississippi and the Red River of the North valleys, the southern Rocky Mountain region, Tennessee, Western Arkansas, Western Texas and in portions of the South Atlantic and East Gulf States. The temperature has risen in the Missouri and middle Mississippi valleys, the upper lake region and from the Dakotas westward to the North Pacific Coast and it has fallen slightly in Southern New England and the Middle Atlantic States.

Partly cloudy weather will prevail Saturday and Sunday east of the Mississippi River and there is a probability of scattered thunder showers in the Atlantic and East Gulf States, the lower lake region and extreme upper Ohio valley. The temperature will not change materially.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Advance, Following Thursday's Decline—Sharp Recovery in Italian Exchange.

None of the movements on yesterday's markets was of any great importance. The day's advance on the Stock Exchange represented nothing but the retracing of ground lost in the previous day's market. Since railway shares, by the whim of professional speculators, had been the point of special weakness on Thursday, they were the point of strength on Friday, and advances of 1 to 2 points were as numerous yesterday (and as meaningless) as were declines of the same scope the day before. This sort of thing is hardly matter for serious financial comment any more than the similar movement back and forth of the speculative industrials—one of which, having declined 21 points on Thursday, advanced 23 yesterday. If the stock market were to be left free from purely artificial activities, its aspect would very probably be that of an unruffled surface, reflecting financial dead calm. The waves that rise and recede with the splashing of the professional contingent leave real values much where they were before.

More legitimate interest attached to yesterday's bond market, on which the easy-money outlook continued to produce results. Its effect on Government bonds was interesting. Two important Federal loans went yesterday to a higher price than had ever before been reached; another, the fourth 4¼ per cents—of which the amount outstanding is double that of any other single issue—matched its previous high price of August, 1924. If, as now appears altogether probable, easy-money conditions should be emphasized during the next few months, it is not improbable that refunding operations of a larger scope than any yet undertaken will be considered. There are outstanding United States long-term loans in the sum of billions whose optional maturity is as near as 1927 and 1928. Provision for their conversion would naturally be discussed under the prospective conditions of this year's money market.

Italian exchange, which broke more than ¼ cent to the lira on Wednesday and Thursday (a percentage decline of 7 per cent.), recovered nearly all of the loss yesterday. Presumably the recovery was helped along by judicious use of the Italian Government's New York credit. This is a curious stage in the experiment with such "protective resources"; it seems to be a situation in which the restless bear operators had begun to doubt the willingness of the authorities to use their credits and in which, as a consequence, the credits had to be employed. Probably this whole part of the depreciated-currency episode will be regarded, in the retrospect of later financial history, as very much of a futility, whose unequal results eventually convinced the Governments that there was no safeguard against recurrent plunges into lower depths of depreciation except return to the gold standard.

The money market ended this week of enormous payments in as unruffled a condition as at its beginning; the Stock Exchange call money rate ruling at the recent minimum of 3¾ per cent. In considerable measure, the weekly report of the New York Reserve Bank reflects the real state of the market. Notwithstanding what seemed to be the past week's heavy requisitions on credit institutions, the Reserve Bank actually reduced its purchase of bills from the open market by $34,000,000, bringing the total of such loans to the lowest figure since last August.

They had risen to the maximum of $123,732,000 in December, and stood as high as $89,572,000 on May 13; they now foot up only $30,858,000. The movement has this much of general interest, that it meets the criticism which assumed that the low money rates and the consequent speculative spirit were in part a result of this placing of Reserve Bank funds at the service of the open money market. The greater part of these advances have now been withdrawn; yet money rates continue as low as before, in a week when tangible influences might have been expected to force them up. The necessary inference would seem to be that the causes for the great ease in money lie much deeper than operations of the Reserve Bank.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, JUNE 19, 1925.

Although the tone was not as easy as in early week, Stock Exchange call money continued at 3¾ per cent. Withdrawals helped to stiffen the market, but as demand was not overly great rate was maintained. A little business in the outside market was reported at 3½ per cent. Time money was dull and likewise unchanged in quotation. Paper brokers stated that bulk of paper discounts at 4 per cent., with an occasional trade at 3¾. Few of the local banks are purchasing under the maximum figure, the market in the interior being easier. Acceptances ruled quiet and unchanged.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

General Recovery on Stock Exchange in Late Dealings—Trading Active.

Following irregularity during the early trading on the Stock Exchange yesterday, the market turned strong in the late dealings, and at the close gains of 1 or 2 points were numerous, and in many cases considerably more. The first signs of improvements in the market developed in the railroad shares under leadership of the western and northwestern carriers. Union Pacific was conspicuous for its gain of 2⅝ points, while Great Northern preferred, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Rock Island and Chicago Northwestern went substantially higher. The strength in these stocks was ascribed to new conviction that the freight rate structure would be revised favorably for the railroads. In the last hour the oils attracted attention under leadership of Sinclair Consolidated, which moved up rapidly as a result of the Teapot Dome decision. Motors and some of the specialties under pool domination were again active with higher prices quoted.

Sinclair and the Teapot Dome Decision.

Immediately following receipt of the news in the last hour of business yesterday, that the Government had lost its suit against the Mammoth Oil Company, and H. F. Sinclair regarding the legality of the Teapot Dome oil lease, brokers on the Stock Exchange flocked to the Sinclair post and a lively last hour was witnessed in this stock. Blocks of 1,000 to 4,500 shares were taken, and this buying resulted in a sharp run-up in the stock to a high of 21⅝. At its close of 24⅛ the stock was up 1¾ points for the day. Total dealings in the stock aggregated 97,200 shares, all of which, with the exception of 9,200 shares, changed hands in the closing hour. According to reports in the financial district after the close of the market, a sleeping short interest was caught when the decision favorable to the company was announced. It was stated in one quarter that after the Government won its suit against Doheny in the Elk Hills lease case, many professionals sold Sinclair stock short on the theory that this company also would lose its case.

The New High Records in "Liberties."

The establishment of new high records in the prices of several Liberty bond issues yesterday drew attention to the strong buying of these securities, which has been going on for some time and which has resulted in the concentration of a major portion of the bonds in the hands of large institutions. Yesterday's rise also renewed discussion among investment bankers as to the advantages of tax-exempt issues. The general opinion was that the expiration of the tax-exempt feature, in so far as the surtax is concerned, on July 2, 1926, will not have any effect on the market, since the other advantages of the bonds will cause their retention by strong interests. One banker who specializes in Government isues went so far as to declare yesterday that the purchases of Liberties and other Treasury issues by banks, insurance companies and other large institutions had been so large as to eliminate the individual investor as a factor in the situation.

Traction Earnings and Politics.

That not all of the traction stock market optimism is based on the interesting changes in city politics was declared yesterday to be proved by the May earnings of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation. As reported yesterday, the month's earnings constituted the largest monthly totals since the reorganization in 1923, and the eleven months' net income was asserted to be equally promising of this company's ability to forge ahead in the face of conditions that still create unsolved difficulties for New York City traction companies.

St. Paul and Higher Rates.

The assertion by receivers of the St. Paul yesterday that an increase of rates in Western territory should be made in such a way that the proceeds would go to the lines that need it, and not unduly swell the revenues of the carriers that do not show similar need, was taken by Wall Street to indicate that they have given serious thought to the rate question and have conceived an ingenious method of solving it. Whether their plan will meet with the approval of the other Western carriers or even the bankers of the road was, however, considered doubtful. The opponents of the reorganization plan have based their objections entirely upon the need for increased rates, and some of the security holders were believed to be of the opinion that this statement by the receivers is playing into their hands. Others contend that the receivers have shown that they were competent to consider the question of rates without outside interference.

Aspects of the Foreign Exchanges.

The fact that sterling exchange has held practically motionless around $4.85¾, while other Continental exchanges have this week been plunging with extreme violence up and down, was discussed by exchange dealers yesterday as proving on the one hand that the gold resumption policy had itself exerted a positive stabilizing influence, and on the other hand that a price slightly under $4.86 had been found high enough to insure the Bank of England's position. The gold obtained in the last few weeks from Amsterdam and elsewhere was believed to have been virtually bought by the Bank in various markets, on terms regulated by the rate of sterling. That amounts running into several millions of pounds sterling could have been thus acquired showed that the present sterling rate is high enough for the purpose. Gold purchases of the same kind were always made by the Bank of England in pre-war days, even when sterling at New York was below the actual par of exchange.

The Farmers Versus the Railroads.

The "existing depression in agriculture" which prompted the passage of the Hoch-Smith resolution, it was asserted yesterday by some railroad men, cannot fairly be said any longer to exist. They cited the Commerce Commission's statistics showing that 116,579,252 tons of agricultural products originated on Class 1 roads in 1924, as compared with 109,317,655 tons in 1923. These figures, in their view, do not seem to indicate that the present rate structure has interfered with the free movement of agricultural products. On the other hand, the earning statements of the Northwestern roads were held not to indicate that the farmer had been helped at the expense of others. For this reason they believe the Hoch-Smith resolution should be used to obtain a fair and equitable rate adjustment the country over, rather than for obtaining the lowest possible lawful rates for the agrarian districts.

A Factor in the Power Industry.

It was suggested yesterday that persons who in the last few weeks have found themselves long of high-priced public utility stocks, and who have not known whether to hold on or let go, might be interested in the most recent remarks of the Secretary of Commerce on the subject of public utility regulation. The power and light industry is to be left a free hand in the extensive development and merger plans now under way, according to Secretary Hoover, whose pronouncement to this effect at the national electric light and power convention in San Francisco was said in financial circles yesterday to constitute a reassurance against political agitation for Federal regulation as opposed to State regulation.

OFFER A RATE PLAN TO AID THE ST. PAUL

Receivers Propose That Surplus From Higher Tariff for West Go to Roads With Deficit.

WOULD ALLOW FAIR RETURN

Proceeds of the Increased Charges to Be Segregated and Divided Later.

An increase in rates for Western railroads, the receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul declared in a public statement issued here yesterday, should be made so that the proceeds would go to the lines that need additional revenue and not to swell the revenues of carriers that do not show similar need.

This opinion, they said, was reached after a careful study of the situation in response to many inquiries regarding the prospective income of the St. Paul and the attitude of the receivers respecting a rate increase.

It is well known, they add, that there is an urgent need for a readjustment of the rate structure of all the carriers in the Western district, but particularly for lines like the St. Paul, which because of the low volume of traffic have suffered disproportionately with the others. In order that this disparity receive consideration they suggest that the proceeds of the increase throughout the district be segregated and distributed among all the carrieds in proportion to their showing of deficits below the fair return of 5¾ per cent. set by the Transportation act.

"Accepting book investment as the amount upon which a fair return is to be calculated, until properties have been definitely valued by the commission," they set forth, "the carriers in the Western District during the year 1924 fell short in the aggregate to the extent of approximately $160,000,000 of earning the fair return as fixed by the commission at 5¾ per cent. The deficit on the St. Paul was approximately $23,000,000, which is 12.76 per cent. of the aggregate group deficit. It would, therefore, seem to be just that the St. Paul should be credited with this percentage of any amount raised as a result of rate increases designated to meet the needs of the several carriers.

"If an increase of only 5 per cent. had been in effect during the year 1924 and the proceeds thereof had been so segragated and distributed, the net operating income of the St. Paul would have increased upward of $10,000,000, to an amount in excess of $29,000,000. The result would have been to increase the percentage return on book investment from 2.59 to 4.02. Such an increase thus dealt with would have increased the net operating income of all the carriers in the Western group earning less than 5¾ per cent. in degrees varying according to their need as reflected by the total group deficit which each line suffered."

To illustrate this point the receivers cite that the net railway operating income of the Chicago & Northwestern would have increased from approximately $16,780,000 to $22,195,000 increasing the return on investment from 3.36 to 4.50 per cent. The Northern Pacific would have enjoyed an increase of $5,945,000, in round numbers, and a percentage increase of return on investment of from 3.46 to 4.50. All of the carriers, they explain, would have benefited except those already earning more than 5¾ per cent., the amount of benefit in each case depending on carrier need.

This course, they contend, would seemingly be far more beneficial to the carriers of the district as a whole than a plan which allowed a larger increase, but did not distribute it according to need and would also lighten the burden on shippers. In fact the study of the receivers indicates, it is said, that a 5 per cent. increase segregated and distributed in the manner suggested would be more beneficial than a 10 per cent. increase not thus distributed, a large portion of which would go to carriers already enjoying ample return "and which perhaps under the rate-making scheme of the Transportation act are not equitably entitled to any increase."

"While the course suggested," they conclude, "represents a distinct departure from the practice that has heretofore prevailed in rate-making, it would appear that to so segregate and distribute the proceeds of a rate increase would not only be just to carriers and shippers, but would agree with the letter and spirit of rate-making provisions of the Transportation act, which declared the aim to be to obtain revenue essential to the needs of the different carriers without increasing the revenues of others whose returns are ample. A rate increase the proceeds of which would be so dealt with would also seem to agree with the purpose of the rate-making provisions of the Transportation act as they have been interpreted by the courts."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Support for Italian Lira Brings Sharp Rally—Scandinavians Strong—Sterling Up.

Italian lira staged another sharp rally yesterday, the rate moving up to 3.79½ cents, a gross gain of 25 points from the extreme low touched on Thursday. The market was extremely active in the forenoon on heavy buying orders from abroad, and this with some repurchases by previous speculators for the decline accounted for the advance. It was reported that a prominent American bank bough a half-million lire at the day's top price, which was made shortly after midday. Thereafter, activity settled with this appearance of support, and the elimination of the "shorts," and toward the close realizing sales brought a moderate decline from the best price.

French francs were strong, good buying in the forenoon bringing a rate of 4.74 cents. Part of this gain was canceled near the close on profit taking. Sterling added another fraction to the one scored on Thursday, finishing 1/16 cent up at $4.85¾. Belgian, Holland, Spanish and Swiss bills were all buoyant.

Danish and Norwegian exchanges were higher, the former touching a new high at 19.14 cents, an overnight gain of 5 points. The Norwegian unit advanced 2 points to 16.98 cents. Far Eastern and South Americans were irregular.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $58,975,500

State and Municipal Securities Aggregate $32,775,500 and Utilities $13,200,000.

FOREIGN OFFERINGS DROP

Large German Bond Issues, One for Berlin, Will Be Marketed Here Soon, Bankers Say.

New bond offerings this week amounted to $58,975,500, a reduction of $27,067,000 from the total of last week. The largest decrease was in the foreign financing field, which was featured last week by flotation of a $50,000,000 Belgian issue. This week there was only one foreign issue, amounting to $2,000,000, but the flotation of several large foreign issues next week is expected. The offerings by groups of this week and last week follows:

	This Week.	Last Week.
State and municipal	$32,775,500	$10,343,000
Public utility	13,200,000	8,700,000
Miscellaneous	11,000,000	....
Foreign	2,000,000	55,000,000
Industrial	....	12,000,000
Total	$58,975,000	$86,043,000

The State and municipal offerings this week were spread over a wide range, being featured by a $10,000,000 City of Philadelphia issue and one of $7,500,000 by the State of Missouri. The miscellaneous offerings, totaling $11,000,000 this week, were made up of issues by two specialized banking institutions which deal largely in automobile purchase paper.

Both domestic and foreign issues of large size are expected to be offered soon. The National City Company is reported to be working on a $13,000,000 issue, the details of which have not yet been announced. The issue is expected to be either in the industrial or public utility division. Among the foreign offerings to be made soon is a $15,000,000 City of Berlin issue negotiated by Speyer & Co. A $10,000,000 German Land Bank issue is being negotiated by Harris, Forbes & Co., and several other German offerings are being prepared.

Of chief interest in the State and municipal bond market next week will be an issue of $10,000,000 New Jersey highway bonds which will be awarded on Tuesday.

A syndicate composed of Blyth, Witter & Co., Baker, Kellogg & Co., Inc., and Morgan, Livermore & Co. has practically concluded negotiations for the purchase and issuance of $5,000,000 Upper Austria external secured sinking fund 7 per cent. gold bonds due June 1, 1945. The new bonds will represent the province's only external debt.

An issue of $3,000,000 Kansas City, Mo., 4½ per cent. sewer bonds, carrying an average maturity of about twelve years, has been awarded to the Mercantile Trust Company, St. Louis; George H. Burr & Co. and the Chase Securities Corporation on a bid of 103.95. A public offering of the bonds will be made soon.

Blair & Co., Inc.; Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc.; the Equitable Trust Company of New York and Matthews & Co. of Toronto have received the award of $2,000,000 Winnipeg 25-year 4½ per cent. improvement bonds on a bid of 93.91.

S. W. Straus & Co. are offering a new issue of $1,400,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. serial coupon gold bonds of the Reclamation and Building Corporation, Arthur Brisbane, President. The bonds are secured by the land and two commercial buildings, a six-stry patent ramp garage at 102d Street east of Fifth Avenue and a manufacturing and office building in Long Island City.

A syndicate headed by George H. Burr & Co. and including Stranahan, Harris & Oatis and B. J. Van Ingen & Co. has obtained an issue of $1,000,000 City of Seattle, Wash., 4¼ per cent. water bonds, maturing serially from 1931 to 1950. The bonds will be offered for public subscription early next week.

S. W. Straus & Co. are offering an issue of $425,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. sinking fund coupon gold bonds of the Witherbee Court Corporation, secured by the land and an apartment building to be erected at Pelham Manor.

Loans, Investments and Deposits Gain In Member Bank Report as of June 10

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The principal changes in condition of the 733 reporting member banks in leading cities during the week ended June 10, as shown in the statement issued by the Federal Reserve Board, comprise increases of $9,000,000 in loans and discounts, of $18,000,000 in investments, of $27,000,000 in net demand deposits and of $15,000,000 in borrowings from the Federal Reserve Banks.

The New York City banks reported reductions of $35,000,000 in loans and discounts and of $41,000,000 in net demand deposits, together with increases of $7,000,000 in investments and of $24,000,000 in borrowings from the Federal Reserve Bank.

Loans on stocks and bonds went down $9,000,000, decreases of $20,000,000 in the New York district and $4,000,000 in the Boston district being partly offset by increases of $10,000,000 and $6,000,000 in the Minneapolis and Philadelphia districts, respectively. A decline of $13,000,000 in "all other" loans and discounts, largely commercial, in the New York district, was more than offset by increases in the Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago and San Francisco districts.

Investments in United States securities went up $11,000,000 in the New York district and $9,000,000 in the Cleveland district. Holdings of other bonds, stocks and securities show only slight changes in all Federal Reserve districts.

Net demand deposits increased in all districts, except New York and Dallas, which reported reductions of $41,000,000 and $5,000,000, respectively. The largest increases are shown for the following districts: Chicago, $14,000,000; Boston, $12,000,000; Minneapolis, $11,000,000; San Francisco, $10,000,00, and Richmond, $8,000,000.

The principal change in borrowings from the Federal Reserve banks was an increase of $22,000,000 in the New York district.

Car Heating Co. Sells Properties.

The Safety Car Heating and Lighting Company, it was learned yesterday, has disposed of its properties in Jersey City. Neither the purchaser nor the amount involved is known, but it is believed that the company realized something like $1,000,000 profit on the deal. As the properties are adjacent to the entrance of the new Hudson River vehicular tube, it is considered likely that the properties were purchased in connection with that development.

FRANK BURNS QUITS THE BURNS COAL CO.

Program of Expansion to Be Outlined Monday—Victors Will Get Executive Jobs.

Frank L. Burns, who for twenty-two years has been affiliated with the Burns Brothers Coal Company, yesterday tendered his resignation as President and severed all connections with the organization. This announcement was received with surprise in the financial district, in view of the statements issued recently that no friction prevailed between the old and new management of the company. The company was organized about forty years ago by Mr. Burns's father, the late M. F. Burns.

In connection with his action Mr. Burns issued the following statement:

"In view of the election of directors for the coming year at the stockholders' meeting controlled by the Wertheim-Schatzkin group, I have tendered my resignation as President and director of Burns Brothers.

"Regardless of the presence on the new board of men of unquestioned integrity, the elimination of directors who have been associated with the company and its success for many years, and the significant fact that the administration proxies were compelled to cede ten of the seventeen directors to the Wertheim-Schatzkin group, clearly demonstrates that this group will hereafter be the dominating force in control of the company's destiny.

"I have never been and am not in sympathy with the objects and policies of certain leading members of the group now assuming control and am firmly convinced that, in justice to the stockholders, I cannot accept the Presidency tendered me for the coming year in association with the administrative personnel to be selected by the Wertheim-Schatzkin group. It is with deep regret, in view of the lifelong association of the Burns family with the company's, that I feel compelled to tender my resignation to the directors and sever all connections with the company."

The Wertheim-Schatzkin group, which won over the management at the postponed annual meeting of stockholders on Thursday, for some time past has been endeavoring to gain control of the coal company, although in their statements to stockholders in soliciting proxies they stated that they had no intention of fighting the management, but would work in harmony with the old executives to build up, as they stated, the business of the company.

It is expected that a program of expansion for Burns Brothers will be agreed upon immediately following the organization meeting of the new Board of Directors on Monday. At this meeting it is expected that both Sanders A. Wertheim and S. M. Schatzkin will be elected to executive positions. Mr. Schatzkin will probably be in charge of finances and expenses and Mr. Wertheim in charge of sales and deliveries. Both Mr. Schatzkin and Mr. Wertheim are expected to sever their present business connections in order to give all their time to the affairs of the Burns Brothers organization.

Mr. Wertheim is President of two coal companies. The Schatzkin interests contemplated the sale of these properties to Burns Brothers at a price to be fixed by the Board of Directors. It was reported yesterday, however, that the companies, the Wyoming Valley Coal Company and the Steamship Fuel Corporation, will be either sold to Burns Brothers or leased to the Burns organization with an option of purchase.

GOLD IN REICHSBANK INCREASES $5,800,000

$142,389,446 Added to Reserve Since April—Circulation Also Reduced During Week.

BERLIN, June 19.—The Reichsbank reports as of June 15, shows the following changes in reichsmarks:

Gold and bullion	increased	24,353,000
Deposits abroad	increased	23,558,000
Reserve in foreign currencies	increased	8,118,000
Bills of exchange and checks	decreased	119,683,000
Silver and other coins	increased	3,896,000

Notes in circulation	decreased	125,152,000
Other maturing obligations	increased	38,804,000
Loans on Rentenbank	decreased	3,446,000

Total gold holdings are now 1,040,194,000 reichsmarks.

	1925.	1924.	1923.
June 15	1,040,194	448,003,000	756,948
June 6	1,015,841	441,910	756,914

May 23	1,015,292	441,872	832,915
May 15	1,014,757	441,851	841,911
	1924.	1923.	1922.
April 30	441,877*	919,909	1,009,867

*Lowest point since the war.

The addition to the bank's gold reserve since last year's low point of April has now amounted to 598,317,000 gold marks, or $142,389,446. When the war began the bank's gold holdings were 1,253,199,000 gold marks. They were increased to 2,537,780,000 on Dec. 30, 1916, which was the high point in its history.

Following is the Reichsbank's outstanding note circulation in reichsmark denominations:

	1925.	1924.
June 6	2,488,085,000	954,251,130
May 30	2,608,797,000	926,875,545
May 15	2,260,525,000	763,927,265

The note circulation of 2,608,797,000 as reported on May 30, reckoned in gold value, was the highest reached since the war. It stood at 2,406,580,000 marks on July 31, 1914, when the war began, and reached 5,045,899,000 at the end of 1914, when the mark was still [illegible] above 22 cents.

TO DEFINE PRINTING TERMS.

Federal Trade Board Calls in Engraving and Embossing Experts.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP).—Representatives of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Washington and of the printing, steel die and copper plate engraving industries were called into conference today by the Federal Trade Commission to get their views as to the meaning of the words "engraving" and "embossing."

The Commission has issued complaints against concerns advertising relief printing as engraving and embossing, and brought responses contending that the words had been properly used. On the basis of today's discussion the Commission planned to determine the proper use of the words for its guidance in similar cases in the future.

Associated Gas & Electric Sends Stockholders a Letter Telling of Growth.

The Associated Gas and Electric Company has issued a letter to stockholders outlining the financial and physical position of the company and its subsidiaries prior to the forthcoming annual report and audit. The letter points out that in many respects the company's position "is hardly recognizable" from the standpoint of growth "as compared with the situation which existed when the present management took charge during the latter part of the year 1921." Some of the phases of the progress are mentioned as follows:

"The consolidated book value of the properties at Jan. 1, 1922, was $5,473,190, whereas the cost of replacing all properties operated at June 1, 1925, has been appraised at more than $75,000,000.

"At Jan. 1, 1922, the properties served slightly more than 29,000 electric and gas customers in communities in four States, serving an aggregate population of 132,100, whereas at June 1, 1925, the properties served more than 200,000 consumers of electricity, gas or water in more than 400 communities in the nine States of New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont, Ohio, New Hampshire, Maine, Kentucky and Tennessee, as well as the City of Manila, P. I., serving an aggregate population of more than 1,000,000.

"At Jan. 1, 1922, the combined generating capacity of the power plants was 4,150 kilowatts, with 208 miles of high-tension transmission lines, whereas at the present time the combined generating capacity is 112,000 kilowatts, with 1,268 miles of transmission lines.

"The output of electricity of the properties operated during the calendar year 1921 was 12,622,930 kilowatt hours, while for the year 1924 the output of the properties now operated was 236,079,519 kilowatt hours, and ample capacity for substantially increased output remains."

On Jan. 1, 1922, the letter also says, the number of individual stockholders was approximately 200. In February, 1924, it had grown to 4,000, while at present there are more than 14,000, of whom more than 7,000 each hold ten shares or less of the company's stocks. The bonded debt has been from 61 per cent. of the total capitalization of the company in 1922 to 35 per cent. in 1925, inclusive of the $14,000,000 of secured gold bonds recently sold.

RUTLEY'S, INC., STOCK SALE.

Bankers Disposing of 30,000 Shares at $12.75 Privately.

Bankers representing Rutley's, Inc., a company recently organized to operate a chain of restaurants, announced yesterday that a block of the company's Class A stock is being sold privately at $12.75 a share. The block consists of 30,000 shares of the authorized capital of 100,000 shares of no par value.

Arthur David, formerly of the Frank G. Shattuck Company, is President of the corporation, and Edwin H. Baker of Clark Williams & Co. is Secretary and Treasurer. A. C. Robjent of Robjent, Maynard & Co. is Chairman of the Board of Directors. The bankers representing the company are Clark Williams & Co. and Robjent, Maynard & Co.

The company has a unique financial structure, according to the statement issued by the bankers yesterday. The statement says provision is made so that the actual management of the company can in time acquire full ownership, but pending that time, control and ownership will rest solely with the stockholders who have financed the corporation.

For the five months ended May 31, gross was $5,097,547, against $5,027,896 last year, and balance after charges $760,105, against $735,582.

Telautograph's May Profit.

The Telautograph Corporation reported yesterday a net profit in May of $15,419, after interest, but before Federal taxes, as against $9,127 in May, 1924, and $74,468 for five months, compared with $44,553 in the same period last year.

45,381,000 ACRES PLANTED TO COTTON

Largest Area Given Over to Product in Nation's History, Says Trade Journal.

Crop Is Well Advanced Everywhere Except in Texas—Conditions Are Seen as Favorable.

A total of 45,381,000 acres has been planted to cotton in the current year, the largest acreage planted to this product in the history of the country, according to an estimate compiled by The Commercial and Financial Chronicle, issued today. The total represents a gain of 2,740,000 acres, or 6 per cent., compared with the revised figures covering the acreage planted to cotton last year.

The estimate of The Chronicle for the current year, compared with the area planted, picked and the production in bales for previous years follows:

Year.	—Acreage.— Planted. Acres.	Picked. Acres.	Av. Yld. Per Acre Lbs.	Production (Census). 500 lb. Bales.
1910	33,418,000	32,403,000	170.7	11,608,616
1911	36,681,000	36,045,000	207.7	15,692,701
1912	34,766,000	34,283,000	190.9	13,703,421
1913	37,458,000	37,089,000	182.0	14,156,486
1914	37,406,000	36,832,000	209.2	16,134,930
1915	32,107,000	31,412,000	170.3	11,191,820
1916	36,052,000	34,985,000	156.6	11,449,930
1917	34,925,000	33,841,000	159.7	11,302,375
1918	37,207,000	36,008,000	159.6	12,040,532
1919	35,133,000	33,566,000	161.5	11,420,763
1920	37,043,000	35,878,000	178.4	13,439,603
1921	31,678,000	30,509,000	124.5	7,953,641
1922	34,016,000	33,036,000	141.3	9,762,069
1923	38,709,000	37,130,000	130.6	10,128,478
1925	45,381,000	......	......	......

With reference to the outlook for the crop for the current year, the Chronicle states that "everything will depend, as in other years, upon weather conditions from now on. And on that point one man's opinion or guess is as good as another's. The crop is well advanced everywhere except in Texas and starts under extremely favorable conditions—conditions rarely equaled in the past. This is a decided advantage, but it is conceivable that it might all be lost under the trying weather of July and August."

AUTO MERGER IS DENIED.

Briggs, Packard and Hudson Officials Say Report Is Untrue.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, June 19.—Executives of the Briggs Manufacturing Company, the Packard Motor Car Company and the Hudson Motor Car Company all denied knowledge of a proposed merger referred to in New York dispatches today, and in their denials were emphatic. H. W. Griffith, Secretary of the Briggs Manufacturing Company, said:

"I can be very positive in saying no consolidation or merger is contemplated. If there were any such proposal I would know of it, and I know of none."

E. F. Roberts, Packard Vice President, said:

"I heard rumors to that effect, but laughed at them. I know of no proposed merger. Rumors are heard every day, but they don't mean very much."

Hudson Motor Car Company officials were equally emphatic in denying the reported merger.

HOLLINGSHEAD CO. STOCK.

12,000 Shares of Preferred Will Be Put on Market Next Week.

Public offering of a block of 12,000 shares of the $7 dividend series preferred stock of the R. M. Hollingshead Company, manufacturers of Whiz products for automobiles and household use, will be made next week by John Nickerson & Co. Each share of preferred stock will carry with it a bonus of one share of Class A common stock. Proceeds of the new financing will be used to provide additional branches and warehouses throughout the country.

The company was recently recapitalized, and now has an authorized issue of 50,000 shares of preferred stock, 275,000 shares of Class A common stock, and 25,000 shares of Class B common stock. The A stock has no voting power.

GALVESTON-HOUSTON ELECTRIC COMPANY,
By HENRY T. GRAHAM, Treasurer.

FRANK BURNS QUITS THE BURNS COAL CO.

Program of Expansion to Be Outlined Monday—Victors Will Get Executive Jobs.

Frank L. Burns, who for twenty-two years has been affiliated with the Burns Brothers Coal Company, yesterday tendered his resignation as President and severed all connections with the organization. This announcement was received with surprise in the financial district, in view of the statements issued recently that no friction prevailed between the old and new management of the company. The company was organized about forty years ago by Mr. Burns's father, the late M. F. Burns.

In connection with his action Mr. Burns issued the following statement:

"In view of the election of directors for the coming year at the stockholders' meeting controlled by the Wertheim-Schatzkin group, I have tendered my resignation as President and director of Burns Brothers.

"Regardless of the presence on the new board of men of unquestioned integrity, the elimination of directors who have been associated with the company and its success for many years, and the significant fact that the administration proxies were compelled to cede ten of the seventeen directors to the Wertheim-Schatzkin group, clearly demonstrates that this group will hereafter be the dominating force in control of the company's destiny.

"I have never been and am not in sympathy with the objects and policies of certain leading members of the group now assuming control and am firmly convinced that, in justice to the stockholders, I cannot accept the Presidency tendered me for the coming year in association with the administrative personnel to be selected by the Wertheim-Schatzkin group. It is with deep regret, in view of the lifelong association of the Burns family with the company, that I feel compelled to tender my resignation to the directors and sever all connections with the company."

The Wertheim-Schatzkin group, which won over the management at the postponed annual meeting of stockholders on Thursday, for some time past has been endeavoring to gain control of the coal company, although in their statements to stockholders in soliciting proxies they stated that they had no intention of fighting the management, but would work in harmony with the old executives to build up, as they stated, the business of the company.

It is expected that a program of expansion for Burns Brothers will be agreed upon immediately following the organization meeting of the new Board of Directors on Monday. At this meeting it is expected that both Sanders A. Wertheim and S. M. Schatzkin will be elected to executive positions. Mr. Schatzkin will probably be in charge of costs and expenses and Mr. Wertheim in charge of sales and deliveries. Both Mr. Schatzkin and Mr. Wertheim are expected to sever their present business connections in order to give all their time to the affairs of the Burns Brothers organization.

Mr. Wertheim is President of two coal companies. The Schatzkin interests contemplated the sale of these properties to Burns Brothers at a price to be fixed by the Board of Directors. It was reported yesterday, however, that these companies, the Wyoming Valley Coal Company and the Steamship Fuel Corporation, will be either sold to Burns Brothers or leased to the Burns organization with an option of purchase.

GOLD IN REICHSBANK INCREASES $5,800,000

BERLIN, June 19.—The Reichsbank reports as of June 15, shows the following changes in reichsmarks:

Deposits abroad	increased	23,558,000
Bills of exchange and checks	decreased	119,683,000
Notes and other banks	increased	6,860,000
Advances	increased	4,641,000
Investments	increased	149,900
Notes in circulation	decreased	125,152,000
Other maturing obligations	increased	38,804,000

Total gold holdings are now 1,040,194,000 reichsmarks.

	1925.	1924.	1923.
June 15	1,040,194	448,063,000	756,913
June 6	1,015,841	441,910	756,914
May 30	1,015,661	441,913	757,900
May 23	1,015,292	441,872	832,915
May 15	1,014,757	441,851	841,911
	1924.	1923.	1922.

*Lowest point since the war.

The addition to the bank's gold reserve since last year's low point of April has now amounted to 598,317,000 gold marks, or $142,389,446. When the war began the bank's gold holdings were 1,253,199,000 gold marks. They were increased to 2,537,780,000 on Dec. 30, 1916, which was the high point in its history.

Following is the Reichsbank's outstanding note circulation in reichsmark denominations:

	1925.	1924.
June 15	2,362,933,000	923,584,983
June 6	2,488,085,000	954,251,139
May 30	2,608,797,000	926,875,545
May 15	2,269,525,000	768,927,265

The note circulation of 2,608,797,000 marks reported on May 30, reckoned in gold value, was the highest reached since the war. It stood at 2,406,580,000 marks on July 31, 1914, when the war began, and reached 5,045,899,000 at the end of 1914, when the mark was still quoted above 22 cents.

TO DEFINE PRINTING TERMS.

Federal Trade Board Calls In Engraving and Embossing Experts.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP).—Representatives of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Washington and of the raised printing, steel die and copper plate engraving industries were called into conference today by the Federal Trade Commission to get their views as to the meaning of the words "engraving" and "embossing."

The commission has issued complaints against concerns advertising relief printing as engraving and embossing, which brought responses contending that the words had been properly used. On the basis of today's discussion the commission planned to determine the meaning of the words for its guidance in similar cases in the future.

Associated Gas & Electric Sends Stockholders a Letter Telling of Growth.

The Associated Gas and Electric Company has issued a letter to stockholders outlining the financial and physical position of the company and its subsidiaries prior to the forthcoming annual report and audit. The letter points out that in many respects the company's position "is hardly recognizable" from the standpoint of growth "as compared with the situation which existed when the present management took charge during the latter part of the year 1921." Some of the phases of the progress are mentioned as follows:

"The consolidated book value of the properties at Jan. 1, 1922, was $5,473,190, whereas the cost of replacing all properties operated at June 1, 1925, has been appraised at more than $75,000,000.

"At Jan. 1, 1922, the properties served slightly more than 29,000 electric and gas customers in communities in four States, serving an aggregate population of 132,100, whereas at June 1, 1925, the properties served more than 200,000 consumers of electricity, gas or water in more than 400 communities in the nine States of New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont, Ohio, New Hampshire, Maine, Kentucky and Tennessee, as well as the City of Manila, P. I., serving an aggregate population of more than 1,000,000.

"At Jan. 1, 1922, the combined generating capacity of the power plants was 6,150 kilowatts, with 208 miles of high-tension transmission lines, whereas at the present time the combined generating capacity is 112,000 kilowatts, with 1,268 miles of transmission lines.

"The output of electricity of the properties operated during the calendar year 1921 was 12,622,930 kilowatt hours, while for the year 1924 the output of the properties now operated was 236,079,519 kilowatt hours, and ample capacity for substantially increased output remains."

On Jan. 1, 1922, the letter also says, the number of individual stockholders was approximately 200. In February, 1924, it had grown to 4,000, while at present there are more than 14,000, of whom more than 7,000 each hold ten shares or less of the company's stocks. The bonded debt has been from 61 per cent. of the total capitalization of the company in 1922 to 35 per cent. in 1925, inclusive of the $14,000,000 of secured gold bonds recently sold.

RUTLEY'S, INC., STOCK SALE.

Bankers Disposing of 30,000 Shares at $12.75 Privately.

Bankers representing Rutley's, Inc., a company recently organized to operate a chain of restaurants, announced yesterday that a block of the company's Class A stock is being sold privately at $12.75 a share. The block consists of 30,000 shares of the authorized capital of 100,000 shares of no par value.

Arthur David, formerly of the Frank G. Shattuck Company, is President of the corporation, and Edwin H. Eaker of Clark Williams & Co. is Secretary and Treasurer. A. C. Robjent of Robjent, Maynard & Co. is Chairman of the Board of Directors. The bankers representing the company are Clark Williams & Co. and Robjent, Maynard & Co.

The company has a unique financial structure, according to the statement issued by the bankers yesterday. The statement says provision is made so that the actual management of the company can in time acquire full ownership, but pending that time, control and ownership will rest solely with the stockholders who have financed the corporation.

3 NEW FIRMS ON EXCHANGE.

For the five months ended May 31, gross was $5,097,547, against $5,027,896 last year, and balance after charges $760,105, against $735,582.

Telautograph's May Profit.

The Telautograph Corporation reported yesterday a net profit in May of $15,419, after interest, but before Federal taxes, as against $9,127 in May, 1924, and $74,468 for five months, compared with $44,553 in the same period last year.

Largest Area Given Over to Product in Nation's History, Says Trade Journal.

Crop Is Well Advanced Everywhere Except in Texas—Conditions Are Seen as Favorable.

A total of 45,381,000 acres has been planted to cotton in the current year, the largest acreage planted to this product in the history of the country, according to an estimate compiled by The Commercial and Financial Chronicle, issued today. The total represents a gain of 2,740,000 acres, or 6 per cent., compared with the revised figures covering the acreage planted to cotton last year.

The estimate of The Chronicle for the current year, compared with the area planted, picked and the production in bales for previous years follows:

With reference to the outlook for the crop for the current year, the Chronicle states that "everything will depend, as in other years, upon weather conditions from now on. And on that point one man's opinion or guess is as good as another's. The crop is well advanced everywhere except in Texas and starts under extremely favorable conditions—conditions rarely equaled in the past. This is a decided advantage, but it is conceivable that it might all be lost under the trying weather of July and August."

AUTO MERGER IS DENIED.

Briggs, Packard and Hudson Officials Say Report Is Untrue.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, June 19.—Executives of the Driggs Manufacturing Company, the Packard Motor Car Company and the Hudson Motor Car Company all denied knowledge of a proposed merger referred to in New York dispatches today, and in their denials were emphatic. H. W. Griffith, Secretary of the Briggs Manufacturing Company, said:

"I can be very positive in saying no consolidation or merger is contemplated. If there were any such proposal I would know of it, and I know of none."

E. F. Roberts, Packard Vice President, said:

"I heard rumors to that effect, but laughed at them. I know of no proposed merger. Rumors are heard every day, but they don't mean very much."

Hudson Motor Car Company officials were equally emphatic in denying the reported merger.

HOLLINGSHEAD CO. STOCK.

12,000 Shares of Preferred Will Be Put on Market Next Week.

Public offering of a block of 12,000 shares of the $7 dividend series preferred stock of the R. M. SHOWERS PUT CHECK ON COTTON TRADING Setback of $3 a Bale From High Levels of the Week Results—Loss Is 21 to 30 Points.

ESTIMATE ACREAGE GAIN

Financial Chronicle Places Increase at 6 Per Cent., With a Total of 45,381,000 Acres, Largest on Record.

Showers in parts of Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas, together with active July liquidation, had a quieting effect on the cotton market yesterday. Instead of broadening, general buying contracted in most directions and caused a setback of $3 a bale from high levels of the week. Weakness in the July position in New Orleans and a loss in the premium over New York to only six points at the close of the session reflected the extent of pre-notice day liquidation on both exchanges. While houses with Southern wire connections sold steadily, other interests covered blocks of July against sales of later months. Final quotations showed a loss of twenty-one to thirty points.

The annual crop report of The Financial Chronicle estimated the increase in area planted to cotton at 6 per cent., with a total of 45,381,000 acres. This is not only the largest on record but the start of the crop is regarded as the best in years. According to this summary, the crop is well advanced everywhere except in Texas, and starts under conditions rarely equaled in the past. The crop is far in advance of the usual season, with unique absence of overflows or other surroundings to interfere with planting operations. The increase in Texas is placed at 3.5 per cent., in North Carolina 5 per cent., in Oklahoma 12 per cent. and in Georgia 13 per cent. over last season, based on the Government revised acreage figures of 42,641,000 for 1924.

Following the sharp upturn of the previous day, early trading reflected the absence of aggressive buying. After the execution of a few overnight selling orders, strength in Liverpool brought enough arbitrage demand to cause a 10-point rally when New Orleans began to supply the local market with contracts. Several stations west of the river reported precipitation of one-quarter to nearly an inch, and the failure of commission house interests to follow up Thursday's buying with additional purchases caused reselling by local operators. From 23.45 October broke sharply a quarter of a cent. Spot interests continued the purchase of October against the sale of January, but a steady loss in the July premium in New Orleans influenced the course of prices. At times the spread between the two markets was reduced to less than 10 points, compared with 75 points last week. Predictions of showers in West Texas for today and private reports that it was raining in parts of Oklahoma and Arkansas had a quieting effect on the market, and cotton appeared for sale on all recoveries. July in New Orleans lost half a cent on the day, closing at the bottom.

Week-end figures showed 43,000 bales in sight, against 48,000 last year, making 14,390,000 for the season, compared with 10,964,000 a year ago. Spinners took 191,000, against 99,000 last year, making 13,463,000 for the season, compared with 10,480,000 a year ago. The visible supply decreased 115,000, compared with 50,000 last year, leaving the world's supply of American cotton 1,879,000, against 1,353,000 a year ago.

WOOL MARKET STEADIER.

Buying More Active in Western Trade.

BOSTON, June 19 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The demand for wool continues steady in the local market and prices continue to harden for practically all descriptions, even foreign crossbreds commencing to find a market to a moderate extent once more. The buying in the West, however, is the keenest of anywhere, and prices there are above the parity of Boston. Sales in San Angelo, Texas, this week have been fully up to the level of Kerrville last week, good twelve months' wools fetching $1.25, clean basis, while eight months' wools have brought about $1.12, clean basis, landed Boston.

"The situation at the mills seems to improve slowly, even among the worsted mills, while topmakers and spinners also report a little better business."

SEEKS $15,000,000 LOAN.

Berlin Approves Move to Extend Subways and Power Plants.

BERLIN, June 19 (AP).—The City Council today approved negotiations for a $15,000,000 American loan to be used for the expansion of electrical power plants and for the extension of the subway system. The loan will be made at 7 per cent.

At the office of Speyer & Co., it was confirmed yesterday that the firm had been conducting negotiations on behalf of a New York banking group, for a $15,000,000 City of Berlin loan, and an early definite conclusion is expected. Further details are not available at this time.

MOHAWK VALLEY MEETING.

Utility Holding Co. to Vote July 2 on Change in Stock Structure.

The Mohawk Valley Company, holding company for the Rochester Gas and Electric Corporation, has issued a letter to stockholders calling a meeting for July 2 at Rochester, to vote on a proposal to change the 75,000 shares of stock with a par value of $100 into 750,000 shares without par value.

The stockholders also will be asked to approve moving the principal office from Utica to Rochester. The New York Central Railroad Company is a large stockholder.

Public Service to Issue Stock.

The Public Service Electric and Gas Company, subsidiary of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, has received the approval of the New Jersey authorities for the issuance of 750,000 shares of common stock at $10 a share. This stock, according to the readjustment plan of the Public Service Corporation whereby the Public Service Electric and Gas Company was formed, will be held by the Public Service Corporation.

DRY GOODS KEEPS ITS LEAD.

Trade of the Week Still Better Than That of Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 19.—Marshal Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods maintained about the same level as last week and exceeded by a considerable margin last year's volume for the corresponding week.

"Road sales were slightly greater than the total recorded a week ago and shows a good increase over the figure of the same week last year.

"There were more customers in the market than during the corresponding period in 1924.

"Collections were about the same as last year during the same period.

"Indications show very definitely that an exceptionally larger number of merchants plan to be in the market next week to attend the pre-inventory sale Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 22, 23 and 24."

INTERNATIONAL CEMENT.

Stockholders Vote Stock Increase for Buying More Properties.

Stockholders of the International Cement Corporation held a special meeting yesterday and approved plans to increase the authorized capital stock, enabling the company to acquire additional properties. The approved increase in the preferred was from 50,000 to 150,000 shares of $100 par value, and in the common from 400,000 to 600,000 shares, without par value.

The company issued a statement saying: "The purchase of the Indiana Portland Cement Company properties located near Indianapolis was consummated early this week. It was announced that negotiations had not yet been completed for the other properties, but it was hoped that these would be completed by the first of July, and announcement would be made at that time.

"If the additional properties now under consideration are purchased, it is proposed to issue approximately 67,500 additional shares of preferred stock. In the meantime 100,000 additional shares of common stock authorized, are to be offered pro rata to common stockholders of record at the close of business June 23, 1925, on the basis of one new share for every four shares now outstanding, at the rate of $50 per share. Warrants covering rights will be mailed as soon as possible after June 23, 1925.

"Authority was also given to the directors to reserve 20,000 shares of common stock for sale to officers and employes of the corporation, at the discretion of the board, at not less than $50 per share."

AUSTRIANS IN AGREEMENT.

Federal and Provincial Officials Compromise on Financial Reforms.

A compromise has been reached between the Austrian Federal Government and the provinces concerning the financial and administrative reforms recommended by the League of Nations, according to advices received by C. B. Richard & Co. from their representatives in Vienna. The points of agreement are embodied in a number of bills laid before Parliament by the Cabinet.

The coexistence of Federal and autonomous administrations in the provinces is abolished, the supervision of the Central Auditing Department is extended to the provincial Treasuries and the provincial Diets are deprived, up to the end of 1930, of their right to carry out financial legislation in the face of a veto from the Federal Government. On the other hand certain matters which the Constitution transferred in principle to the provinces are now to pass effectively into their control. Improvements in efficiency and economy are expected to result from the changes.

MORGAN GETS OIL STOCK.

Banking Firm Exercises $40 Option on Marland Co's. Shares.

J. P. Morgan & Co. have taken over part of the stock of the Marland Oil Company, in connection with their option to acquire 235,000 shares of the company's treasury stock at $40 a share. Although no official information covering the transaction was obtainable yesterday, it was learned from responsible sources that at least a third of the 235,000 shares, or between 78,000 and 80,000 shares, had been taken over by the banking firm.

Completion of the transaction makes a total of about 480,000 shares of Marland stock acquired by the Morgan firm during the last two years. In 1923 the bankers acquired a block of 300,000 shares at $30 a share. Early last year they obtained an option on another 335,000 shares at $40 to run for one year. Under this the firm took up 100,000 shares early this year, and obtained an option on the remaining 235,000 shares to Aug. 10. Part of this option was exercised under the latest transaction.

RIOTS IN NITRATE FIELDS.

Strikes in Chile Will Delay Any Cut in Prices, Says Trade Paper.

Serious labor troubles exist in the nitrate of soda industry in Chile, according to The Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter. Further strikes at the ports and riots on the pampas took place early this month. In the Taracapa district these disturbances involved some loss of life among the workers at the Corunai Felisa and Ponte Vedra stations, which have been seized by Communists. Martial law has been declared in the provinces of Taracapa and Antofagasta.

Thus far, says The Reporter, these difficulties have not been reflected in higher prices for nitrate, but producers have indicated that the generally unsettled conditions of their labor market has resulted in increasing production costs, and it was believed that this factor would tend to delay any reduction in prices.

Fisher Body Ohio Co. Earnings.

The Fisher Body Ohio Company, controlled by the Fisher Body Corporation, reported yesterday net profit of $1,951,631 for the year ended April 30, equal to $12.47 a share on the common stock after preferred dividends. In the year before, the company reported net profit of $4,630,039, equal to $38.74 a common share after preferred payments.

Seneca Copper Receivership.

The receivership of the Seneca Copper Company is to be lifted soon, the financial district heard yesterday. It is reported that only a few details remain to be settled, and that application will be made soon to the New York Stock Exchange for permission to list the stock of the new company.

Rail Chiefs Will Meet Sept. 17.

The next regular monthly meeting of the Eastern Railroad Presidents' Conference, representing all the railroads east of the Mississippi River and north of the Ohio, will be held Thursday, September 17. It has been decided to hold no sessions in July and August.

INDUSTRIES SHOW GAIN DURING WEEK

Trade Reports Indicate Nation's Business Is Better Than This Time Last Year.

RETAIL SALES KEEP ACTIVE

Future Conditions Depend Upon Crop Results, Says Review—Farmers Good Buyers.

Although curtailment of operations is reported in some lines of business, due to seasonal conditions, gains have been reported in some industries during the past week, and many lines report that the volume of business continues to hold up, according to the weekly trade reports. Dun's Review, in its summary, says unsatisfactory phases, however, are not absent, but that business as a whole is more stable and more active than a year ago, and that sentiment is better. Much in the future, it is added, will depend upon crop results, and more encouraging prospects for wheat have tended to modify somewhat the recent disappointing Government report.

"A reflection of the strengthened financial position of farmers in the West and Northwest," says the Review, "appears in the increased sales of agricultural implements in those sections, while in most parts of the South they have also been larger. Collections, moreover, have improved, with a considerable liquidation of old indebtedness. Conservative commercial operations remain the rule throughout the country, but frequent purchases for early deliveries make up a heavy aggregate, and the current week's bank clearings outside of New York are 14.2 per cent. in excess of last year's at this time."

Bradstreet's says in part:

"Trade, industry and collections are rather spotted and on the whole present a slightly quieter appearance as they enter the Summer season. Crop reports, too, are more irregular, as the result of advices of a widening area of the South, especially Texas and the Atlantic Coast, noting increased need of rains. Corn and Spring wheat reports, however, are better. The quieting down process in trade and industry, however, does not seem to progress at the speed noted, especially in industry, in the second quarter of 1924, the result being that current statistics of trade volume and industrial movement tend to make better comparisons with a year ago than they did awhile ago, although the quieting down from April and May comes in for notice.

"Retail trade is naturally the most active branch of distribution, but a good volume of filling-in orders is noted by jobbers, and New York and Chicago wholesalers report seasonal goods selling better."

Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Sale.

Negotiations are under way for the joint acquisition of the Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Corporation by the Sterling Products Corporation and the Household Products Corporation.

GASOLINE UP IN KENTUCKY.

Standard Raises Price 1 Cent—Smackover Output Declining.

The Standard Oil Company of Kentucky has advanced the price of gasoline 1 cent a gallon in Kentucky. This advance follows a similar increase announced earlier in the month in other States served by the company.

The output of crude oil in the Smackover field in Arkansas aggregated 211,488 barrels on Thursday, a new low record for the deep sand production since the peak was reached on May 25, when a total yield of 392,800 barrels was reported. Thursday's production represents a drop of 30,000 barrels compared with Wednesday's.

The further sharp decline in output in this field, following the increase reported earlier in the week, was due to the larger number of wells which have ceased producing. According to the latest figures, a total of 130 of the 396 wells completed in the field have gone dead, 61 are on the pump, an increase of 14 since Wednesday, and 28 are showing 75 per cent. or more water, an increase of 7 for the day.

WAR DEBT VIEW CHANGING.

Altschul Foresees More Conciliatory Attitude of Debtor Nations.

Frank Altschul, a partner in the international banking firm of Lazard Frères, who has just returned from Paris, declared yesterday that public opinion in France regarding the war debt was changing and that he would not be surprised to see the appointment of a nonpartisan committee of economists to determine the French financial position. He said this action might lead to definite proposals regarding the war debts of France to other countries.

Mr. Altschul said that French opinion now is that instead of debtor nations explaining their viewpoint to creditor nations, the time is coming when the former will attempt to understand the viewpoint of their creditors.

WILL IMPROVE RAILROAD.

Illinois Central to Expend Large Sum on Subsidiary Line.

The Illinois Central Railroad, it was announced yesterday, will spend several million dollars in improving the lines of the Gulf & Ship Island Railroad in Southern Mississippi, which was recently acquired by purchase.

Formal approval of the purchase was received from the Interstate Commerce Commission last Saturday, with the qualification that the Illinois Central must provide the Fernwood, Columbia & Gulf, a dependent short line, with adequate connections and joint tariffs to keep it on a sustaining basis.

Thyssen Bonds Now Ready.

Dillon, Read & Co. announce that interim receipts for the issue of $12,000,000 August Thyssen Iron and Steel Works (August Thyssen-Hutte Gewerkschaft) and Affiliated Mining and Sales Companies five-year 7 per cent. sinking fund mortgage gold bonds are now exchangeable for definitive bonds at the office of the Equitable Trust Company of New York.

WHEAT RISES AGAIN ON EASTERN BUYING

Strong Houses Absorb the Surplus When the Market Is Put Under Pressure.

OPTIONS GAIN ABOUT 3 CENTS

Corn Prices Are Fluctuating but Oats and Rye Advance With Wheat.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 19.—There was no material pressure on the wheat market except for a brief period early, when scattered liquidation was on in the July, due to the unresponsive cables from abroad, but the surplus in "the pit" was quickly absorbed by strong commission houses with Eastern connections, and prices advanced 3½@4⅛ cents from the bottom and closed at the top, with net gains of 1⅛@2⅝ cents, the latter on October.

The July was under pressure a good part of the day, with scattered longs selling out and getting into the September, and the difference at the last was around 1 cent.

Winnipeg October showed more strength than Chicago and gained 2⅞ cents, with some buying there by spreaders against sales of December at Chicago.

Apprehension of a rust scare in the Spring wheat territory collapsed, as there was no claims of rust damage in the Northwest, but rust in broom grass in Southern Manitoba was reported.

With a Winter wheat yield below actual domestic requirements it would not take much damage in the Northwest to put the United States on a domestic basis, as even with a yield of 675,000,000 bushels as suggested by the recent Murray report, there were only 25,000,000 bushels above the actual American disappearance of the past three years.

Liverpool closed 1¾@2¼d lower on pressure of Australian grain and prospects for large world's shipment. Dry weather was reported from the Continent. Up to a late hour no answer had been received from a large number of cables sent abroad by a local house asking as to the crop conditions.

Export demand continues slow, and there was some No. 2 hard for July, August and September shipment canceled by the Continent.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 767,000 bushels; week ago, 911,000; last year, 889,000. Shipments were 550,000 bushels; week ago, 607,000; last year, 374,000.

Corn was unsettled within a range of 1¾@2¾ cents and closed ¼ cent higher to ¼ cent lower on the old crop deliveries and ¾ cent higher on the December, the latter being demand from commission houses under 90 cents.

Temperatures of 100 were reported in Oklahoma again, with scattered showers in parts of that State, while Texas remains dry and hot. Eastern cash demand was very slow, and the spot basis easier.

Primary arrivals today were 456,000 bushels; week ago, 574,000; last year, 491,000, and shipments, 444,000 bushels; week ago, 237,000; last year, 420,000.

Oats closed ⅛@1⅛ and rye ⅝@1¼ cents higher, both grains advancing in sympathy with wheat.

TRADE BOARD LIMITS CASES.

Will Not Make Inquiries Asked by Only One Congress Branch.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP).—The Federal Trade Commission hereafter will decline because of limitation of funds to conduct investigations requested by a single branch of Congress unless the investigation is directly related to violations of the anti-trust laws.

Commissioners Nugent and Thompson, who have fought recent changes in the commission's procedure, dissent from the new policy.

Under the law the commission is required to make investigations requested in resolutions concurred in by both houses of Congress.

Opens Phone Line to Charleston.

The New York Telephone Company has opened a new 679-mile direct line from New York to Charleston, W. Va., to provide greater and faster communication between these points. There has been a steady increase in long-distance circuits between important points within late years, and at the present time about 366,500 long-distance telephone calls are made from New York City daily.

Universal Pictures Statement.

Preliminary figures of Universal Pictures Company, Inc., indicate that the company's earnings for the first six months of the fiscal year will equal $7 a share earned on the common stock, against $5.62 a share in 1924, according to a statement issued yesterday. Final figures will be available next week.

RUBBER UP ON BRISK BUYING

Factory Demand Boosts Spot Price of Crude a Cent.

There was further impetus to the crude rubber market yesterday on factory demand, spot prices advancing on an average of 1 cent per pound, with proportionate gains in the delivery months. Holders maintained a firm position, which accounted for sharp bidding by the trade.

Discussion among dealers of the proposed rubber exchange brought out a mixed opinion on this plan. There were some who were outspoken in their approval, while in other quarters the proposition did not meet with favor.

Ribbed smoked sheets, spot, were quoted at 75½ cents, with June at 75 cents, and July at 74¾ cents. Brown crêpe thin clean was 68 cents for spot and June. First latex crêpe was quoted at 74 cents for spot and June, with amber No. 3, and fine up-river para showing slight improvement over Thursday.

London market was strong, coming over here at 36¾d, a gain of ¼d over previous day.

Durant Production Increases.

Durant Motors, Inc., during the first five months of 1925 shipped 55,035 cars and trucks, which compares with 65,000 in the corresponding period of 1924.

LIVERPOOL'S COTTON WEEK.

Detroit Gas Co. Wins Rate Case.

The Supreme Court of Michigan has overruled a motion by several customers of the Detroit Gas Company, a subsidiary of the American Light and Traction Company, for a rehearing in an appeal from the decision of the Supreme Court declaring the newly established rates for gas legal. This ends the case and establishes the legality of the increased charge.

CUTS NEWSPRINT PRICE.

Canadian Company's Action Causes Some Surprise.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, June 19.—Following rumors for two weeks as to the probable decision of manufacturers on the price of newsprint the Belgo-Canadian Paper Company announced a cut from $70 to $65 a ton, to take effect on Jan. 1.

This would seem to substantiate the reports a few days ago, on the occasion of a meeting here of newsprint manufacturers, that there would be no price change for the balance of the year.

There is speculation, however, over the anouncement of a new price six months ahead, as such an action has no precedent here. Implying as it does the ability to look ahead half a year, and to see what conditions will be then, and carrying with it an influence which is not calculated to help the spot market even during the last half of this year, the announcement is called mystifying.

MARINES FOR SWAMPSCOTT.

Picked Squad Leaves Philadelphia Navy Yard.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19 (AP).—Forty-two picked marines left the navy yard tonight for Swampscott, Mass., to become part of President Coolidge's guard at the Summer "White House." They are due in Swampscott tomorrow.

The marines, each of whom is 5 feet 10 inches tall, or over, received new equipment to use during their stay at Swampscott. While there they will be attached to the marine detachment now aboard the President's yacht, the Mayflower.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Changes, Though Numerous, Were Not Specially Significant.

For the first time in many months Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices showed an excess of advances over declines this week for the second week in succession. The list, as a whole, showed 57 revisions, against 58 last week. Then there were 33 advances and 25 declines, while this week the respective figures were 32 and 27. A large proportion of the revisions were seen in the foodstuffs, which was just the reverse of last week's changes.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

†Nominal.

Of the twenty changes in the foods, eleven were advances, although there were none in the local market for provisions. Middle Western lard and all of the listed grades of flour declined. Spring patent was off 35 cents a barrel, while the declines in Winter soft straight and the family grade of fancy Minnesota flours were 10 and 60 cents a barrel respectively. At Chicago the provisions list showed a decline in live steers and a rise in live hogs, live sheep, mess pork and short ribs.

Three of the four changes seen in the dairy products this week were upward. Extra creamery butter dropped three-fourths of a cent a pound, while special held cheese went up half a cent. Nearby fancy eggs gained 2 cents a dozen during the week, but the rise in fresh-gathered "firsts" was only fractional.

Fresh and dried fruits showed no changes either way, so far as those contained in the list were concerned. Choice red kidney beans were higher, and choice Blue Rose rice also went up. Potatoes moved up 50 cents a barrel, but a break of a dollar a bag was seen in rutabaga turnips.

For the first time in many weeks the beverage lists were bare of changes either way. The spices showed only declines in nutmegs and white Singapore pepper. Ninety-six-test raw sugar was higher, but there was no corresponding change in fine granulated. The advances in the grains this week were confined to wheat and malting barley, with corn, oats and rye showing the declines. Leathers were without change in the list, while the only revision in the hides was a rise in No. 1 extremes. Tallow was higher.

Lumber showed no revisions, and in the building materials the only change was a rise in common Hudson River brick. Changes in the metals were few. They consisted of advances in antimony, copper and tin and declines in No. 28 black sheets and lead. Ten advances were seen in the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils, against five declines. Six of the advances were seen in the oils. Other features were few. A rise in turpentine completed the revisions in the naval stores.

Japanese raw silk advanced and is now substantially higher than at this time a year ago. Chinese silk declined. The best Brazilian crude rubber did not change, but a decline was seen in the best plantation rubber. Hemp was cheaper. In the textiles the demand for silks and dress cottons continued to be a feature. Prices on unfinished cottons grew firmer as the week advanced. Burlaps, on the other hand, eased off quite a little, due partly to lack of consuming demand and partly to the uncertainty of both buyers and sellers of the course of the market in the immediate future.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Fall opening of Jacob Rapoport & Co. and the premier exhibit of Richard J. Hickson fashions will take place on Tuesday of next week at 498 Seventh Avenue.

C. H. Gilman, formerly an assistant department manager for the Mills & Gibb Corporation, has been admitted to partnership in W. E. McKay & Co., Inc., importers and converters of cotton goods at 440 Fourth Avenue. He has been elected Treasurer of the corporation and will be associated with Mr. McKay in handling the converting end of the business.

B. A. Wechsler, formerly Treasurer of the Smartline Garmen Company, Inc., has reorganized and is again doing business under that name at 151 West Twenty-eighth Street. The company specializes in coats for stout women and little misses.

MOTORISTS TO MEET.

American Automobile Congress Will Be Held on June 29 and 30.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 19.—The largest meeting of motorists ever held in the United States is expected here during the Congress of the American Automobile Association, which meets at the Hotel Traymore on Monday and Tuesday, June 29 and 30.

Alex G. Cruikshank, assistant general manager of the nation organizations, has arrived in Atlantic City and states that 90 per cent. of the actively functioning motor clubs of the country will be represented at the gathering. While here Mr. Cruikshank will endeavor to have the Atlantic City Automobile Association enlist under the A. A. A. banner.

WRONG NAME PUBLISHED.

Kenneth Patterson Died 2 Months Before Motor Bureau Charge.

The Bureau of Motor Vehicles has been informed by Mrs. R. C. Patterson of Spring Valley, that the publication of the name of her son Kenneth Patterson in the list of Rockland County citizens whose licenses had been revoked was erroneous.

The reason given for the revocation of young Patterson's license was that he had been found guilty on May 22 of driving an automobile in New York while intoxicated. Kenneth Patterson died in the Post Graduate Hospital on March 29, following an operation. This was nearly two months before the intoxication charge was made.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ......4 per cent. for the best names
Thursday ......4 per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Wide Silks for Fall.

Wide silks have taken very well in the early buying for Fall, silk manufacturers agree. It is possible, they said yesterday, that the later demand will see something approaching a scarcity of these silks, particularly of the novelties. The satin-faced goods, notably satin cantons, lead for Fall and there is held to be no question but this will continue to be the case all through the season. Crêpe satins, flat crêpes and canton crêpes likewise show up very well in the buying already done. Pansy, plum and the wine shades have figured most prominently among the colors.

•*•

June Sales Show Up Well.

Reports coming into the wholesale market indicate that June retail sales are likely to show a substantial improvement over the preceding month and also as compared with the same month last year. The turnover of seasonable merchandise has been very satisfactory in most of the stores, particularly the larger ones. The exceedingly warm weather during much of the month has prompted the purchasing by consumers of garments which they usually buy in July. The good demand at retail has been fully reflected in the wholesale markets, where the approximate end of the Summer season now finds very little stock on hand of any description.

•*•

Accurate Gauging Is Delayed.

Comment has been frequently made during the last week or two that buyers of women's ready-to-wear are more interested in Summer garments than they are in the new Fall lines. To some extent the continued demand at such a late stage has surprised the wholesalers. It has resulted, however, in the effective cleaning up of stocks on hand, with the cutters-up in quite a few instances placing additional orders for silk piece goods. At the same time, it is believed that a broader interest in Fall lines at this period would be of much assistance to the trade. The manufacturers rely on the early buying to give them a basis on which to plan future production and, when this is missing, it means a postponement of such plans in a season which usually comes to an abrupt climax.

Novelty Trend Continues Strong.

Novelties in men's attire, ranging all the way from wide bottom suits, fancy hat bands, highly colored belts and suspenders to freak pajamas and dressing gowns, have had such a favorable reception for the Spring and Summer that it is evident the trade will hardly relinquish these factors in the Fall. If anything, the trend will continue stronger than ever, according to manufacturers, due allowance being made for the change in season. For one thing, it was pointed out, the retailers are far from heavily stocked of this class of merchandise. Their buying of these goods has been light, but what they did buy they are credited with turning over at a satisfactory margin. The latter is always better on a novelty than on a staple for either the manufacturer or the retailer. Moreover, the education of the male consumer to the novelty goods is credited with being greater during the past Spring than in any similar period of the men's wear trade.

Smooth Cloths for Knicker Suits.

Broadening of consumer interest in the four-piece suit has been noted during this season by the leading men's wear retailers. It was said yesterday that probably more men now include this type of suit in their wardrobe than ever before. The suit is filling the dual rôle of a town and sports garment. The knickers provide the essentially sports portion of the suit, as in both fabric and tailoring the bizarre sports aspect has been kept down. For this reason, according to a well-known manufacturer, tweeds and homespuns have been frequently accorded second place for these garments, smooth-surfaced fabrics being preferred. Unfinished worsteds and cheviots are popular, with a marked tendency to stress Glenurquhart plaid designs.

New Style May Bring Them Back.

The return of petticoats to more or less general vogue is presaged by the new styles fostered by Paris for Fall wear, which will bring back the waistline. The disappearance of the straight-line silhouette will no longer make it necessary to have undergarments, as well as outer ones, hung from the shoulders and, as it was this necessity that did so much to bring in the costume slip and force out the petticoat, its removal is expected to bring back the petticoat. Manufacturers of the goods are looking forward to one of the best seasons in some time as a result, and a number of them are working up the most attractive lines that have been seen for years.

Fur Buyers Are Marking Time.

Not much is being done in manufactured furs in this market at the moment, and little real buying is looked for until after the Fourth of July. Road men are either back from their trips for the most part or are on their way back, and the advance guard of out-of-town buyers is not due here yet for a week or more. Analysis of the business done to date shows it to size up very creditably with that of a year ago, especially in long coats. In some sections—New England, for example—early coat sales are reported to have run ahead of 1924. Reports concerning advance sales of short fur jackets have been somewhat conflicting, but it is quite generally agreed that prospects for an active sale of them in the course of the next two or three months are bright.

Gem Demand Is Increasing.

Although there has been no marked improvement in the demand for precious stones here of late, reports from the trade are indicative of better business. The improvement has been both general and gradual. One of the interesting features is the tendency seen toward the use of larger stones, which, if it develops as expected, may result in the passing of the so-called calibre pieces. Emeralds continue to top the demand for the precious stones, and at their present levels the finer ones are undoubtedly the highest-priced gems of all. A number of sales of these stones have been made since the beginning of the year as high as $2,500 a carat, wholesale.

Gray Goods Again Active.

Sales of gray goods in this market were again of quite large volume yesterday. Late July deliveries of 38½-inch 64-60s printcloths were sold at 9¼ cents, which was the rise of an eighth for a day. August-September sales of that construction were made at 9 cents. Spot and July trading took place in 39-inch 68-72s at 10¾ cents, which was also an advance of an eighth. Another advance was seen in 38½-inch 60-48s, which sold for quick delivery at 7⅞ cents. In the sheetings there was trading in 36-inch 5-yard goods at 7¾ cents and in 5.50s of the same width at 7⅛ cents. For 36-inch 6.15 yard sheetings, 44-40, 6⅝ cents was asked, although the 40-square construction of the same goods was available at 6½ cents. For 37-inch 3.95-yard sheetings 9⅝ cents was paid, as was 12 cents for 37½-inch 4.37-yard sateens. In the finer-yarn goods there was more activity on carded broadcloths.

Hard Coal Production Dropping.

Production records show that the slowing down in the rate of anthracite mining since the most active period of the Spring season has amounted to about 20 per cent. This is no greater than the slump which usually occurs at this time of the year, Saward's Journal will say today, so it would appear that from a statistical standpoint conditions are practically normal for early Summer. In the bituminous trade the weeks slip by without any perceptible broadening of the demand or any general advance or decline in prices. Business is not altogether stagnant, but it is not active enough, except in spots, to be described as good.

Here within half an hour of the heart of Manhattan by motor truck are two million square feet of space, in 9 giant warehouses—available for storage, light manufacturing and offices—flanked by a 30 foot channel to Newark Bay and 7 trunk line railroads.

You load from ship to truck or car, or from truck or car to ship direct—no lighterage, no cartage, no taxes to pay.

Your interest may be quickened by reading our booklet "The City of Cyclops" sent on request to Kenna Terminal, P. O. Box 504, Port Newark, N. J.

FINDS A NAME GIVES TRAIN PERSONALITY

Pennsylvania Cites That Such Freights Make Perfect Performances.

MEN'S INTEREST SPURRED

The Road Will Christen All Its Merchandise Carriers, Hitherto Bearing Numbers.

All of the Pennsylvania's fast freight trains will hereafter be named, the road announced yesterday, as it has been found that a train with a name becomes a thing of personality. Every man along the line, it is said, feels a new interest in speeding a train along its journey when that train has a name instead of a number.

Since the road began the practice last April the best records of the company's history for promptness and regularity of service have been established.

"When WV-3, carrying all freight and making 'second-morning' from Pittsburgh to Toledo, was christened 'The Standard,' it immediately piled up a record of fifty-seven consecutive days of perfect service," the announcement says. "Eight other trains, after receiving names, made perfect performances for every trip in April and May."

The honor list includes "The Yankee," which makes "fourth morning" from New England and Long Island points to Chicago, "The Greyhound," which arrives on the third morning with live stock from St. Louis to the seaboard, "Man o' War," third morning arrival of livestock from Chicago to seaboard, and "Uncle Sam," which brings perishable fruit and vegetables from St. Louis to this city.

These trains and a half dozen more since receiving names have made from thirty-eight to fifty-six runs each, all on time. Among the twenty-nine additional trains which are to receive names, memories of Louisville will be carried by "The Colonel," "The Oriole" will recall songs of the South, while "The Trailblazer" will commemorate the pioneer days of the West.

Some of the trains to be known by name follow:

"The Salesman"—From Chicago to Buffalo, carrying all merchandise freight, and arriving on fourth morning.

"The Mascot"—From Chicago to Pittsburgh, carrying merchandise, and arriving on third morning.

"The Thoroughbred"—From Indianapolis to seaboard, carrying live stock, and arriving on third morning.

"The Captivator"—From Cincinnati to seaboard, carrying perishable freight and arriving on third morning.

"The Premier"—From Pittsburgh, to seaboard, carrying live stock, and arriving on first afternoon.

"The Choo Choo"—From Buffalo to Philadelphia and Jersey City, carrying milk, and arriving first noon.

"The Crackajack"—From Buffalo to seaboard, carrying all freight, and arriving on second morning.

"The Ace"—From seaboard to Pittsburgh, carrying all freight, and arriving on second morning.

"The Purple Emperor"—From Potomac Yards and Baltimore to Buffalo and Canada, carrying all freight and arriving at Buffalo on second morning.

"The Cat Bird"—From Norfolk to Philadelphia and New York, carrying perishables and merchandise, and arriving on second morning.

"The White Moth"—From seaboard to Lima, Ohio, and Fort Wayne, Ind., carrying all freight, and arriving on third afternoon.

"The Valet"—From seaboard to Louisville, carrying all freight, and arriving on fourth morning.

"The Vamp"—From Cincinnati to Chicago, carrying all freight, and arriving on second morning.

"The Home Run"—From seaboard to Chicago, carrying empty refrigerator, tank and stock cars, and arriving on sixth morning.

NET INCOME OF B. M. T. HIGHEST ON RECORD

Total of $523,790 for May the Largest of Any Month Since Reorganization.

The Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation, whose progressive increase in earnings following the reorganization plan effected in June, 1923, has been the outstanding reason for the appreciation in the securities of the company in the last two years, yesterday reported for May the largest net income for any month since the reorganization. Only three times previously had monthly surplus, or net income after all taxes and charges, exceeded $500,000, and the total for last month was $523,790.

The net income for the eleven months of the company's fiscal year amounted to $4,643,080, after total income deductions, and compares with $3,518,522 for the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year.

Total operating revenues for the month were $3,774,855, compared with $3,594,657 last year, and total operating expenses were $2,435,656 against $2,291,864. Both operating income and net non-operating income gained.

Gross or total operating revenues for the eleven months to May 31 aggregated $39,550,536 and compares with $36,498,974 in the same period of the previous year. While operating expenses increased in both May and the eleven months period, the ratio of operating expenses to operating revenues showed substantial improvement despite very large increases in maintenance allowances over the previous year. The operating ratio, exclusive of taxes, for the eleven months of the current fiscal year, was 65.5 per cent., compared with 66.2 per cent. for eleven months of the preceding year.

The statement includes earnings of the affiliated companies of the B. M. T. The large gains in gross revenues shown were due particularly to the traffic on the rapid transit lines.

TELLS OF GOOD-WILL TOUR.

French Professor Assures Students Welcome Awaits Them.

That the ten American students who are to sail for France soon as the guests of the Franco-American branch of the American Good-Will Association are being eagerly awaited, was the message delivered to them yesterday by M. Bernard Fay, Professor of French Literature at the College de Clermont-Ferrand, and a member of the Comité Francais du Good-Will Americain, the French branch of the organization.

M. Fay, who arrived this week on the France, spoke as guest of honor at a special meeting of the ten winning students, their parents and friends, and others who took part in the recent oratorical contest on "The French Pioneers in America," held in the public and parochial schools of the city. The meeting was held in the Town Hall Club, 123 West Forty-third Street, yesterday afternoon, with Mr. Rouget D. Jenkins, Executive Vice President of the Franco-American branch, presiding. Frank A. Rexford of the Board of Education told the students they represented 100,000,000 people and that they were being watched with interest by both America and France.

M. Fay told the students their entertainment would include a reception at Havre, tea in the castle of Vaux, golf at Ormesson, a dinner as guests of Comte Pierre de Viel Castel at the Automobile Club on the Place de la Concorde in Paris, a visit to the Exposition des Arts Decoratifs, a night at Verdun fortress, dinner in the gardens of Versailles, a visit to Tours, and a dinner at the Chateau of Chenonceaux, with the Marquis de Polignac as host.

The students will sail on the Suffren June 30 and return Aug. 2 on the Minnewaska.

Single Family House Demand Features Real Estate Market

That American cities are expanding rapidly in their residential areas is apparent in a survey made by the National Association of Real Estate Boards which finds the market for subdivisions showing even greater activity than the lively market of last year.

Demand for single-family dwellings is the strongest impulse of the real estate market in 157 of the 225 cities reporting.

In 89 of the cities the demand for city lots for residence sites is leading the market.

Demand for surburban lots leads in 64 of the cities; this demand is greatest, of course, in the larger cities.

Demand for business property is at the head of the market in 50 of the cities reporting.

A five-story apartment house will be erected thereon. The same broker also sold to a client for investment 2,621 Third Avenue, southwest corner 140th Street, a two and four-story brick building with store on a plot 25 by 100 feet. The purchaser will occupy the store.

Jacob Bashein & Sons purchased from the Darian Realty Company, Inc., a plot 218 by 160 feet on the east side of Whitlock Avenue, 100 feet south of 156th Street. The purchaser is planning the erection of two one-story garages, separated by a private lane. Negotiations are pending for the leasing of one of the buildings to a taxicab concern. Harry Schapiro represented the purchaser.

Armstrong Bros. Inc. resold for the Branew Holding Corporation, Edward Brandt, President, to a client, the south west corner of 181st Street and Davidson Avenue, a vacant business plot 93 by 98 feet. The purchaser has a resale pending. This property was held at $40,000.

LICENSE REVOKED.

State Tax Commission Finds Corona Brokers Guilty.

A decision just made by the New York State Tax Commission holds the Home Realty Company guilty of untrustworthiness to act as real estate brokers and revokes the license of the company for one year.

The complaint against the company was made by Abraham Goodstein on Dec. 18, 1924, and after due hearing by the State Tax Commission it was found, from the evidence presented, that Samuel Smirlock and Antone Daleo, doing business under the firm name of the Home Realty Company, 84 National Avenue, Corona, Long Island, in their conduct and relations with the complainant demonstrated untrustworthiness to act as real estate brokers within the meaning of the statute relating to the licensing of real estate brokers and salesmen.

The order of the State Tax Commission, which was dated May 25, 1925, ordered that no new license be issued to the Home Realty Company or to Samuel Smirlock and Antone Daleo to act as real estate brokers and the old license was revoked. It was further ordered that no new license be issued to those parties, individually or collectively, for the period of one year from the date of the order.

The highest price received per lot was $4,100 and the lowest price $650.

The remaining lots in this development will be offered at auction by Major Kennelly next Saturday evening, June 27, at 8 P. M., on the premises.

3 POLICEMEN INJURED IN SAVING CHILDREN

2 Hurt Stopping Runaway Horses and One Rescuing Mother and Child From Fire.

Two policemen were injured yesterday stopping runaway horses which endangered the safety of children. Another policeman was hurt while rescuing a mother and child from a fire.

Traffic Patrolman Jacob F. Lamour, 35 years old, of 355 Singer Street, Astoria, Queens, stationed at Broadway and Lawrence Street, Flushing, caught a runaway horse which had just broken loose from a smashed wagon owned by J. & T. Adikes of 37 Broadway, Flushing. He was dragged for three blocks, in which many children were playing, before he succeeded in throwing the animal to the ground, and fell beneath it. He was treated by Dr. Hirsch of Flushing Hospital for bruises and was sent home.

Patrolman Edward McEntee of the Ralph Avenue Station was on duty at Ralph and Gates Avenues, near Public School 26, when two horses drawing a milk wagon bolted as several children were crossing the street. McEntee rushed the children out of danger, caught one of the horses by its bridle and stopped the team a block away. He too was bruised, but not seriously.

Patrolman Edward Brown of Brooklyn was seriously burned when he carried Mrs. Rose Neufelt and her son, Isadore, 7 years old, from their burning apartment on the second floor of 705A Madison Street, Brooklyn. The fire was caused by a short circuit when the child, it is said, pulled an electric light chandelier from its socket. Brown was taken to Bushwick Hospital.

Railroad Men to Hold Outing.

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., June 19.—Seventeen hundred veterans of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Association will arrive here on two special trains tomorrow morning for a day's outing. Manager Paul A. Volcker has arranged to entertain the veterans. An effort will be made by the Atlantic City Railroad Company to break all records for a run from Camden to this city. The time is now seventy-five minutes from Chestnut Street wharf of this city. An effort will be made to cut the running time to sixty-five minutes.

Building Volume in May Reached High Mark Here

May was another good month for new building in New York City, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. Total building contracts awarded last month in the five boroughs amounted to $60,444,100. There was a seasonal decline of 12 per cent. from April, but the total figure was 8 per cent. over that of May, 1924. Included in last month's record were $39,416,300, or 65 per cent. of all construction, for residential buildings; $15,443,000, or 25 per cent., for commercial buildings; $2,395,000, or 4 per cent., for industrial plants; and $1,305,000, or 2 per cent., for religious and memorial buildings.

New construction started in the five boroughs during the past five months has amounted to $294,102,800. While this is a 37 per cent. decrease from the corresponding period of 1924, it is a better record than that of any year previous to 1924. It is 27 per cent. over the 1923 record and 14 per cent. over the 1922 record.

Investor Buys Lexington Av. Structure—Other Flats Change Ownership.

David Pasinsky and Benjamin Kresner, operators, bought the southeast corner of 116th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, a seven-story elevator apartment house, 100 by 100 feet, opposite Columbia University.

This is the first sale of the house in twenty-two years. Louis Bosky was the seller. The property was held at $600,000. H. K. Kazarian was the broker.

George S. Runk sold to an investor 1,465 and 1,469 Lexington Avenue, a seven-story elevator apartment, known as the Winton Court. It is located at the southeast corner of Ninety-fifth Street and covers a plot 55 by 100 feet. The property has a rental of $35,000, and was held at $250,000. The same broker sold the property to the sellers about three years ago—at a time just prior to the boom on Lexington Avenue.

The Frank Holding Company, Morris Frank, President, sold to Philip J. Curry 612 West 137th Street, a six-story apartment house on plot 65 by 100 feet, accommodating twenty-four families in suites of five, six and seven rooms each. The property is fully rented for about $30,000, and was held at $200,000. Byrne & Bowman were the brokers.

The Trend Realty Company, Inc., acting as brokers, sold for Carrie Siegel 829 West End Avenue, between 100th and 101st Streets. The property is a seven-story and basement apartment house on a plot with 48.10 feet frontage by 100 feet in depth, and rents for over $25,000. The property was held at $190,000 and the purchaser, a builder, will either improve on the expiration of the present leases or offer it for resale.

Edward S. Long sold to the 635 Park Avenue Corporation, the four-story building at 631 Park Avenue. The purchaser recently acquired the twelve-story apartment house on the southeast corner of Park Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, and intends to alter 631 Park Avenue and operate it in conjunction with the larger building. The property was held at $95,000. The brokers were Thayer, Saunders & Co., Inc., in conjunction with Daniel Hoffman.

Irving Gaumont, operator, who has recently purchased several properties in Harlem, bought from Fred. B. Stix 140 West 112th Street, a five-story walk-up, on a lot 25 by 100, adjoining the corner of Seventh Avenue. It rents for $7,400 and was held at $50,000. Joseph Lynn and Ruth Morgenroth were the brokers.

Sell Third Avenue Corner.

Abraham B. Block and Bernard B. Block sold the four-story building at 1,471 Third Avenue, northeast corner of Eighty-third Street, which they recently purchased. The purchasers are Green & Goldey, operators. This building was sold subject to a first mortgage which runs 17½ years. Herman Sternburgh was the broker.

Grihal Realty Company sold 150 West 103d Street, a five-story flat 27 by 100 feet. The sellers were represented by Slawson & Hobbs. The brokers were Hess & O'Brien, Inc.

In the Yorkville section Lawrence Gross sold and resold 1,636 Second Avenue, held at $36,000 and owned by Mildred Barnet.

The same broker also sold 516 East Eighty-eighth Street, held at $35,000 and owned by Herman Rahmsdorf.

Irving Bachrach bought from W. Sullivan 447 Manhattan Avenue and 350 West 119th Street, a five-story apartment, size 26 by 100 feet.

Harris Sussman sold the five-story apartment 30 by 100 feet at 11½ West Sixty-fifth Street to a client of the Freeman Company for investment. The building shows a rent roll of over $10,000 and was held for $70,000.

Joseph J. Wasserman resold 231-3 West Sixty-seventh Street, 50 by 100 feet, a six-story apartment, for N. Galpman to Joseph Hoffman.

REAL ESTATE—Other Cities and Towns

York Harbor, Maine
Rare Offering
At This High Class Resort
These two beautiful Summer homes adjoin each other and will appeal strongly to lovers of water sports as they are but 300 feet from the harbor which accommodates any kind of sailing or motor propelled vessel, only 500 feet from the only bathing beach at York Harbor and 1,000 feet from the famous Marshall House, the finest fireproof hotel on the Atlantic Coast. Magnificent situation, overlooking the ocean and the harbor. It is a compelling sale in which the houses are offered for only $15,000 and $12,000, reasonable terms if desired, completely furnished. The larger house has 4 master's bedrooms, 4 maid's rooms, 3 baths, separate laundry, toilets and spacious piazzas on three sides; while the other house has 6 master's bedrooms, 4 maid's rooms, 2 baths, extra toilet, laundry, piazza on three sides. These properties are easily worth $50,000. Can be sold separately if desired. There is practically no other property of its character offered for sale in this aristocratic watering resort and it represents a wonderful speculative purchase. Would consider renting for $2,000 and $1,500 for the season. Also have two very charming places for rent at Rye, N. H., $2,500 and $1,800.

SMITH SAYS CRITICS FALSIFIED IN ATTACK

Hewitt-Hutchinson Joint Indictment of His Financial Statement Called "Bunk and Nonsense."

THINKS SOME 'NEVER LEARN'

Governor Denies He Repudiated School Appropriation and Says Legislators Jumbled Many Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 19.—Senator Charles J. Hewitt, Chairman of the Finance Committee, and Assemblyman Eberly Hutchinson of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee are charged with falsifying by Governor Smith in a statement given out by him tonight in answer to their joint statement of a few days ago in which they discussed State finances.

Governor Smith riddled the statement of the legislators and said that a careful perusal of his financial announcement "will prepare you for just such bunk and nonsense as is contained in the Hewitt-Hutchinson statement."

The Governor reiterated his assertion that if he had approved all the appropriation bills sent to him by the last Legislature the total would have been $193,915,468.36.

Text of the Statement.

The Governor's statement follows:

The statement given out by Senator Hewitt and Assemblyman Hutchinson attempting to make answer to the financial statement I issued fully bears out the old-time saying that some people will never learn. Read my statement carefully and it will prepare you for just such bunk and nonsense as is contained in the Hewitt-Hutchinson statement. It cannot be that these two legislators, after what happened last Winter in Albany, are so lacking in an understanding of the State's business as seriously to make the statements contained in their recent answer.

Appropriation bills passed by the Legislature but not accepted by me amount to $10,826,781.04. The Senator and the Assemblyman know this to be true. They also know that on the 19th of March they had an all-night meeting in the rooms of the Senate Finance Committee, and in an open communication which they gave out to the press they suggested additional appropriations containing items which totaled $13,377,373.36. If you add both of these items to the appropriation bills which I actually signed the total will be brought up to $193,915,468.13. Senator Hewitt and Assemblyman Hutchinson can throw figures around, juggle with them, place and misplace them from now until New Year's Eve, but they cannot get away from the statement I have just made because it is a matter of record and can be proven.

Explains School Appropriation.

I notice that they are unable to avoid the temptation to play a little politics with the school appropriation and they do it to the point of actually misstating the whole occurrence at the Executive Chamber this Winter. They stated that I repudiated an agreement to appropriate $9,000,000. That statement is absolutely false.

The real fact is that the amount was fixed by the legislative leaders themselves.

They rejected the program of the Department of Education for the betterment of our rural schools and arbitrarily fixed a maximum of $10,000,000 and were themselves the ones to suggest that it be appropriated in 1926 and made immediately available.

After the tax reduction discussion grew acute they sought to drag $9,000,000 into the controversy directly contrary to the conference agreement, and when I sent a message to the Legislature asking that the school bill take effect immediately and suggested the appropriation early in 1926 and showed the Legislature where the money would come from, they deliberately postponed the benefit to the rural schools for one year, and immediately thereafter the Republican Press Bureau got busy with items to all the country newspapers insulting the intelligence of the people by trying to tell them that Governor Smith is standing in the way of adequate appropriations for the rural schools. Whom do they think they are fooling?

The palpable insincerity of their statement is made apparent when they speak of a State debt of one billion dollars, predicated probably on the theory that if the people authorize the $300,000,000 for grade crossings, the bonds will all be issued fifteen minutes after the amendment is adopted. As a matter of fact the balance is against the railroads and localities. But what is the use of being careful about facts when you are putting out political statements and you feel in the political humor of referring to the Governor as Ponzi. I would not have the people of the State believe for a minute that these statements annoy me, but I would like them to know the exact measure of the men who put them out.

Says They "Jumbled" Bills.

The statement says: "The appropriations were prepared in strict conformity with the budget method advocated by the Governor." How far do the two Financial Chairmen expect to get with that statement when they know in their heart and soul that they threw the bill prepared by the Board of Estimate and Control into the waste basket and began right after the first of January the preparation of their own bill, behind closed doors, so that when the bills for the support of Government came to me they were jumbled beyond the power of anybody to understand them except some one who had spent long years studying the financial methods of the State.

They say that one of the appropriation bills contained items which were in the original departmental requests and had been either refused or not considered by the Governor's budgetmaker. What is the meaning of that statement? That is put out to mislead the people who read it. The real truth is that items were deliberately omitted from the main appropriation bill in order to give the legislative leaders an opportunity to put out a false political statement about the amounts contained in the bill, because the companion bill contained necessary items of governmental expenditure which were incorporated in the original bill which came from the Board of Estimate and Control. It was deliberately done and they know it.

Laughs at Budget Attack.

Get ready for a good laugh. They said: "If the Governor condemns this procedure, then he condemns in advance the very system of appropriations which in his constitutional budget plan he has been advocating." What a joke a statement of that kind is! The very essence of the budgetary plan is to prevent legislative juggling with the appropriation bills to prevent the legislative leaders from making increases of salary to favored individuals not requested by the responsible department heads, to prevent the legislative leaders from playing politics with the appropriation bills in the hope of securing the favor of large groups of State employes, to prevent the legislative leaders from attempting appropriations for pet public works and hobbies of their own in their own localities or in the localities of the favored members of their party.

Senator Hewitt and Assemblyman Hutchinson know just as well as I do that in the supplemental appropriation there were items that the department heads never heard of before. As a matter of fact, neither of the financial leaders of the Legislature knew what some of the items were.

The budget secretary of the Committee on Ways and Means died suddenly before the close of the session, and I am reliably informed that they went to the pigeonholes of his desk and pulled out all of the memorandums which he had, and put them all into the appropriation bills and left it to me thereafter to properly adjust all proposed provision for the support of the Government.

There is a cure for all this whole situation. It was proposed by the Republican majority in the Constitutional Convention of 1915. State expenses have so grown in that ten years that there is four times more reason for it today than there was ten years ago. Notwithstanding that it is supported by the leaders of thought in the Republican Party, it has been uniformly driven down to defeat at the hands of the very men who make these kinds of financial statements. I have no other interest in this question except the interest of the State of New York, and until by constitutional amendment the manner and method of handling appropriation bills is materially changed there can be no hope for any great relief from the injection of politics into what ought to be the pure, straight, clear, clean business of the State of New York.

ALFRED E. SMITH.

PARK ALLIES FIGHT FOR SMITH PROGRAM

Local Bodies, in Resolution, Condemn Land Board Regime—To Go to Albany Next Week.

Representatives of local organizations who favor the passage of Governor Smith's park program at next week's special session of the Legislature met yesterday at the Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, and adopted resolutions favoring legislation that would place control of the State park lands with the State Council of Parks and the Regional Commissions rather than with the Land Board. George Gordon Battle, President of the Parks and Playgrounds Association, forwarded copies of the resolutions to Albany, and next week a delegation representing the organization will go to Albany and argue in favor of the Governor's program.

Mr. Battle presided at the meeting and urged those present to sign the resolution, either individually or as representatives of their organization. All did so with the exception of Fred D. Kamil of the Civitan Club.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas a meeting has been called of the various organizations and individuals whose names are subscribed to this resolution, for the purpose of considering ways and means to forward and promote the plan proposed by the State Council of Parks and the different State Regional Park Commissions and approved by Governor Smith for the expenditure of the bond issue funds voted last Fall by the people of this State by over a million majority, and not yet made available; and Condemn Land Board Regime.

"Whereas all the undersigned are heartily in favor of the proposition of the State Park Council and the Regional Commissions that the park authorities without interference by other boards and agencies expend these funds as voted by the people; and are sincerely of the opinion that the interests of the people of the State will be far better served by the adoption of legislation enacting this proposition into law rather than by the passage of the statute which was passed at the last session of the Legislature placing the Land Board in control of the acquisition of State park lands, and vetoed by the Governor; and

"Whereas the undersigned are convinced that it will be highly detrimental to the interests of the State park system to require that all purchases of lands for State parks must be approved by this Land Board, which is composed solely of State officials having an ex officio membership on that board, whose interest in the park problems of the State must, of necessity, be political, temporary and incidental, while the State Council of Parks and the Regional Commissions constitute a non-partisan body of distinguished citizens deeply interested in the State parks and ready to devote much time and attention to the development of the State park system; and

"Whereas the delay in making the bond issue funds available will result in loss of numerous valuable parcels of land under contract or decision and will, in many other respects, hurt the park program.

Ask Early Action.

"Now, therefore, it is resolved that the undersigned organizations and individuals heartily approve and endorse the plan of the State Council of Parks and Regional Commissions, approved and endorsed by Hon. Alfred E. Smith, Governor of the State of New York, and do respectfully urge upon the special session of the Legislature which will be assembled in Albany on June 22 that this plan, so much needed by the people, may be enacted into law as speedily as possible, to the end that the State park system may be promptly and efficiently developed."

Franklin D. Roosevelt, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Chairman of the Taconic State Park Commission, declared yesterday that the "hidden influence" working on the Republican Legislators in an effort to defeat Governor Smith's park program was United States Senator James W. Wadsworth.

"The surprising thing to me," said Mr. Roosevelt, "is that so far in the controversy the responsibility for the opposition to the Governor's program has not been laid at the door of Senator Wadsworth. Governor Miller and Congressman Mills and Senator Knight have been pushed forward to cloud the issue by trying to tie up the park appropriations with the totally different issue of the bonds and the constitutional amendments to be voted on this Autumn.

"Nevertheless, Senator Wadsworth has to my certain knowledge been the invisible hand behind the present Republican State policy, savagely attacking the Governor and opposing him on everything whether they have honest grounds for opposition or not."

Urges Wadsworth Support.

Mr. Roosevelt made public a letter he wrote last Thursday to Senator Wadsworth calling upon him to use his influence to keep the State Park question out of politics. The letter said in part:

"I am writing you in regard to the State Park Appropriations bill, which is to be considered at the special session of the Legislature, because I know that you, as Republican State leader, have already sent word to various Republican Legislators to keep their political lines intact.

"May I respectfully suggest that the creation and development of a Statewide park and parkway system is a matter above mere partisan politics? The Governor of this State has recognized this by appointing to the various commissions citizens of all parties—the large majority of them being, indeed, Republicans. I have been told by several people that you, as the director of Republican State policies, have decided that Governor Smith must be opposed by your party in everything which he may suggest or advocate in his capacity as the Chief Executive of the State. Surely this cannot be so!

"It is vital that the splendid program, covering every county in the State, be developed by disinterested men without regard to politics. I am very certain that the people of this State approve of the sentiment 'keep the parks out of politics.' I am in all sincerity appealing to you to use your influence for the good of the people of the State, to keep their parks out of politics, and it is because I have a very high regard for you that I honestly believe that you will see the necessity of this even as I do."

To Open "Sedgwick" Phone Office.

More than a quarter of a million telephones will be served by machine switching central offices in New York when "Sedgwick," the twenty-seventh office of this type, is put into operation tonight at midnight. The new office, in the telephone company's building at 184th Street, near Valentine Avenue, will begin with about 6,000 telephones, generally between Fordham University and Jerome Park Reservoir and south of Mosholu Parkway.

The Perfect Soda

THERE is nothing in the world so cooling, nothing so refreshing as a Happiness Soda.

The purest of flavorings—luscious, ripe fresh fruit—rich, velvet-smooth ice cream—a puff of frothy sparkling water! Icy cold, blended to just the right proportions—this is the Happiness Soda, the most delicious in New York City.

All Happiness drinks and refreshments are made this way—only the purest ingredients, expertly blended.
